Charter Plane Crash Kills 13

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—A two-engine football charter plane groping its way through a snowstorm struck one hill and crashed into another southwest of Salt Lake City on Saturday, killing all 13 persons aboard. Wreckage of the Ede Airlines DC3 splintered 500 yards across a canyon between the two hills. Bodies were scattered, most of them burned beyond immediate identification. Only the tail section and a sheared-off wing were discernible in the charred ruins.

An identification team from the FBI planned a body-by-body check. The Civil Aeronautics Board sent a team of examiners.

The nine passengers and four crew members were en route from Salt Lake City to Provo, 35 miles south, to pick up more passengers for a flight to Albuquerque, N.M., and the Brigham Young-New Mexico football game Saturday. The charter was arranged by the Cougar Club of Provo, a Brigham Young booster group.

No football players were aboard.

The passengers included four physicians, a dentist, an attorney, two businessmen and the 17-year-old daughter of the pilot. The crew numbered Edde, a copilot, stewardess and an extra pilot. All 13 were from the Salt Lake City area.

The DC3 made an instrument takeoff from the Salt Lake City airport just after daybreak. "There never was an indication of trouble," an Edde spokesman said. "We didn't hear anything more after it was airborne."

The craft was flying at low altitude following the Quirrh Mountains chain which marks the west side of the Salt Lake Valley.

The wing snapped off at the fuselage when the plane grazed the top of the first hill. The wing bounced into a canyon near the rifle range of Camp W.G. Williams, a training base for the Utah National Guard.

The plane careened off the first hill and plowed nose-first into the second, midway up the slope. Fire apparently broke out after the first impact.

C. W. Brady, Utah public safety commissioner, said an unidentified man told him he saw the plane flying south at a low altitude. Brady quoted the man as "wondering why the plane was so low."

Apparently there were no witnesses to the actual crash in the unpopulated Camp Williams reservation.

The crash was the second in the Salt Lake City valley in 16 days. Forty-three persons were injured fatally on Veterans Day when a United Air Lines Boeing 727 jetliner crashed and burned at Salt Lake City Airport.

Passenger victims of Saturday's crash included Dr. Antonio Dalton, Dr. J. Bernard Critchfield, Dr. Marion E. Probert, a former Brigham Young football player, and Dr. Roger W. Parkinson, all physicians; Dr. Gordon K. Lewis, a dentist; T. R. Gledhill and Jim Peterson, businessmen; Richard R. Wilkins, attorney; and Diane Edde, 17, daughter of the pilot.

The crew members were identified as pilot Garth Edde, copilot Kenneth Myers, stewardess Norma Jenkins and extra pilot Calvin B. Higgs.

Edde Airlines, founded in 1960 by Garth, Bill and Joe Edde, is a contract carrier which often transports athletic teams in the Utah area. It did not fly the Brigham Young football team to Albuquerque for Saturday's game.

U.S. Holds Open Possibility Of Halt In N. Viet Bombings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is holding open the possibility of a new suspension in the bombing of North Viet Nam if it is ever persuaded that such a move would help get Vietnamese peace talks under way.

But at the moment administration officials say they see no yielding whatever in what they consider rigid North Vietnamese terms for talks and the expectation here is that the war will be intensified over the next few months.

Find Most Of Vatican Robbery Loot

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Three-quarters of the loot from the daring Vatican library burglary—including two priceless literary manuscripts—was found by chance in an open field just north of Rome, police reported Saturday.

The unexpected break came when the gardener of a villa walked into the house holding a tin can. Inside it were the stolen manuscripts in the handwriting of the great Italian poets Petrarch and Torquato Tasso.

The gardener told his employers he saw a man get out of a car and apparently throw something into the high grass of an untended field near the villa's garden.

Agostino Scaccetti, 40, the gardener, had been on his way to throw some rubbish into the field beyond the villa's walls Friday when he noticed the car, one man sitting inside and another standing at the edge of the field. The gardener thought they were acting suspiciously.

"He came hurrying back into the house carrying a can," Elvira Emanuelides Messina told a reporter. She and her husband, Gennaro Messina, recently Italian consul-general in Malta and former Italian diplomatic staff member in Ankara, live in the villa.

"The family was at the table for lunch," said the woman. They looked in the can after lunch and saw "two rather nice, old books." Mrs. Messina forgot about them until she saw an Italian television newscast Friday night telling how agile burglars during the night had climbed into the 500-year-old apostolic library, smashed glass display cases and gotten away with a 33-foot drainpipe with (Continued On Page Thirteen)

McNamara Tells Allies Of Stockpile

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara told America's European allies Saturday the United States has built up an awesome stockpile of nuclear weapons in Europe to support U.S. and Allied troops.

The secretary said the continuing buildup is doubling the nuclear stockpile which existed on the scene in 1960 for the joint defense of members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

McNamara reported this to a special committee of 10 NATO defense ministers which met throughout the day in NATO headquarters to explore means of sharing nuclear responsibility within the alliance. He repeated some of his remarks later to American newsmen.

"The United States," he said, "is continuing to increase the nuclear component of the NATO deterrent forces. There are now more than 5,000 U.S. nuclear warheads in Europe, under U.S. custody but in support of both U.S. and other NATO units. This number will increase by more than 20 per cent in the next six months. This will represent a doubling of nuclear weapons strength in Europe over the past five years."

McNamara told the other nine ministers these warheads included bombs, missile warheads, artillery rounds, demolition charges, and anti-aircraft explosives.

"I reported to the ministers on the totals, the categories, the delivery systems and the storage locale," he told newsmen.

Other sources said the ministers had received secret briefings on the quantity and quality of the nuclear hardware available to the alliance not only in Europe, but in the United States and the North Atlantic area.

The reports were deemed a necessary preliminary to any plans for consultation on their eventual use in case of aggression.

The 10 ministers established three working groups to study the problem of sharing nuclear responsibility: Communications, intelligence and planning.

Each group was reported to have five members, including representatives of the United States and Britain — the two nuclear powers represented Saturday.

Each of the other eight will have a representative on at least one of the three groups. These eight nations are Italy, West Germany, Denmark, Greece, Turkey, Canada, Belgium and Holland.

France, the only other atomic power within NATO, is not participating. The French government has voiced opposition to pooling nuclear responsibility.

Other items contributing largely to the higher spending: —Higher pay for civilian workers and for military servicemen, the increases in both cases being well above Johnson's recommendations.

—Higher outlays by the Commodity Credit Corp. in the farm-price-support program.

—Higher interest rates to finance the national debt.

Johnson was pictured as concerned by the upturn in interest rates.

Explosion Death Toll Rises To 10

KEOKUK, Iowa (AP)—Offers of help from square dance groups over the nation continued to pour in Saturday as the death toll in the explosion and fire that wrecked the National Guard armory here rose to 10.

At Burlington, Iowa, Kenneth Anderson, the caller who was officiating at the dance of the Swing Ezy Club when the explosion heaved up the armory floor and caved in the roof Wednesday night, announced a nationwide drive for aid funds.

He is asking other square dance clubs across the country to add to the $50 already contributed. Twenty-three persons injured in the blast remained in critical condition at hospitals in Keokuk, Burlington, Iowa City, and Quincy, Ill. Fourteen others less seriously hurt also were hospitalized.

Keokuk Gas Service Co. workers and fire officials continued, meanwhile, digging around a gas main leading to the wrecked armory in a search for a suspected gas leak.

The latest to succumb to burns suffered in the blast which enveloped the square dancers in a huge ball of fire, were: Carl Goodrich, 30, of Carthage, Ill.; Mrs. Richard Davis and Mrs. Geraldine Starr, about 40, both of Keokuk.

Goodrich's wife, Carol, died earlier. Services for her were postponed Saturday and double services will be held Monday in Carthage.

The crack Communist Phu Loi Battalion, which has inflicted heavy losses on government forces in the past, was believed to have participated in the battle.

One American described Saturday's battle as a "slaughter."

Cong, S. Viet Troops Battle In Death Grip

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Viet Cong and South Vietnamese regiments battled in a death grip Saturday night on an abandoned rubber plantation in a thunderous upsurge of the ground war after a two-day lull. U.S. planes blasted at Red positions in the area, 45 miles northeast of Saigon.

A U.S. spokesman said no American combat troops were committed, but some Americans were killed and others wounded. These presumably were advisers to the South Vietnamese army's 7th Infantry Regiment, whose command post was overrun early in the fight.

While thousands of Americans marched in Washington "for peace in Viet Nam," Vietnamese infantrymen fought for their lives against a Red force of regimental size — 1,200 to 2,000 men — on a 54-square-mile property of the Michelin Rubber Co. The Vietnamese casualties were reported from moderate to heavy.

The Viet Cong struck from a concealed honeycomb of trenches and foxholes shortly after dawn in the third attack of that scope within the last two weeks.

The others were against U.S. cavalrymen in the Ia Drang Valley of the central highlands and government posts in coastal Phu Yen Province.

In the Mekong Delta southwest of Saigon, two government platoons took heavy casualties in repulsing a Viet Cong attack on Long An. However, a spokesman said government troops killed 40 guerrillas in two other actions in the same area.

U.S. Navy officers declined to say just when two nuclear-powered newcomers to the 7th Fleet — the aircraft carrier Enterprise and the guided missile frigate Bainbridge — might join combat patrols in the South China Sea. Both remained docked at Subic Bay, Philippines, 750 miles east of Viet Nam.

U.S. planes bombed shipping and communications of North Viet Nam in the 9-month-old campaign on which Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has said "increasing emphasis" may be expected.

Increased emphasis might be by Guam-based B52 jet bombers of the Strategic Air Command, high-flying, eight-engine craft that so far have been used solely south of the border.

B52s used their saturation bombing tactics at noon on suspected Communist targets in the general area of the Michelin plantation. Smaller planes, including F5 Freedom Fighters, strafed and bombed in direct support of the Vietnamese troops.

Five million rubber trees dot the plantation, which the French management abandoned five weeks ago because of Communist harassment and huge taxes demanded by Viet Cong agents. Pilots at times found the canopy of foliage a handicap.

The plantation has been the largest rubber producer in South Viet Nam. Newsmen were told that each of the trees annually produced $50 worth of latex, raw material for such products as tires and tennis shoes.

Mortars and recoilless rifle shells from a Communist heavy weapons company cut into the ranks of the Vietnamese troops. Helicopters lifted Vietnamese rangers into the action as reinforcements.

A brigade of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division, the Big Red One, is based near the plantation. The Americans made a four-day drive across it in mid-November, but the Communists evidently pulled out temporarily at that time for contact was slight. Vietnamese troops took over alone after the Americans withdrew.

From the central highlands came a report of an ambush Friday on Route 14 in Quang Duc Province. A spokesman said guerrillas damaged two scout cars and three trucks and inflicted light casualties on personnel of a government convoy. Convoy guards were reported to have killed five of the guerrillas and captured one.

Ground operations appeared to have picked up in South Viet Nam's 1st Corps area, a block of northern provinces adjoining the 17th parallel border.

A U.S. military spokesman in Da Nang, 380 miles northeast of Saigon, announced South Viet-

Pickers Protest War In S. Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — An army of dissenters marched around the White House in a gigantic picket line Saturday, protesting the United States role in Viet Nam.

An estimated 22,000 paraded for hours in slow-moving circles that packed the sidewalks outside the White House grounds.

Their signs ranged from simple calls to peace — the tone favored by march organizers — to denunciations of President Johnson.

After hours of protest at the White House, they trooped to the Washington Monument grounds to hear their leaders demand that the administration seek a Viet Nam cease-fire and move to the bargaining table. Organizers claimed there were 30,000 on hand there.

Police estimated that 25,000 people joined the six-hour protest. March organizers claimed between 40,000 and 50,000 people were on hand at the monument rally.

Their signs ranged from simple calls for negotiations and peace — the tone favored by march sponsors — to demands that U.S. troops withdraw and denunciations of President Johnson.

There were scattered scuffles and at least eight people were arrested in clashes between the peace pickets and their critics.

Among the men arrested was George Lincoln Rockwell, leader of the American Nazi party. Police said he scuffled with demonstrators after wrenching a North Vietnamese flag from one of them and tearing it apart.

At the monument grounds, a motorcycle-riding band of counter demonstrators heckled the marchers and police said they arrested the leader of that clique. They ushered the rest of the group away from the audience.

One trouble spot was on the Pennsylvania Avenue sidewalk, where Communist sympathizers waved the gold-starred flag of the Viet Cong guerrillas.

Two men were taken away by police after they wrestled a Viet Cong flag to the ground. "There are people dying over there and you let them fly that thing," one of them said as police led him to a waiting patrol wagon.

At another point when Viet Cong flags were unfurled, counter-demonstrators quickly moved in to surround them with American flags. That was the

Holiday Traffic Toll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The traffic death toll rose at a faster clip Saturday, boosting the total for the long Thanksgiving period.

The tally reached 403.

The normal weekend loss of life — often high — apparently lifted the death rate as motorists shifted into their Saturday and Sunday driving patterns.

During the compilation period that began at 6 p.m. (local time) Wednesday, and ending at midnight Sunday, the count has been running ahead of the 1965 average of about 110 motor vehicle fatalities a day.

The bulk of the deaths on the streets and highways were occurring singly or in pairs. But there has been a thread of multiple-death accidents.

In one of the latest, a two-car collision near Radcliff, Ky., Saturday killed two brothers and their sister. They were on their way to a relative's funeral.

Snow was on the ground in sections of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. There were scattered areas of rain elsewhere, but much of the country had clear weather.

In recent years, the tally of traffic deaths during the Thanksgiving period — all four days — has ranged from 442 in 1960 to 554 in 1964.

The National Safety Council makes no advance estimates of motor vehicle fatalities for Thanksgiving on grounds that it is largely a home occasion that is accompanied by less distance driving than other major holidays.

The Associated Press made a survey of traffic deaths during a recent non-holiday period of four days—from 6 p.m. Wednesday Nov. 10 to midnight Sunday, Nov. 14—to provide a basis for comparison. The total then was 566.

Present Federal Budget Will Exceed $100 Billion

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — The federal government will spend well over $100 billion for the first time in history during the present fiscal year.

Administration officials disclosed for the first time Saturday night expenditures now are estimated at between $105 billion and $107 billion and income at more than $96.5 billion.

This would indicate a deficit of $8.5 billion to $10.5 billion, but sources close to President Johnson expect it to be smaller than that, perhaps $7 billion to $8 billion. Their explanation is that the revenue estimate is on the conservative side.

The previous spending record was set in fiscal 1945 when $98.3 billion was paid out at the climax of World War II. Receipts, however, were only $44.3 billion that year so the deficit was approximately $54 billion.

A variety of factors contribute to the increased spending, the war in Viet Nam being one of the main ones.

The higher estimate on receipts results from a recent spurt in tax collections which is expected to continue during the remainder of fiscal 1966, which ends June 30.

The new figures, all described as rough, were made known to newsmen following a conference on the LBJ Ranch Friday between Johnson and Budget Director Charles Schultz.

It was reported to newsmen that Johnson will take a less active role in the budget-making process than last year, shifting the principal burden to Cabinet members and agency heads.

Through Schultz, they are being told the primary responsibility for trimming their own budgets rests with them, not the President.

Schultz is telling these officials Johnson expects them to work with the budget director in eliminating every unnecessary item and to work out a priority system of essential, less essential and not essential.

The new spending estimate of $105 billion to $107 billion compares with the January estimate of $99.7 billion. The new income estimate of a $96.5 billion compared with $94.4 billion.

Except for stepped up spending on the war in Viet Nam and other items fiscal experts call uncontrollable, federal spending is estimated at $500 million below January forecasts. Part of this decrease resulted in congressional delay in enacting administration programs. This left less time for spending the money in this bookkeeping year.

Congress, at Johnson's request, added $1.7 billion for Viet Nam and more money will be asked in another supplemental appropriation in January.

Other items contributing largely to the higher spending: —Higher pay for civilian workers and for military servicemen, the increases in both cases being well above Johnson's recommendations.

—Higher outlays by the Commodity Credit Corp. in the farm-price-support program.

—Higher interest rates to finance the national debt.

SAUNEMIN, ILL.: The situation here can well be termed "corny" as farmers are forced to store grain in town's business district street. One of the best crops in recent years combined with a railroad car shortage is why grain is being stored outdoors. (UPI Photo)

Former Cub Star, El Tappe, Speaks At Carrollton

CARROLLTON — El Tappe of Quincy was the guest speaker at the annual banquet honoring the 1965 football team of the Carrollton Community Unit High School Saturday at 6:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria. Tappe, who is now manager of a sporting goods store, is a former catcher and manager of the Chicago Cubs. His talk centered around the academic achievements which are now necessary for a youth to achieve great things in the athletic field. He encouraged the boys to keep their grades up if they intended going to college and participating in sports as only the youths with the high grades are considered in college at the present time.

HOME COMING SET FOR DECEMBER 3, 4 AT NORTH GREENE

WHITE HALL—Annual homecoming festivities at North Greene High School will be held December 3 and 4.

The school will be open for visitation after 1 p.m. December 3. Visitors are also invited to the pep assembly to be held at 3 p.m. At 3:45 p.m. the Alumni-Faculty Tea will be served in the school cafeteria.

Friday evening will feature the opening basketball game of the season between North Greene Spartans and the Brown County Hornets. The dance will be held December 4 from 8 to 11 p.m. in the new gymnasium. The queen will be crowned at this time, and music will be furnished by the Lyn Symons Band of Jacksonville.

Tickets may be obtained in advance at Hopkins Jewelry Store in Roodhouse and at the Gray Clothing Store in White Hall.

GREENFIELD LIONS TO BUILD SHELTER, PICNIC GROUNDS

GREENFIELD — The Greenfield Lions club received the go ahead from city authorities this week to build their shelter house and picnic area on the site of Comrod Park, north of town. The city has made available the south half of the park for the club to erect an adequate shelter house for residents to use for picnics, family reunions, etc.

The club held "Ladies Night" last Thursday at the Baptist annex. There were 98 members and guests in attendance. There were five guests present from White Hall, Carrollton and Jerseyville clubs for a Zone meeting with Zone Chairman Robert Meldrum of White Hall following the meeting.

Mrs. James Ford gave an interesting review with the aid of slides of her trip to Portugal, Italy, Greece, Egypt, Turkey and the Holy Land.

Mr. and Mrs. Orvin Johnessee spent last week with their son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Johnessee and family of Marshalltown, Iowa. They were accompanied by their son Dick, of Hannibal, Mo.

Mrs. Raymond Mears was hostess to the Presbyterian Women's Organization at their country home Thursday. There were 14 members and one guest present. The meeting was in keeping with the theme of Thanksgiving. Those taking part were Mrs. Loren Haven and Miss Lucille Barnett. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Mrs. Felter Wayham returned home from a two weeks visit with her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wayham, San Angelo, Tex. Mrs. Wayham, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Eleanor Wayham, spent the week end in Spring Valley, Illinois, at the home of her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Elmore and family.

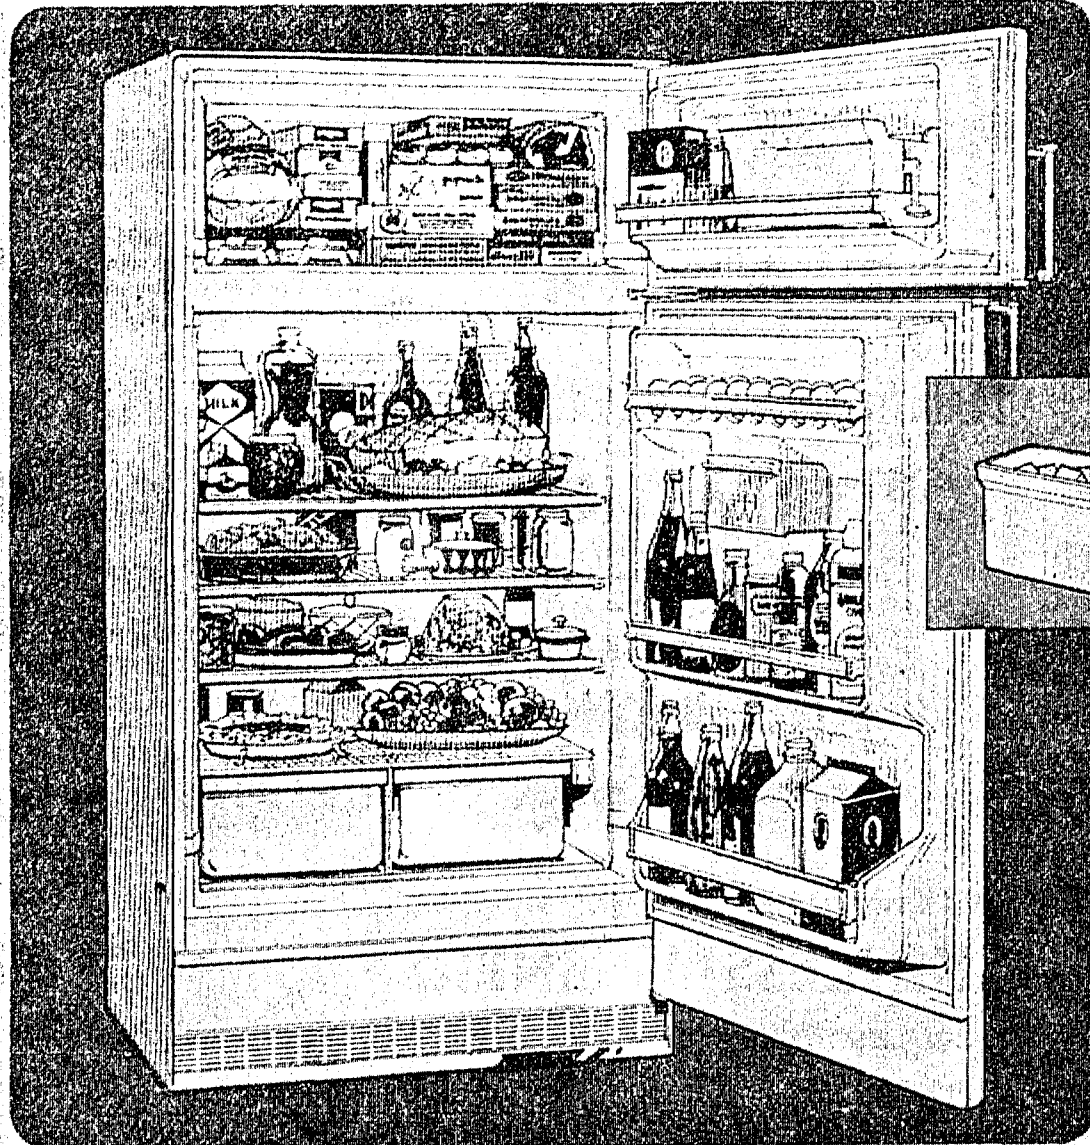

Mr. and Mrs. Finice Doyle attended the three-day convention of the Illinois County Officials last week held at the LaSalle Hotel in Chicago. Mr. Doyle was elected secretary of the Illinois Circuit Clerks Association.

Memorial Chimes Dedicated At Church In Pike

PITTSFIELD — A set of 21 note chimes, presented to the Pittsfield Methodist church in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Kendrick, was dedicated during services at the church Sunday.

The chimes were contributed by the Kendrick children and their families who were present for Sunday's service.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Brant and Mrs. Harold Voshall of Pittsfield, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Sommers of Jacksonville, were called to Bloomington Monday because of the death of Mrs. Frederick C. Woodworth, a cousin. Mrs. Woodworth was the former Mary Galloway of Pleasant Hill.

Superintendent Harold Voshall and school directors Warren Brown and Merle McLaughlin attended the annual joint meeting of the Illinois State School Board Association and the Illinois Association of School Administrators in Chicago recently.

CAR DAMAGED EARLY SATURDAY
A car was heavily damaged by fire in the 800 block of West Lafayette shortly before 7 o'clock Saturday morning. Mrs. Earl Smith of 810 West Lafayette attempted to start her auto which resulted in flames under the hood. Firemen used a booster line to extinguish the blaze. Extensive damage was reported to the engine and front of the vehicle.

SELF SERVICE—Things got slightly out of hand during a circus parade in Lima, Peru, when one of the star performers decided to take time out to sample the wares of a sidewalk candy vendor.

Rhodesia Seeks New 'Sister Schweitzer'

By MARGARET PARKER
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP)—The Dominican convent is scouring the world for a replacement for a doctor—known in Rhodesia as "Sister Schweitzer"—for her work among 50,000 Africans in the drought-stricken Chibambizi Reserve.

She is Sister Cecilia, who worked so hard for three years at St. Theresa's tiny bush hospital she had to be flown to Munich for a rest. Her story started, as far as Rhodesia is concerned, in 1957 when Mother Auxilia, the Dominican vicar-general in Salisbury, met her in Cologne.

"She had just escaped from East Germany, though she never gave us the details," said Mother Auxilia. "She had passed her medical finals at the Martin Luther University in Halle before her escape."

As a result of that meeting, Sister Cecilia came to Rhodesia, first to work at the Harari African Hospital in Salisbury. She impressed everyone with her surgical and medical skill and devotion to her patients. Then she took over St. Theresa's Hospital as the first and only doctor in the Chibambizi Reserve.

She worked from 7 a.m. until long after nightfall, 365 days a year. The hospital grew from its original 50 beds to 125 beds, but regularly has 175 patients at a time.

"We put mattresses on the floor and when we ran out of patient space we have to put two patients with the same disease into the same bed," said Mother Auxilia. "What the mortality rate must have been in the district before Sister Cecilia came we cannot imagine."

Sister Cecilia's fame soon spread. Africans came to stand or sit outside the hospital all night, waiting for her attention. Some were so weak that they were brought in 20 miles or more by wheelbarrow. Others walked up to 50 miles because they had such faith in her.

"Even the local witch doctor came for treatment and then announced he had to hurry back to see to his own patients," said Mother Auxilia.

Last year, the hospital had 4,016 admissions and 455 operations were performed by Sister Cecilia. Only 49 deaths from general causes were recorded at the hospital. There were 9,378 outpatients. Thousands were treated for tuberculosis, gastroenteritis, malnutrition, typhoid, malaria, and even measles.

But the strain on Sister Cecilia was too much. Often she would be operating and treating patients from dawn until after 7 p.m., and then be called out at night to treat the sick.

"She never stopped work," said Mother Auxilia. "When she visited us briefly in Salisbury last month she was thin and pale and had lost 30 pounds. A doctor said she must have a long rest or break down completely, so we thought it necessary to fly her home to Munich for a rest."

FREITAGS AT LABOR MEET IN SEATTLE

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Freitag of Jacksonville route three are attending the International Laborers' conventions at Seattle, Washington, San Francisco, California and Disneyland.

Mr. Freitag is vice president of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' Union which is affiliated with the AFL-CIO. The couple left from Springfield November 21. They were accompanied to the airport by Mr. and Mrs. Don Hardy and family of Winchester and Miss Sussie Freitag of Jacksonville.

DIVORCES GRANTED IN CIRCUIT COURT

Haiti's 'Papa Doc' Making Eyes At U.S. Tourist Dollars

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—"Papa Doc" is making come hither eyes at Americans. The Haitian dictator, formally known as Francois Duvalier, is going after tourist dollars.

Until very recently, Haiti was about as compelling a tourist attraction as the Dominican revolution next door. It has quieted down, possibly because the dictator has run out of local enemies.

"There hasn't been much noise since the last major opposition crisis in April 1963. He jailed 65 military officers who haven't been heard from since. He frightened scores of others into political exile.

With all its political shortcomings, Haiti still has a certain charm. Its drab capital, Port-au-Prince, is ringed by high, cool, green mountains alive with flowers of brilliant hues. A surfaced, serpentine road leads to mountain villages and some first-class hotels with sweeping views of the hot tropical floor below and the great turquoise bay.

Port-au-Prince itself, with its gingerbread architecture, has such attractions as the turreted maroon and green Iron Market with its vegetables of nearly every shape, hue and smell.

Duvalier this month decreed that the city should be cleaned up, especially in a downtown sector designated as a tourist zone where beggars will be forbidden.

Caribbean cruise lines have scheduled some 65 stopovers (mostly 24 hours or less) in Port-au-Prince for the October-April tourist season.

Hotels are mostly empty today, but there's hope. Negotiations are under way to bring American troops from the Dominican Republic on brief "rest and relaxation" trips—in civilian clothes.

Tourist promotion is expected to cost more than the $1.9 million estimated to have been spent in 1964. Merchants have been told that one campaign in the United States will cost $60,000 and that each must contribute no less than $150 to finance it.

Duvalier's political apparatus includes a well-armed civilian militia of 5,000 to confront any army dissidents and a legion of "ton ton macoutes," or security bullies, to keep restless civilians in line.

Until recently, some Haitians would greet each other with the remark, "Did you go to mass this morning?" or "Did you have a good cup of coffee this morning?"

This was the way a citizen learned if his neighbor heard the early morning anti-Duvalier shortwave broadcast originating in New York.

Inevitably, Papa Doc heard about the broadcasts. He had electric power cut off every morning at 6 for the length of the program.

This kind of plot-watching keeps Duvalier in business. His strength is reflected in the anemia plaguing his adversaries.

Much of his opposition now seems demoralized by conviction that Papa Doc will not be frightened into exile by political or economic pressures from inside or out, that an internal uprising appears as out of the question as a foreign-financed invasion.

The United States applied formidable pressures in the 1963 crisis, even assembled a task force offshore. Duvalier replied by booting out Ambassador William Thurston and members of the U.S. military mission.

When nothing else happened, the myth of Papa Doc's invulnerability acquired Olympian stature among his flock, who are about 85 per cent illiterate. The yearly income per inhabitant averages out at $70, down from $79 in 1955.

Businessmen, who can't close their shops for fear Duvalier will confiscate them, say that the amount of money sent by families abroad to relatives in Haiti exceeded national tourist income ($1.9 million) last year. With little to offer professionals or college graduates here, Haiti has a large family of talented people abroad.

University sources say that out of 264 medical graduates in the last 10 years, only 3 remain in the country. There are more Haitian doctors in Canada (250) than in all of Haiti outside the Port-Au-Prince area.

How does Papa Doc stay afloat?

The cost of running the government is carefully watched by the International Monetary Fund, which provides Haiti with a $4 million standby credit annually. When Papa Doc runs short of cash, he is allowed to borrow until his finances are squared away.

Government costs are paid for through myriad taxes on imports, sales and others that some local businessmen say would qualify as extortion in other countries.

The real Duvalier prop is the Haitian little man, who sells squash in the Iron Market or trudges miles uphill to Kenscoff for a load of fresh tomatoes and lettuce. He measures his life in two elements:

The invulnerability of Papa Doc to the wiles of the white and mulatto aristocracy, and in the rain that nourishes his subsistence crops.

DISTRICT GOVERNOR ADDRESSES LIONS AT DINNER MEETING

MEREDOSIA — Vernon K. Herchert, district Lions governor, was guest speaker at a recent dinner meeting of the Meredosia Lions club. Wives of the club members were also guests.

Mr. Herchert and his wife, residents of Worden, were introduced by Steven LaCroix, Meredosia Lions' president.

Mrs. Robert Lankin received the door prize, the centerpiece from the table was presented to Mrs. John Nortrup.

Visit Relatives, Friends Captain and Mrs. Tony Simon and their children, Tony Jr. and Lori Ann, visited friends and relatives here recently en route to Tinker Air Force Base, Okla., where Captain Simon will be stationed. Mrs. Simon's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Dawson Sr. of Meredosia.

CATCHING UP WITH THE AIR AGE—At least in Cleveland, Ohio, it's not going to be possible in the future to say that it takes longer to get to the airport than to fly to a distant city. The Ohio metropolis is soon to mark a first in the nation with direct rapid transit connections between airport and city center. When a four-mile extension of the present system is completed in 1967, Cleveland Hopkins Airport will be only 20 minutes from the heart of downtown. Elsewhere in the world, only Tokyo and Brussels have similar service. Sketch shows airport terminal, only a few steps away from check-in and baggage counters.

CARELESSNESS CAN DAMAGE EYES
Air pollution plays havoc with eyes. If you get something in your eye, do not rub it. This could scratch the cornea and do permanent damage. Try to remove the object by lifting the upper lid over the lower lid. Let tears wash your eyes clean. Then apply a soothing eye lotion to further bathe the eye clean.

Smith has put together a Cabinet which obviously thinks as he does. The minister of internal affairs, William J. Harper, was, like Smith, an officer in the Royal Air Force.

Lord Graham, the Duke of Montrose and a wartime destroyer captain, gave up his dual prerogatives in Scotland to farm in Rhodesia and is now minister of agriculture. He is a violent opponent of African nationalism and, with his aristocratic lineage, takes a paternalistic attitude toward African problems.

Clifford Dupont, deputy prime minister, has been named acting administrator to take the place of Gov. Sir Humphrey Gibbs. He formerly was a London lawyer and once boasted: "We can and will halt the wind of change."

On African Continent

Most Hated White Man Probably Ian Smith

By LYNN HEINZERLING
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Ian Smith has made himself perhaps the most hated white man on the African continent.

He is a 46-year-old cattle rancher and prime minister of Rhodesia. With one 20-minute speech Nov. 11, he tore this colony free of Britain, put the nation's economy in jeopardy and consigned Rhodesia's four million black people to a future of white domination.

To many of Rhodesia's 225,000 whites, he is a George Washington. To Africans caught up in the fever of black nationalism, he is a racist gone mad. Britain is a racist gone mad. Britain is a racist gone mad.

ain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson calls him "a frightened man."

Actually, he is none of these. Rhodesia's prime minister is an able and rugged individual who says he is doing what is best for the people of Rhodesia, black and white.

He is the product of a way of life which began developing in southern Africa when the first white man landed at Cape Town more than three centuries ago.

This white society's attitude toward the black man is a blend, in varying degrees of intensity, of paternalism, fear, pity and contempt.

In this society, the white man supplies brains, skills and money to build tidy cities, efficient railroads and large, flourishing farms. The black man supplied the cheap labor which made it possible.

In this part of the world few whites can be found with the honest conviction that a multiracial society of equals is possible.

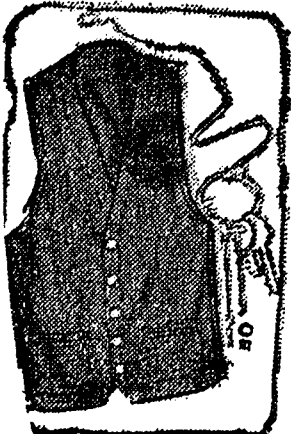

Smith, the son of a cattle rancher and butcher, was shot down twice as a British fighter pilot in World War II.

Back in Rhodesia, he entered politics. He resigned from the United party in 1961 after a constitutional conference increased African strength in Parliament to 15 seats out of 65.

At the root of Rhodesia's conflict with Britain has been the African demand for more seats, more voice in government. Britain sees this as the African's right. To Rhodesia's whites this means eventual black domination.

Poll Patterson For Possible Gas Customers

PATTERSON — Representatives of the Central Illinois Public Service Company were in Patterson Thursday, November 18th making a survey of home owners who might be interested in using natural gas, as there is a possibility of a gas line being extended here should enough people be interested.

The outcome of this survey is not known at this time. Mr. Henry Rufus went to Salem, Ill. the latter part of the week, where he met his brother, Mr. C. W. Rufus, of Vincennes, Indiana, who came on here for a visit with his brother, and sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Coker. Sunday being his birthday a dinner was held for him in Mrs. Coker's home, and others present were Mr. and Mrs. George Coker of St. Louis, and Mrs. Naomi Coker and Mrs. Raymond Coker and daughter Jennifer Ann of Jacksonville.

Birthday Dinner
A dinner was held Sunday in the home of Mrs. Nona Owdom, honoring her son Lyndell Owdom of Washington, Ill. whose birthday was the following day, November 22nd. Others present besides Mr. Owdom, his wife and four sons, Merle, Steve, Tom and Ron, were Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Owdom, children Mike, Michele, and Mark of Jacksonville, Bill Stewart of White Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hicks, children, Mary Jane, David, Sara and Neal. Mr. and Mrs. John Richmond and family of Mapleton were weekend visitors with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Dawdy and son Mike. Mr. and Mrs. Virgil DeVore of Wrights City, Missouri, were recent callers in the home of Mrs. Kathleen Barrow and family.

New Custodian
Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Eschbach and family, who have been residing the past 1½ years near Eldred, moved during the weekend to their home in the south part of town, and he assumed the duties of custodian at the Patterson School the first of the week, made vacant by the resignation of Leonard Ferguson, who with his family has moved to Jerseyville.

Mrs. Minnie Steelman spent the weekend in the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sellars near Winchester and on Sunday attended the wedding of her granddaughter, Linda A. Sellars and Alan Hudson of Manchester held at the First Baptist Church in Winchester with the reception at the Holiday Inn in Jacksonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stewart, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hicks are parents of a baby boy, born, November 20th at the White Hall Hospital. A first child the infant has been named Jeffrey William. The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stewart of White Hall and great grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Norville Hicks, Mrs. Nona Owdom and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Craddock.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Meek and son of Carrollton were Sunday evening visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ballard and family. Mrs. Brenda Gregory of White Hall, Mrs. Kathleen Barrow and Mrs. Keith Leonard were in Springfield Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Hubbard accompanied by her nieces, Irah and Irma Lewis of Roodhouse had dinner Sunday at the Cardinal Inn in Pittsfield. They were in Pittsfield by Mrs. Nita Reynolds.

Friday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fariell Bigham were Lewis Bunting of Hillview and Cleo Bunting of East Alton. Max Barrow, Rickey Shafer, Ronnie and Gordon Holmes attended a skating party, Tuesday night at White Hall for Dennis Fisher, who was observing his birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Dawdy were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Billy McCarthy and sons, David and Steve in White Hall.

Mrs. Thelma Wilkinson of Roodhouse was substitute teacher at the school the latter part of the week, replacing Miss Ella Black of Carrollton, whose brother-in-law, Clayton McLain of St. Louis had passed away.

Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Hubbard visited Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. George Fischbeck in Roodhouse.

BBC DECIDES FILM TOO HORRIFYING FOR TV
LONDON (AP)—The British Broadcasting Corp. Friday decided a film it made about the effects of a nuclear war on Britain is too horrifying for TV viewers.

The film, "The War Game," includes shots of badly burned bodies, hysterical men and women, and police executing civilians after a food riot.

The BBC has been in difficulties about the film ever since it was finished in August.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market lost a little ground for the third straight week as it continued last week to "consolidate" its latest advance to record highs.

Sentiment in Wall Street was cautiously optimistic, some analysts believing that the current setting-down process is laying the foundation for the traditional year-end rally.

Because of the closing of exchanges on Thanksgiving Day, the trading volume was cut. This was reflected by volume of 29,985,240 shares in the full five-day week previous.

The Dow Jones industrial average took a moderate loss of 1.36 at 948.16.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped 1.0 to 353.0, its third straight weekly decline.

The mildness of the decline was reflected by the fact that of 1,541 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, gainers outnumbered losers by 747 to 628, the decline in the averages was due to softness in several of the Blue Chips, the most widely-held stock of all, which are important components of the averages.

These big stocks are so heavily capitalized that the decline in their value far overshadows the changes in value of lesser stocks.

It was a paradoxical performance on the Big Board because

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP)—Prices in the butcher hog market advanced broadly last week with the top on three of the four trading days at their highest peaks in more than 11 years. For the week the market was $1-1.25 higher.

The first long-time high was $26.25 on Monday. It went to $26.50 on Wednesday and $27 on Friday. The market had not reached those peaks since June 1954. The best price in the previous week was $26.

The supply for the holiday week of 22,000 head compared with 29,000 for five days last week and the average price of $25.40 compared with 24.75 last week. A year ago it was $14.80.

Buyers noted that hog slaughter under federal inspection again was well below the same period last year.

In the cattle market, slaughter steers sold 25 to 50 cents higher until midweek but after the Thanksgiving holiday sales were steady to 50 cents lower. Steers in the trade were reported slaughtered under federal inspection continued at a high rate, in excess of 100,000 head a day. Average price of all grades was estimated at $20.40 up 15 cents from last week and almost $2 from a year ago.

Woolled slaughter lamb prices were strong to 50 cents higher, partly because of a stronger market in wholesale outlets.

ACROSS THE FIELDS AND FURROWS

Forage — An Important U.S. Crop

Here are a couple of quotations from a recent talk by Dr. Maurice Heath, Agronomy Department, Purdue University.

"Forage crops have occupied 'neglected acres' entirely too long on American farms. Fortunately today more and more people recognize bountiful food baskets."

Forages harvested as pasture, hay and silage represent the largest crop acreage in the United States. Forages provide about one half the feed for all the livestock in the U.S. Indirectly about one fourth of what you and I eat comes from forages, converted by animals to meat and milk.

From The Corn Crib! The hospital phone rang, and a very excited male voice exclaimed to the nurse, "I'm rushing my wife in to have a baby!"

"What a miracle!" the nurse said, "I've never heard of a husband rushing his wife in to have a baby!"

"No!" shouted the excited wife, "this is her husband!"

Across the Fields and Furrows is brought to you daily at 12:25 P.M. on WLD 5 1180 on your dial for the people at Elliott State Bank.

To Represent Scott NFO Unit At Convention

stocks fell on only one of the four sessions. The single decline was a whopper, however, and far outweighed the three sessions of cautious and slight advance.

On Monday the market took its worst setback in four months, with copper pricing the retreat. The rollback of the copper price increase, following so closely on the heels of the rescinding of the aluminum price hike, had a depressing effect.

The air of confidence in the national administration seemed to melt away as selling spread from the nonferrous metals into other stocks.

But rails broke through to historic highs in the Dow Jones average on Wednesday and defense stocks were spurred by increasing costs of the Viet Nam hostilities.

Bond markets turned in a mixed performance during the week, reflecting a mixture of contrary forces at work on such things as interest yields.

Treasury bond prices were stronger, corporate bond prices were mixed and municipal bond prices edged still lower.

Volume for the week totaled a par value of $54.72 million. Volume was reduced by the Thanksgiving holiday Thursday.

VFW Auxiliary Plans Holiday Parties For Vets

The Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1379 met Nov. 24 at the Post Home on East Morton Road. The meeting was conducted by President, Virginia Houston. A letter was read from Agnes McDevitt, a member of the Auxiliary, who has moved to Scottsdale, Arizona. The Auxiliary voted to send $35.00 to the Department of Illinois for a Christmas party for the veterans at the State Hospital.

Cigarettes and candy bars were passed out to the Jacksonville State Hospital veterans on November 11th. Adeline Warmonth, Department hospital chairman was assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Jones and Marjorie Hull, co-chairman. A number of parties during the holiday season were announced as follows: December 15th, party for female patients at the Jacksonville State Hospital, who are auxiliary related to veterans; Auxiliary 1379 will treat veterans at the State Hospital Tuesday evening, December 14; December 7, the Auxiliary will hold a sale for veteran patients who wish to purchase gifts to send to their families. Members will wrap and mail these packages for the veterans.

The next meeting will be December 8th, at which time, the early bird dinner will be served to those who have paid their 1966 dues. At this meeting, there will also be a $1.00 gift exchange and a white elephant sale, the proceeds to be used for the auxiliary cancer fund. All who plan to attend the dinner should make reservations not later than Dec. 6th by calling either 245-7487 or 245-8769.

DRIVER TICKETED ON PUBLIC SQUARE

Two cars sustained minor damage in an accident on the north side of the public square shortly before 1 a.m. Saturday. Harold R. Tribble, 501 West Greenwood, was ticketed for improper backing by investigating city police. Officers said Tribble backed his auto into the side of another vehicle driven by Dorothy L. Barfield of Route 1, Versailles. Both cars left the scene under their own power.

In England and Wales, soul cakes were baked about Oct. 28 to be distributed among the poor and eaten on All Souls' Day.

Soviets Open New Attack On Red China

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union accused Red China Sunday of hurting the cause of the Vietnamese Communists and helping the United States by Peking's refusal to form a united front with the Kremlin.

Pravda, Soviet Communist party newspaper, carried in its Sunday edition the hardest-hitting attack on the Red Chinese since the new Soviet leadership took over in October 1964.

"The developments of the last few months have shown convincingly that imperialism is trying to capitalize on the weakened unity of Communist ranks," Pravda said.

"Those who refuse to cooperate and turn down proposals for joint actions against the aggressors are hampering the struggle of the Vietnamese people and help the aggressor."

Earlier, Peking's New China News Agency gave prominent display to Albanian charges that the United States and the Soviet Union "are playing tricks behind the heroic Vietnamese people to strike dirty bargains" on Viet Nam.

Albania is regarded as Communist China's spokesman in the angry dialogue between the two Red camps.

The Peking report quoted a commentary in the Albanian newspaper Zeri i Popullit on the Moscow visit of U.S. Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic majority leader, and other senators, saying: "Their sessionary meetings are mere pretexts to the dirty tricks of the imperialists and the revisionists."

In Peking's view, the Soviet leaders are "revisionists" of Marxist-Leninist doctrine for espousing coexistence with the West.

The lengthy Pravda article was a fullscale defense of Soviet policies against the unrelenting Chinese criticism that began in the Khrushchev era.

The Pravda article seemed to mark a lapse of patience by the new Soviet regime in the dispute with China. But it remained to be seen whether the insults would flow between the two capitals as during the rule of former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

His successors, Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, have quietly been trying to patch up the Communist quarrel in behind-the-scenes meetings.

Narrow Grand Champion Steer Field To Nine

CHICAGO (AP)—The annual competition for Grand Champion Steer was narrowed Saturday to nine finely finished calves at the International Live Stock Exposition.

Prof. Herman Purdy of Pennsylvania State University picked the nine, representing the Aberdeen-Angus, shorthorn and hereford breeds, from nearly 650 steers entered in the 66th exposition.

On Monday Purdy will select the champion of each breed from three age groups and then name the Grand Champion Steer of the position.

Selection of the top steer is the high point of the big agricultural show that has drawn more than 8,000 cattle, sheep, swine and horses from 40 states and Canada to compete for prizes totaling $130,000.

Target, a 1,015 pound Aberdeen-Angus senior calf that was named Grand Champion Steer of the junior steer contest Friday moved into the open classes Saturday and took first place in his class. The junior show is restricted to farm folk under 20 years of age.

Target's victory in the open classes brought a glow of pride to his owner, 15-year-old Miriam Hullinger of Harris, Mo., who exhibited the shiny black in the show ring Friday.

Miss Hullinger's senior was picked for the junior grand championship from more than 300 animals shown. As the steer moved up in open class competition Saturday it won over 31 calves in the class for Angus senior calves.

On Monday Target will compete against Angus calves in the junior yearling and summer yearling classes for breed champion. If the steer wins that contest it will then compete against the shorthorn and hereford champions for grand champion of the entire exposition.

Junior exhibitors frequently have won the show's top steer award and amassed a harvest of cash in prizes and from sale of the animal.

Last year's Grand Champion Steer, a 1,050 pound Aberdeen-Angus shown by 15-year-old Janet Porting of Leroy, Ill., brought her $17,500, plus cash prizes, when the animal was sold.

The other steers still in competition for the coveted award include: a Hereford senior calf shown by Willard Leforch, Larry Mitchell and Frances Barry of Roseville, Ill.

Shorthorn senior calf, Donald Simons, Marcus, Iowa.

Aberdeen — Angus summer yearling, John Reel, 17, of Cousserville, Ill.

Postmaster Has Suggestions For Holiday Season

"Last Christmas the post office handled more mail than ever before, yet the operation was the most efficient in history," Postmaster Phillip Day said recently.

Nationally about 99 per cent of the Christmas mail reached its destination before Christmas Eve.

"ZIP Code use and the cooperation of the public in mailing early were the main reasons for our success. With the same or better cooperation this year, we expect to handle an even greater volume of mail with less effort than during the 1964 Christmas rush."

Mr. Day had advice which would help mailers prepare for the upcoming mailing season.

Update last year's address list and include ZIP Codes.

The phone book is usually a good source for local addresses.

Prepare a gift list as soon as possible. Shop early to take advantage of full stocks. Be sure to have on hand enough shipping materials boxes, tape, wrapping paper, etc.

Use first class postage on greeting cards. This assures their being forwarded if the recipient has moved or that undeliverable cards will be returned if a return address is on the envelope.

The postmaster emphasized again this year that poorly wrapped and loosely packed cartons are the major cause of parcel post damage. He urged that cartons be packed tightly by using stuffing material to fill up the empty space around the merchandise. He also asked that all mailers make an effort to address their letters, cards and packages as clearly as possible and that they make every attempt to mail often, not waiting until the last minute to deposit all their gifts and greetings.

Find Most Of Vatican Robbery Loot

the precious goods — the two manuscripts, a copy of the crown of the Hungarian king St. Stephen, and a crystal box containing an assassinated 10th century Ecuadorian president's speech.

The recoveries were made less than 24 hours after the spectacular burglary.

Police combing the field eight miles north of Rome found the crown, a replica of the one with which Stephen was crowned in the year 1000. It was in another tin can. Police said the crown's embedded jewels, fragments of emerald and ruby, had been dried out and were gone. Their commercial value was said to be scant.

There was no sign of the crystal box or its contents — the speech that President Garcia Moreno of Ecuador had in his hand when he was assassinated in 1885. It had been given to the Vatican.

50 Mile An Hour Winds, Rain Hit City, Area Friday

A squall line with winds clocked at 50-miles-per hour moved through the Jacksonville area shortly after four o'clock Friday afternoon causing isolated power failures and inconvenience to motorists due to blocked streets.

Tree limbs fell in several sections of the city. Utility crews were kept busy repairing wires snapped by the falling branches.

City police reported no injuries resulting from the brief storm period although the same storm center caused at least four tornadoes in other sections of the state.

An unidentified man was trapped in the cab of his truck at the intersection of Dunlap and North East Streets when falling utility lines came to rest across the vehicle. He was quickly rescued from the potential danger spot by the emergency line crews. Firemen stood by until the man was removed in case of fire.

A large Christmas tree at Lincoln Square shopping center

was blown over by the force of the wind. City linemen disconnected the wires and moved to other trouble spots. The tree was repaired after other service had been restored to normal.

A tree blocked one lane of traffic on U.S. 67, five miles north of Jacksonville. A crew from the State highway department was dispatched to the scene and cut the tree into sections. State police directed traffic at the scene and reported no accidents.

Property damage was at a minimum according to city police reports.

France Beaming About Successful Satellite Launch

PARIS (AP)—Frenchmen beamed with pride Saturday about their satellite, even though its voice has dwindled to almost nothing.

The simply made 92.5-pound satellite went into orbit Friday in a test of the three-stage Diamant missile and the French tracking network. Both are reported to have performed without a hitch.

"France is the Third Space Power," said headlines in Le Monde, with the latter adding inside, "ahead of Britain and Japan."

Former Cub Star, El Tappe, Speaks At Carrollton

CARROLLTON — El Tappe of Quincy was the guest speaker at the annual banquet honoring the 1965 football team of the Carrollton Community Unit High School Saturday at 6:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria. Tappe, who is now manager of a sporting goods store, is a former catcher and manager of the Chicago Cubs. His talk centered around the academic achievements which are now necessary for a youth to achieve great things in the athletic field. He encouraged the boys to keep their grades up if they intended going to college and participating in sports as only the youths with the high grades are considered in college at the present time.

Awards Gerald Dittman, the high school coach presented the awards for the year following the address of the speaker.

Bob Roads, son of Mayor and Mrs. Alan Roads was selected as winner of the outstanding player award this year. Mike Gillingham, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gillingham Jr., David Hindelang, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hindelang, Howard Howard Jr., were elected tri-captains for the 1966 season.

Three year letter winners were Bob Roads and Joe Davidson and a two year letter winner was Bruce Carter. Earning their first letter were Joe Schnelten, Dave Barnett, Mel Diehl, Mike Clark, Mike Gilling-ham, Dan Hindelang, Dave Hindelang, Dan Howard, Randy Short, John Hillig, Tim Moulton, Mike Price, Lon Smith, Rich Stendebach and Ron Stuart.

Numerals were awarded to John Anderson, Steve Berry, Chris Bertman, Rich Booth, Dennis Byland, Bob Carmody, Dan Childress, Andy Daum, Mark Frech, Mike Griffin, John Lake, John Neubauer and Kevin Price.

The program closed with the showing of movies of the Carrollton football team in action during the games played this year.

HOME COMING SET FOR DECEMBER 3, 4 AT NORTH GREENE

WHITE HALL — Annual homecoming festivities at North Greene High School will be held December 3 and 4.

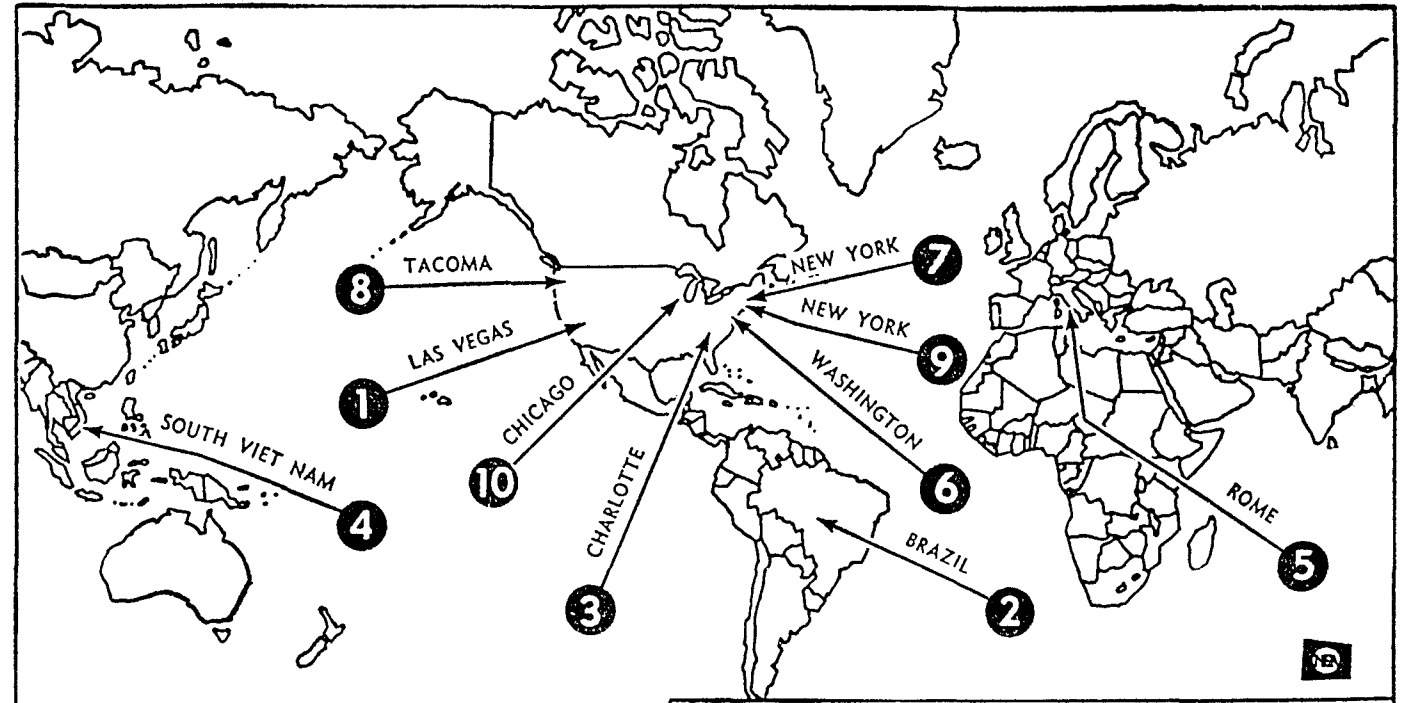

The school will be open for visitation after 1 p.m. December 3. Visitors are also invited to the pep assembly to be held at 3 p.m. At 3:45 p.m. the Alumni Faculty Tea will be served in the school cafeteria.

Friday evening will feature the opening basketball game of the season between North Greene Spartans and the Brown County Hornets. California Man Seriously Hurt West Of Town

A Redding, Calif. man was reported in fair condition by a hospital spokesman Saturday night where he was recovering from serious injuries sustained in a one-car accident four miles west of Jacksonville on Ill. 104 Friday afternoon.

Passavant hospital authorities identified the man as Jerry Clark, 21, of Redding, Calif. He sustained a deep laceration to his left side in the accident.

State police reported that Clark lost control of his west-bound auto. The car skidded into a ditch, became airborne for 30 feet before striking a tree.

Clark was apparently thrown through the windshield of the car and landed 50 feet from his car.

He was taken to the hospital by ambulance. His car was considered demolished. Police listed the time of the accident as 4:16 p.m.

J. R. Mayberry Retires After 20 Years Duty

FORT CARSON, Col. — "More sea duty than some sailors, a medic that drilled the Infantry," is the way Staff Sergeant Joseph R. Mayberry sums up his Army career as he retires from active duty with 20 years service.

S. Sgt. Mayberry

In retirement ceremonies at Fort Carson's ceremonial field Nov. 30, Mayberry will receive the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service with the 7th Engineer Battalion.

At the age of 18 the son of Mrs. Althea Mayberry, 825 N. Diamond street, Jacksonville, Ill., Mayberry entered the Army in 1944.

After basic training at Fort Sheridan, Ill., he entered World War II with the 26th Infantry Division in Europe.

Returning to the U.S. in 1946 he was discharged from active duty and returned to his former job as welder with the Wabash Railroad.

In 1947 he enlisted in the Army and joined the Army Air Corps for the Berlin Air lift. When the Air Corps became the modern Air Force, Mayberry elected to remain in the Army and was transferred to Camp Carson, Colorado.

At the outbreak of the Korean conflict orders sent him to Europe tour of duty, before coming to his final assignment at Fort Carson.

Mayberry, his wife, the former Mary Brown, daughter of Mrs. Mary L. Blaydon 19 Guam Rd., Chelsea, Mass. and their children will retire in the Boston area.

They are living at 1810 Security Blvd., Security, Colo.

A RECORD BOOK

You need not look up reams of old records, consult newspaper files or call sports editors. Should you desire any choice bit of info from the sports world, past or present, we suggest you consult one of our favorite "characters," if you can find him.

The trouble with "Ole J. W.," a part (a large part we suspect) of his stands border more on the emotional than factual side.

"Ole J. W." was right on schedule after last Monday's Clay-Patterson showing. Passing judgement at the local "press club," J. W. just flatly refused to believe "the great one" could have stayed more than a round or two with "the real champions" of the past.

You see, J. W. is one of those few who believe that the world's sports stars of today are "minor leaguers" as compared to the oldtimers; the particular sport doesn't matter.

"That loud-mouthed so-and-so should be ashamed to even think he would be allowed in the same ring with Louis or Marciano. Now there were some real fighters," charges J. W.

Moving down a stool to accommodate an interested newcomer, J. W. goes on, "I saw them all. They just don't make them the way they used to. Why, 'The Rock' would have had him (Clay) talking, but to himself."

"But it's all just as I've always said, the oldtimers had it all over these youngsters we have today. You take Cobb, Grange, Mikus, Owens and the like. They would be in a league all their own now." (It doesn't make any impression on J. W. when told times, records and performances of these oldtimers of yesteryear are no longer anywhere on the record books, or that today's athletes are bigger, faster and better-trained.)

J. W. also disagrees with today's doctors and physiologists who contend, with figures to back them up, that the human race has and will continue to improve physically, and therefore there is no end in sight to what tomorrow's athletes will do. Such things as 100-yard dashes in under nine seconds, 4:40 miles, etc., are foreseen, but this fellow can't see it.

"The oldtimers tried harder, had more determination and never quit. That's more important than being bigger or faster," contends our expert. "It's too bad you young whippersnappers couldn't have seen Louis or Marciano. Rock would have taken him with no trouble at all." (Marciano's comment after Monday's fight, I would like to have fought Clay, we would have had a good fight.)

More about Ole J. W. later.

Here 'N' There: It now appears that the Illinois College-Culver-Stockton basketball game, originally scheduled for Tuesday night, will be played Thursday, although the date is not definite. The game was postponed the past week when long-time Culver coach W. A. (Bill) Herrington died Thursday. The game will be played in Canton, Mo.

The Harlem Globetrotters will appear in Jacksonville New Year's Eve, sponsored by the local Police Benevolent Association, Unit 25, composed of all local police officers.

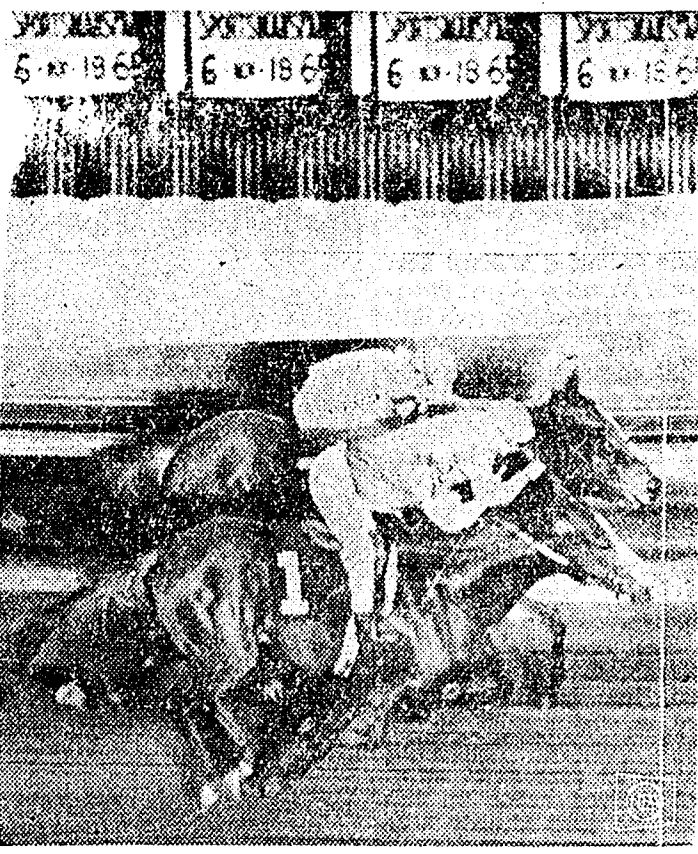

Plans as of a few days ago called for the first unit of the Trotters, a 40-piece Yugoslavian dance group and ageless baseball personality Satchel Paige to appear in a two-hour show at the JHS Bowl.

According to Trotters advance men, this is one of the few, if not the first, times that the first team of the world-traveling basketball wizards has appeared in a town this size for years. They will be stopping off in Jacksonville between dates at St. Louis and Rock Island.

Local basketball gets underway in a big first week in Jacksonville this week. Six games are on tap for city fans, with all three prep and both college outfits playing home dates this week.

Two of the most recent college coaching changes point out the big part winning football games plays in college circles. The University of Iowa recently handed coach Jerry Burns the pink slip, before the last game of the season (a somewhat confusing move). The Hawkeyes were 0-7 in Big Ten play. Meanwhile, Duke coach Bill Murray announced right after his Blue Devils had wrapped up a winning but not overly successful year, that he had had enough. Winning at least gave him the right to call his shot.

The YMCA Basketball league, we're afraid, is going to fall below expected success soon if a couple of changes aren't made. Original plans were to have one registered official work the games with another official from one of the teams not playing. No registered officials have worked yet. We understand that league officials have contacted several registered referees in town, but none will agree to help. The pay is not what they receive for working high school and college games. The other beef from this corner is that a few, very few, of the players who act like "self-appointed comedians" at times. True, this is not high-pressure competition, but much of this clowning and interest is sure to fall off.

TRIPLE TIE—This is the first triple dead heat to win at Sportsman's Park. It is the second such triple tie in Illinois thoroughbred racing history. The horses finishing nose and nose in the 6-furlong sprint for 2-year-olds are Paddy O'Rock 1, Anthony Skronski up, Miss Brandy, middle, ridden by Juan Dominguez, and Me Willin, on the rail, with Robert Gaffigne in the saddle.

Garrett Erases
Rushing Record

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Halfback Mike Garrett closed out his football career at the University of Southern California Saturday — setting a national collegiate rushing record to go along with his Heisman Trophy — as the Trojans smothered Wyoming 56-6.

Garrett was given a standing ovation twice during the game by the crowd of 39,233 in Memorial Coliseum.

The first ovation came on the first play of the second quarter when Garrett slammed out a four-yard gain.

It gave him a three-year total rushing mark of 3,168 and broke the record of 3,166 set by Ollie Matson of the University of San Francisco in 1949-50-51.

He carried the ball 24 times and gained 112 yards for a record 3,221 yards.

The second ovation came when Coach John McKay drew his seniors in the closing minute. Garrett was the last one to leave.

Garrett scored three touchdowns on bursts of two or less yards and hurled a scoring strike 30 yards to Dave Moton. Wyoming 0 0 0 6-6 USC 7 35 7 7-56

Big Ten Basketball Teams Begin Action

CHICAGO (AP)—The Big Ten basketball season crashes onto the sports scene next week with conference teams embroiled in 19 games.

Round one is Wednesday night with Ohio State at Missouri, Butler at Illinois, St. Joseph's (Ind.) at Indiana, Tennessee at Michigan, North Dakota at Minnesota and Nebraska at Wisconsin.

On Thursday, Iowa opens by entertaining Pepperdine and Purdue makes its start at home against Virginia Poly.

Illinois and Ohio State point westward Friday, stopping at Brigham Young and UCLA, respectively.

Saturday's slate is loaded with intersectional traffic. Notre Dame is at Wisconsin, Bowling Green at Michigan, Western Michigan at Michigan State, Iowa State at Minnesota, Ohio U. at Northwestern, Detroit at Purdue, Illinois at UCLA, Indiana at Oklahoma and Iowa at Evansville.

In addition the area's big independents are busy with this schedule: Wednesday — Illinois Wesleyan at DePaul, Lewis at Notre Dame, U. of Windsor at Loyola and Wisconsin-Milwaukee at Bradley; Saturday — DePaul at Marquette, Northeast Missouri at Loyola and Northern Michigan at Bradley.

Three Contenders

Defending champion Michigan, Iowa and Minnesota generally are regarded the Big Ten leading contenders. The Wolverines lost Bill Buntin but Cazzie Russell returns with eight other lettermen, including 6-foot-10 Craig Dill and consistent scorer Oliver Darden.

Iowa bristles with four starters including Chris Pervall (507 points) and George Peeples (409) plus a pair of prize sophomores, Dick Agnew and Huston Breedlove.

Mel Northway is gone from Minnesota and Don Yates didn't make it academically. But Archie Clark and Lou Hudson return. Tom Kondla, 6-3, will replace Northway.

Four starters are back at Northwestern, a team that has great rebounding. Mike Waver, 6-5 rookie, could become a starter which also includes Jim Pitts, Walt Tiberti and Ron Kozicki. Dave Schellhase leads Purdue, whose new coach is George King. Illinois and Indiana are rebuilding. Michigan State, Wisconsin and Ohio State expect improvement but not enough to take it all.

Franklin Takes
48-35 Hoop Edge

FRANKLIN — A 21-point effort by Bluffs guard Wendy Sapp proved to be not enough here Saturday night, as the Franklin Flashes downed the Bluejays by a 48-35 margin.

Sapp recorded 12 points in the second half of play, keeping the visitors in contention until midway through the fourth period when the Flashes ran their earlier five to seven point bulge into a 15 point advantage. Darryl Smith paced the local scorers with 17 for the night.

The win moves Franklin to a 1-1 mark for the campaign, while Bluffs stands 0-1.

The closely-matched hands saw the lead change throughout the contest, with Hannibal entering the closing seconds with a two-point lead. Bruce, g 1 0 2 Sapp, g 8 5 21

Associated Press Sports Writer

The UCLA Bruins, defending national champions, were picked Saturday as the No. 1 team in the pre-season Associated Press college basketball poll for the new campaign opening Wednesday.

The charges of Coach Johnny Wooden, who will be trying for an unprecedented third straight NCAA title, beat out the Michigan Wolverines in the annual poll by an AP panel of 30 sports-writers and broadcasters.

A year ago Michigan edged UCLA for the No. 1 spot in the pre-season poll but lost to UCLA in the NCAA championship final last March.

The teams again dominated this year's poll with UCLA getting 22 of the 30 first place votes to Michigan's four. The Bruins collected a total of 287 points on the basis of 104-94-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 through 10 places to Michigan's 248.

Duke Picked Third The Duke Blue Devils edged the St. Joseph Hawks of Philadelphia for third place with 154 points to 150. The Blue Devils and the Hawks each received two first place votes. Vanderbilt, the only other team to get more than 100 points, landed fifth place with 133.

Rounding out the pre-season Top Ten, in order, were Providence, Minnesota, Kansas, Bradley and Kansas State. Providence had 97 points, Minnesota 82, Kansas 80, Bradley 74 and Kansas State 46.

Eight of the pre-season Top Ten open the season Wednesday. Tennessee is at Michigan, Milwaukee-Wisconsin at Bradley, North Dakota at Minnesota, Wittenberg at Vanderbilt, Hofstra at St. Joseph's, Kansas State at Creighton, Arkansas at Kansas and Virginia Tech meeting Duke at Greensboro, N.C.

UCLA opens at home Friday against Ohio State and on Saturday entertains Illinois.

Other Saturday games, involving the Top Ten, are Villanova at Providence, Kansas at Texas Tech, Iowa State at Minnesota, Tulsa at Kansas State, Northern Michigan at Bradley, Bowling Green at Michigan, Clemson at Duke and St. Joseph's vs. Fairfield at New Haven, Conn.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (NEA) — One of the unpublicized facets of Cassius (Ali) Babbie's stay in Las Vegas was his visit to a school for retarded children. And one little guy wanted to know, "Mr. Ali, is it all right for little boys to beat up little girls?" The heavyweight champion, unfazed, answered, "No, because the only way to do right is to be nice to people."

It's advice, oddly, that he himself can't apply because of the arrogant face he projects to the public. As he admitted in a postfight confession, "I have ways of humiliating people." And don't kid yourself, the boing that greets his every appearance in a ring is beginning to get to him. His plaint to the press:

"It looks like you should love a man like me," a minute after he spluttered, "I don't expect to get no justice in my greatness."

When the career of Ali Babbie is chronicled, they'll have to tell how Angelo Dundee, his manager, saved it when he refused to cut Clay's gloves in Miami and physically, by the seat of the pants, shoved him back into the center of the ring when Ali wanted to quit.

Angelo walks a tightrope in his relations with the champion because of the ticklish Black Muslim connections. Most rabid Muslim in the Clay camp is his brother, Rudolph Valentino Clay. One day he came whooping up to Angelo and blurted breathlessly: "I got wonderful news." "Yeah," shrugged Angelo, who had some training camp problems. "Great thing happened to me today," continued Rudy. "I'm now Rahaman Ali." "Yeah," nodded Dundee, "wonderful."

Dundee, incidentally, once had five champs in different divisions under his wing at one time: Clay, Willie Pastrano (light heavy), Luis Rodriguez (welterweight), Ralph Dupas (junior welter) and Sugar Ramos (featherweight).

Grote Ices 46-45
Pittsfield Win

PITTSFIELD — Jim Grote's three-point play with four seconds left in the game pulled Pittsfield from behind to a slim 46-45 season-opening basketball victory over Hannibal, Mo., here Saturday night.

The closely-matched hands saw the lead change throughout the contest, with Hannibal entering the closing seconds with a two-point lead. Grote connected with four seconds left on the clock and then hit a resulting free throw to break the tie and give the maker, and spent 20 minutes telling him how he could have liked Joe Louis. Just about the time he let up for air, Louis walked into the room. "Here," said Markson, pointing to Joe, "tell him."

For a man with a bad back, Floyd Patterson has a ridiculous training exercise, sitting on a tilt board with his legs at an elevated angle and doing situps from that straining position. Rocky Marciano recalled that he had a bad back, too, at one point in his career, "about the 15th or 16th fight," that he'd been for a month. "But it went away mysteriously," he said. "I just was lucky."

Patterson came away strange, unconvinced of Clay's superiority. "Regardless of the results," he said, "I'm faster. I learned that." That's a departure from his usual self-effacement. "As it turned out," he continued sadly, "I didn't get much else out of the fight."

What about a nice hunk of money? He pointed to his heart: "It's what's here that counts."

Strangely absent from the fight scene is Archie Moore, the old mongOOSE, who has changed his career base from San Diego and is now conducting a boy's boxing program in Vallejo, Calif.

Between you'n'me, isn't it about time for Clay to cut out from his Louisville group as sponsors? And wouldn't he like his next fight to be in Washington, a Muslim stronghold, though Chicago is more likely if Ernie Terrell is the opponent?

Not because he was being sent to play for the worst team in baseball, or because he was ending 17 years in the St. Louis Cardinal organization, or because he had to hear of the trade from a newspaperman and not the Cardinal front office.

He's concerned about five other people.

"My family was my first consideration," said Boyer softly, remembering the October day he learned he was being sent to the New York Mets, of all teams, for third baseman Charlie Smith and pitcher Al Jackson.

"I have a wife and four kids—five lives I'm responsible for," the third baseman explained. "You can't help being a little upset when you know this trade affects them as much as it does you."

"Ballplayers all know they face the possibility of being traded someday," Ken said. "Everybody knows that, because every time any player is traded you can read that line in a paper somewhere."

"But how can you prepare for something like that? You can't, especially with a family, so when it comes you just have to make do."

For Ken Boyer "making do" wasn't so simple. When word of the trade came, Boyer was home in a suburb of St. Louis with his 13-year-old son, "Not thinking, I just blurted out the news to her, and then she blurted out—crying."

Say Huddle
In Pro Ball
On Way Out

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

When the Houston Oilers go back in their huddle Sunday don't be surprised if time is called and the water boy rushes out with 11 cups and a pot of coffee.

For like the flying wedge and the drop kick, the huddle is becoming obsolete — at least in professional football.

That's the thought of Houston Coach Hugh (Bones) Taylor, who frankly admits:

"Our huddle serves mostly like a coffee break. It gives the quarterback time to collect his thoughts."

Taylor's contention that the huddle, as it now is used, is on the way out stems from the growing use of pro football's latest offensive technique—the so-called automatic, audible or check-off call.

All three terms are applied to the maneuver in which the quarterback comes to the line of scrimmage and then changes the play originally called in the huddle in order to combat the defensive alignment.

Taylor, who recalls the days when audibles were called by using colors as the key words—his favorites were lavender blue and chartreuse—put the simplified audible system together when he took over the club this season.

Jet Coach Agrees

New York Jets coach Weeb Ewbank, whose Jets meet Boston in the only other game on Sunday's American Football League program, agreed that the quarterback can't turn his back on the defense any more.

"I send in plays occasionally," Ewbank explained. "But I can't get mad if my quarterback doesn't use them. There are too many defenses today."

"You tend in a play to face a certain formation and it changes as soon as your team finishes huddling. So the quarterback has to check off and call his own play anyway."

Ewbank's check-off caller is Joe Namath, who passed for four touchdowns against the Oilers last week and led the Jets to their fourth straight victory and into second place in the Eastern Division. The Jets will be out to even their record at 5-1 against the Patriots.

The Patriots tied Kansas City last week when veteran quarterback Babe Parilli engineered an 80-yard drive in the last quarter. Boston still is bogged down, however, because of the lack of a consistent running attack to complement Parilli's passing.

Mac Takes Third

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

HIRAM, Ohio — MacMurray's highly-touted wrestling squad made their 1965-66 mat debut an impressive one here Saturday, finishing third in the nine-team Hiram Invitational Tournament.

Pacing the high finish was a heavyweight Bob Kellogg's first, and seconds by Paul Nelson at 152 and Gary Henning at 160. The clan also garnered three thirds and two fourths.

Clarion State College of Pennsylvania won the meet with a total of 98 points, followed by host Hiram College with 78 and MacMurray with 60.

Clarion won two first, at 117 and 191, Hiram, two at 130 and 160. Miami of Ohio took three firsts, Ohio University, Edinboro State of Penn. and MacMurray each earned one first.

Behind Kellogg's first and the seconds by Nelson and Henning, Clansmen taking thirds were John Crundland at 117, John Smith at 123 and Roger Furgerson at 145.

Ron Otto, at 137, and Rich Johnson, at 130, garnered fourths for the young Highlanders.

The order of finish with scores: Clarion State College of Pennsylvania 98, Hiram, Ohio 78, MacMurray 60, Miami of Ohio 54, Edinboro State College of Pennsylvania and Rochester Institute of New York 22 (tie), Ohio University 21, West Virginia University 10, Slippery Rock State College of Pennsylvania 4.

Balyki Opens Year With 55-46 Win Over Havana

HAVANA — Balyki won a 55-46 basketball game from Havana here Saturday evening, with their accuracy from the 15-foot mark. The winners connected on 19 of 23 charity throws to offset a field goal deficit.

Havana's 11-9 first-quarter lead vanished at half and the eventual winners sewed the game up with a 17-10 margin in the final eight minutes.

Havana managed only half of their 19 free throws, and connected on only 29% of their shots from the field. Balyki hit a respectable 35% of their attempts.

Havana is now 0-2, while Balyki is 1-0.

Watt - Hazelwood

A nuptial mass Saturday morning, November twelfth united in marriage Miss Judith Kay Hazelwood and David Paul Watt of this city. The Reverend James Caldwell performed the double ring ceremony at Church of Our Saviour.

Large white mums and ferns were used at the altar. Mrs. Alta Eisch was at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Harold Walker.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martelle Hazelwood, 721 Hardin avenue and the groom is the son of the Paul Watts, 1648 South East street.

Miss Mary Reavy was the bride's maid of honor and Miss Peggy Phalen and Miss Denise Jacques were bridesmaids. Teresa McGrath, cousin of the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McGrath of Springfield, was flower girl and wore a white dotted Swiss frock.

Robert Watt of Waverly attended his brother as best man. Howard Enke, Meredosa and Norman Staff were groomsmen. Ushers were Robert Souza of Peoria and Arthur Strawn of Alexander.

Charles Vanter, a cousin of the bride, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vanter, was ringbearer.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of French designed Chantillace and taffeta with cutaway overskirt falling en-train. A crown of pearls held her blusher veil of illusion and she carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations with English Ivy. The bride's only ornament was a black jet cameo necklace, worn by her maternal great grandmother, the late Sarah Connolly Begnal, at her wedding.

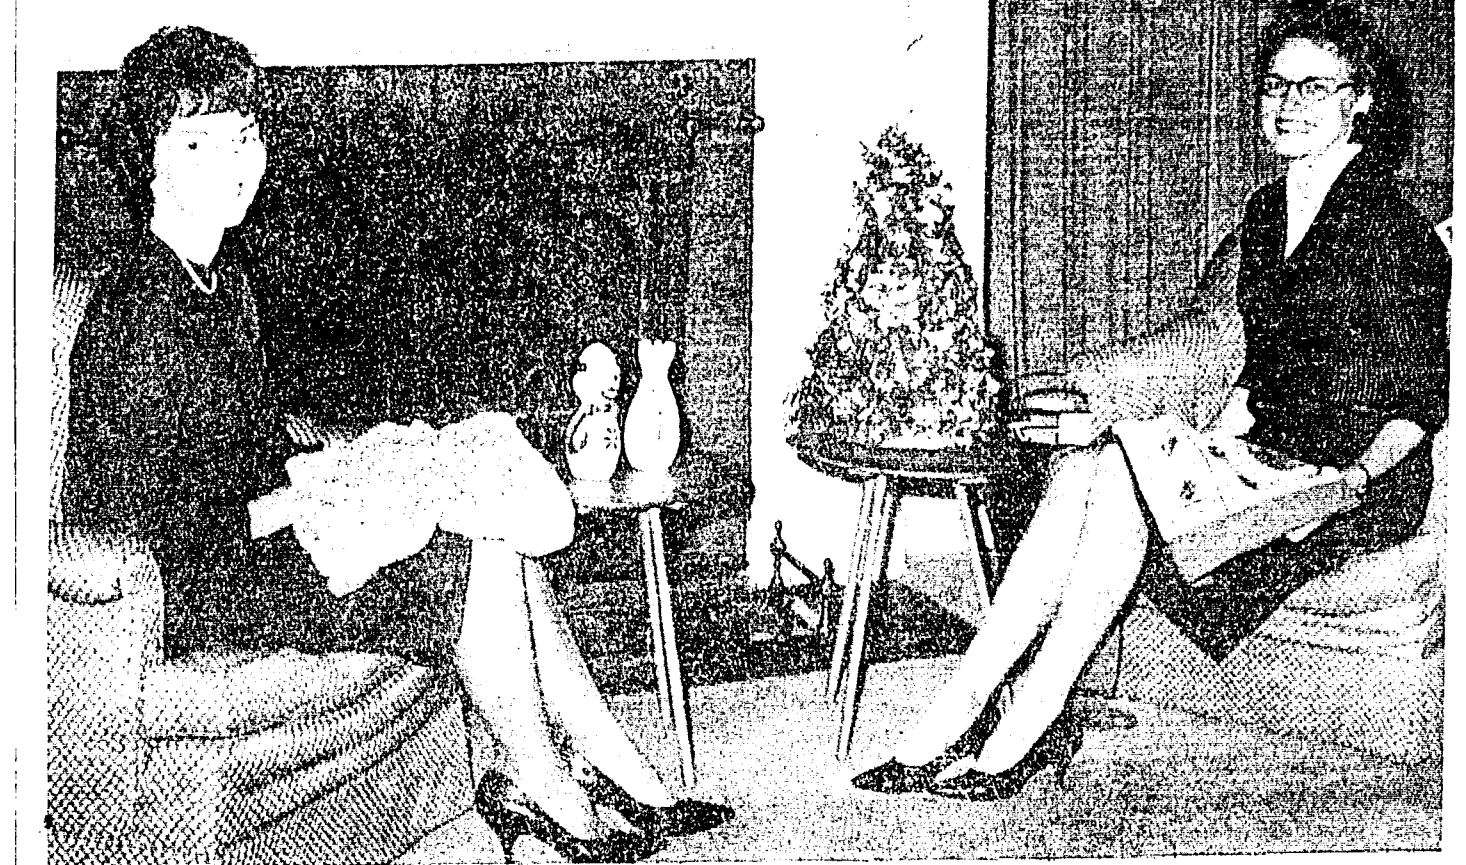

The bride's attendants were gowned alike in floor length red velvet gowns and matching headpieces. They carried white fur muffs affixed with corsages of red carnations.

The mother of the bride wore a white orlon knit with satin trim costume. Her accessories were Loden green. The mother of the groom chose beige lace with brown accessories. Both wore corsages of red carnations.

At the reception held at the Amvet Hall the following assisted: Linda Vanter, Peggy McGrath of Springfield, Mrs. Gary Whewell of Winchester, all cousins of the bride and Jeanette Reavy, Susan Hatala and Mrs. Norman Staff.

Other guests attended from the state of Wisconsin, Warsaw, East Moline, Decatur, Taylorville, Springfield, Alton, Wood River, Peoria, Waverly, Murrayville and Winchester.

Holy Cross Gift Tea To Be Next Thursday

Last minute preparations are underway by the many committees working toward this year's Christmas Gift Tea, being sponsored next Thursday, Dec. 2nd, by the Auxiliary of Holy Cross Hospital. The social event will be held at the J. D. Klump Home, 3 Duane Place, from one-thirty to four o'clock in the afternoon. All members and friends of the Auxiliary are welcome.

Above are two members of the Auxiliary, Mrs. Therron Scobie, left and Mrs. Willard (Bill) Ranson. Mrs. Scobie holds a hand made sweater which will be among items at the bazaar and Mrs. Ranson is admiring attractive aprons. The clever snack or cocktail tables were made by Mrs. Paul Hartley and with other gift items, will be available at the gift tea.

Below the hostess for the Tea, Mrs. J. D. Klump, at right, receives some gift items from the Auxiliary president, Mrs. Verne Bergschneider, center and Mrs. Cloyd Schumm, bringing some early donations.

A highlight of the afternoon will be the presenting of the handsome 21 inch color television console. Donations at 35 cents each, or three for one dollar are still being received at the Coffee Shop.

Members are reminded to have their books and money turned in to the Coffee Shop before Thursday or bring very early to the Tea on Dec. 2nd. There will be home-made pastries and holiday foods also offered for sale at the tea. Members are providing the delicacies for the food booth.

Soroptimists To Sell Fruit Cakes

The Soroptimist Club held its November business meeting at the home of Mrs. Alta Henry, Edgell Road, with Miss Bernadine Bush serving as co-hostess.

The president, Mrs. Ruth Howard, presided. The club voted to send a donation to Pathway School. Miss Hazel Graves was appointed to edit two club bulletins. A report was given by Mrs. Alta Henry on the Jacksonville cleanup meeting.

Mrs. Willa Phillips, international goodwill and understanding chairman, reported that the club has a sister club in Costa Rica. Plans were made for Christmas contact.

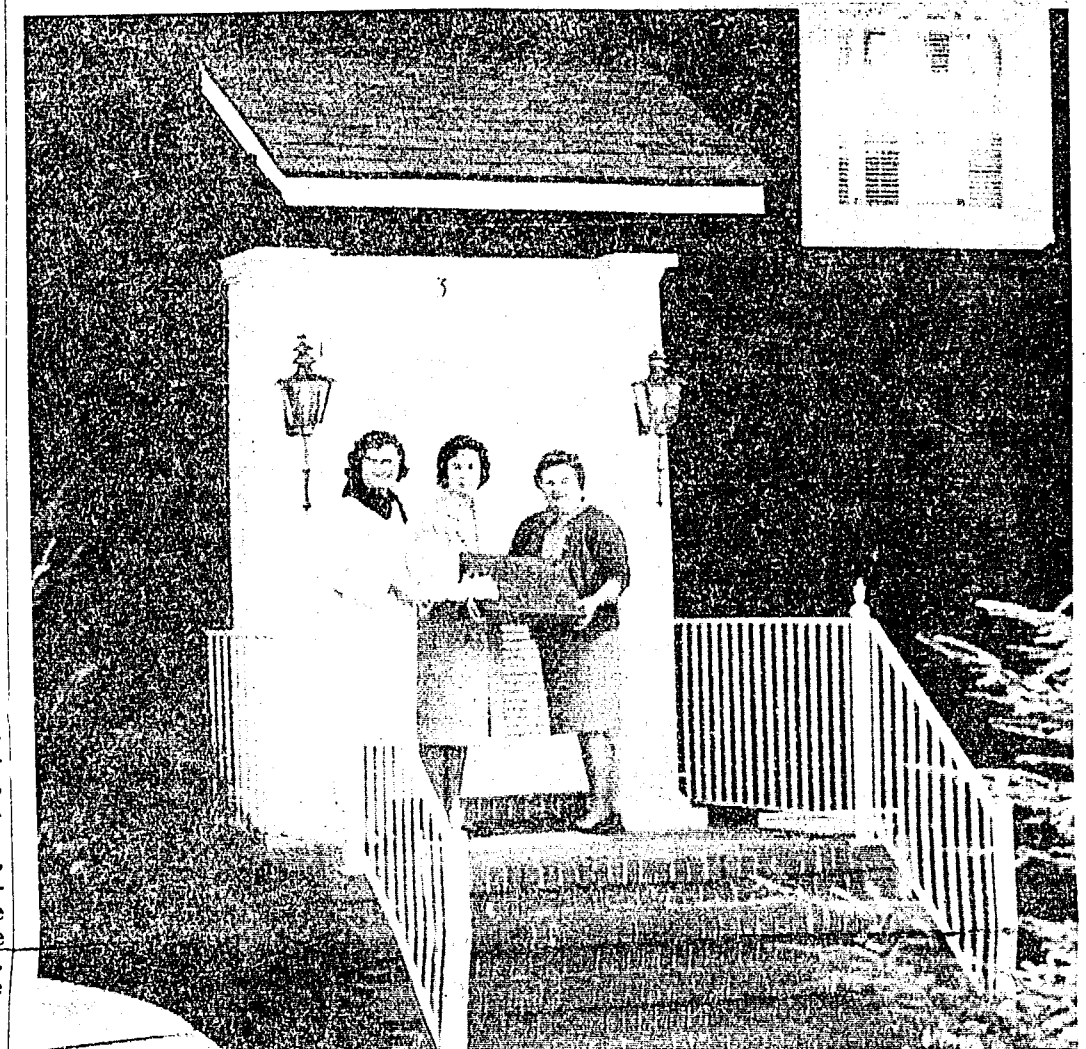

Chairman of the ways and means committee, Mrs. Dorothy Hess, reported on the fruit cakes. The annual Christmas party will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. Ruth Howard. A gift exchange will be held.

The members selected a Christmas project to be given to a student at the Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School.

Routt High School in 1964 and is employed in the accounting department at General Telephone Company. The groom graduated from Volkswagen Apprentice Training Center, Import Motors, Inc., Chicago and is employed by Reeve Volkswagen, Inc.

Among the special guests were the grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. McGrath, Jacksonville and Mrs. Dorothy Hazelwood, East Moline and Edward Hazelwood, Ashland and the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Eymann of Warsaw.

Other guests attended from the state of Wisconsin, Warsaw, East Moline, Decatur, Taylorville, Springfield, Alton, Wood River, Peoria, Waverly, Murrayville and Winchester.

Delta Theta Tau Chapter Reviews Season

Delta Nu Chapter of Delta Theta Tau Sorority International, under the direction of Mrs. R. J. Little, president has been a busy group.

A rummage sale was held in October which reaped a tidy sum to go into the Philanthropic Fund. In charge of the sale was the "ways and means committee," headed by Mrs. William Hoffmann. On Saturday, Nov. 5th a Country Store was held with homemade candy, spaghetti sauces, salad dressings, etc., sold. The funds received from these projects all go into the Philanthropic Fund and at a later date it will be spent where it is needed the most.

On Monday, Nov. 8th the chapter met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Daniel. After the meeting Mr. and Mrs. Daniel showed movies of their recent trip to Japan.

Plans are now being made for the annual Christmas party, December 6th. It will be at the home of Mrs. Arthur Garry at 6:30 p.m. Plans are also being made for a combination meeting and card party in January.

On Tuesday, November 16th, a dessert card party was held at the Holiday Inn and members brought guests.

A Christmas project was discussed at the meeting, Monday, November 22nd. It was voted not to do anything at Christmas time, but to wait and do something for the aged in nursing homes on Valentines Day and Easter. It was also voted a contribution be given Halfway School.

The local chapter sent Mrs. Frances Clancy as delegate to Epsilon Province Convention in Decatur. This convention was held at the Holiday Inn, Nov. 5-6-7. Mrs. Edward Jackson also attended.

The local chapter is one of 340 active chapters and Alumnae Associations in the International Philanthropic organization, which is one of the oldest and largest of its kind.

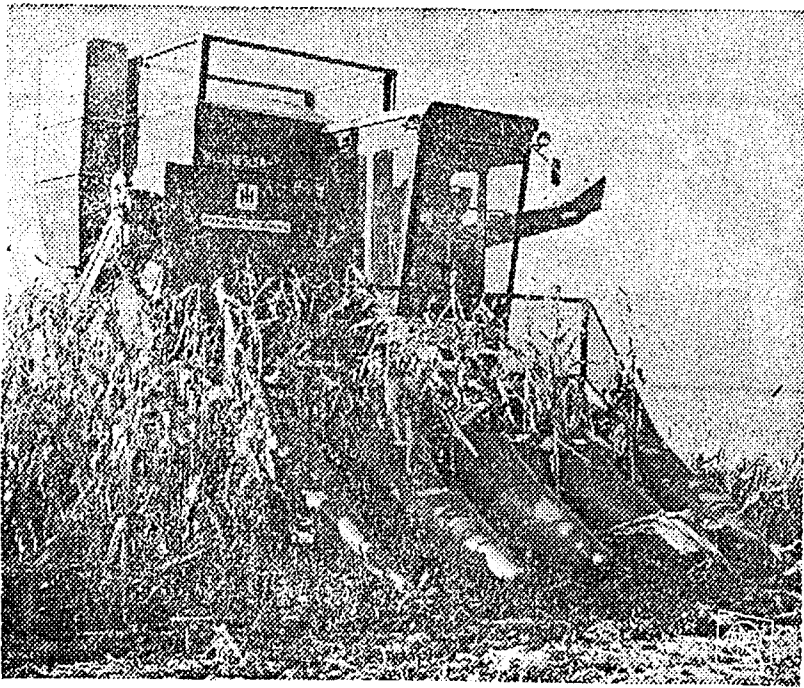

Each year on October 16th, Founders Day is observed by all members, honoring the five high school girls who organized the first chapter in Muncie, Indiana in 1903. The local observance was held at the home of Mrs. Wilford Queen with a potluck supper.

Monsters And Marketers—

Four-row picker, a popular aid to the farmer, lumbers through the cornfields near Macon, Ill.

Soybean combine at work near Decatur, often called the "soybean capital of the world."

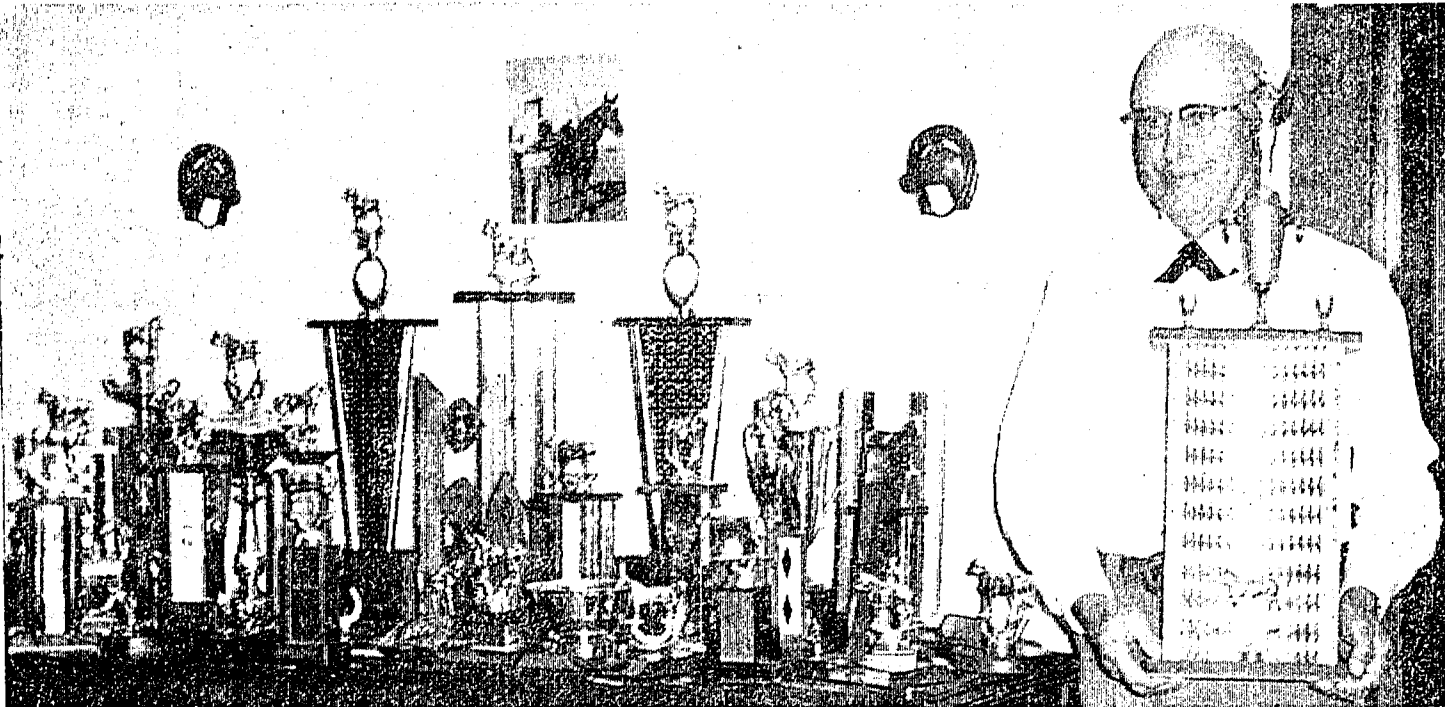

Reminiscent of a classical painting, traders in the soybean "pit" of the Chicago Board of Trade deal swiftly and expertly with the complex job of marketing the commodity.

Farm experts are predicting the largest soybean and corn crops in the history of the nation this year. Illinois is expected to harvest more of both than any state has ever grown before. These dramatic pictures tell the story. As the monsters roam the fields gathering the crops, man pits his efforts on making the best use of the bountiful harvest. "Food should be recognized as an important weapon in our arsenal," says Bernard P. Carey, the chairman of the Chicago Board of Trade. "The efficiency of American agriculture is one of our foremost security assets."

Devil's Miss Didn't Miss Much In '65

Everett Mason of the Strawn's Crossing neighborhood and his splendid chestnut quarter horse, Devil's Miss, won the men's pleasure division of the Illinois State Stock Horse association this year by amassing a total of 357 points in 31 shows during the season. They brought home 19 first place trophies and Mason is shown holding the association's "Big One."

ILLINOIS OUTLOOK LETTER

BIG CROPS CONFIRMED

The USDA crop report for November 1 confirmed earlier official forecasts of big crops of corn and soybeans. Because of early freezes in northern parts of the Midwest, the new figures are slightly lower than those for October 1.

The November figures should be fairly accurate, since most of the reporting farmers had harvested at least part of their corn and soybeans.

U.S. Corn Production. The November crop report lists U.S. corn production for this year at 4,128 million bushels. This amount is down 1 percent from the October forecast, but it is still up 16 percent more than last year and 1 percent more than the previous record crop produced two years ago.

The national average yield of corn per acre is listed at 72.1 bushels. This yield is almost one bushel less than the October forecast, but it is 10 bushels more than the 1964 yield and 4 1/2 bushels more than the previous record set in 1963.

Illinois is First In Corn. Illinois ranks first in corn production this year. We usually rank second to Iowa. The estimate of the Illinois crop was the same in November as in October — 891 million bushels. This amount is 25 percent more than last year and 18 percent more than the previous record set two years ago.

Large acreages of corn were flattened by storms during the late summer, but farmers have been able to save most of the grain. Best results have been obtained by using combine equipment and driving slowly.

the Illinois crop at 175 million bushels. This latest figure is about 2 percent more than that for October. Our 1965 crop is 21 percent larger than our 1964 crop and 6 percent larger than our previous record crop produced in 1963. Iowa ranks second in soybean production, as usual, with a crop of 126 million bushels this year.

The Illinois average soybean yield per acre is now estimated at 29 bushels, 1/2 bushel more than in October. This 1965 yield is 4 bushels higher than the 1964 yield, but 1/2 bushel short of the record set in 1963.

Illinois and Iowa are tied for highest 10-year average yields of soybeans, with 27.7 bushels per acre. This year, however, Indiana is tied with Illinois for highest yield among the soybean states.

MRS. ELIZABETH IRELAND, home economist, Illinois Power and Light Co., will be the featured speaker on the ladies program Dec. 17, at the annual meeting of the Illinois Livestock Feeders association. Headquarters for the women will be the Illinois House in downtown Bloomington.

WHITE HALL AREA FARMERS GUESTS OF LIONS CLUB

WHITE HALL — Lions Club members were hosts to farmers of the White Hall area at the Presbyterian Church recently. A roast beef dinner was served by women of the church. Ninety-one Lions and guests attended.

John Daniels of Vandalia, Ill., was guest speaker. His slide lecture concerned farming in Norway and included views of the recent International Plowing Contest which he attended in Norway. He was accompanied by E. B. Turner, Fayette county farm adviser.

TEAMWORK MAKES BEREA AG 4-H CLUB A WINNER

DALE TAYLOR, adult leader of the Berea Ag club, uses "youthpower" to the limit. He keeps his juniors hustling and on the ball and thus the northeast group was named "Club of the Year" for the second consecutive time. Foreign Buyers Most Interested In U.S. Corn And Soybeans

By WALTER B. PETERSON
Secretary of Marketing
Illinois Agricultural Association
Peterson was a member of the Illinois Far East Trade Mission which returned to Illinois last week after investigating trade possibilities in Japan, Taiwan, the Philippines and Australia.

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA, Nov. 22—Potential customers in the Far East appear to be more interested in American soybeans and corn than any other agricultural products. That fact became apparent in our talks with government officials and business representatives in Japan, Taiwan, the Philippines and Australia.

This report will be a brief focus on the Philippines and Australia—two of the best friends that the U.S.A. has in this part of the world.

The U.S. imports to the Philippines an average of $300 million a year, and the Philippines exports to the United States about $350 million. Competition for the Philippines foreign trade is becoming sharper. In 1961, 47 percent of goods imported to the Philippines came from the U.S.A. By 1964, the U.S.A. share dropped to 39.5 percent. During the same period, Japan's percentage rose from 17.7 percent to 20.2 percent. Therefore, the stiffest competition that we have comes from Japan in both prices and credit.

Our trade mission found itself in the middle of a changing political climate as a result of the presidential election in the Philippines. This change will undoubtedly have an effect on our U.S. market opportunities. We found a general good humor among key government and business people, but they were hesitant when it comes to making statements for publications or any commitments or even forecasts.

Stiff Import Duties

Following our joint session with the Philippine Chamber of Commerce, two elder statesmen who have had a long-time connection with agriculture put it to us this way:

"If the Philippines expects to feed its growing population and increase its national agricultural production, they need a substantial increase in four things: 1. Technical know-how. 2. Chemical fertilizers for rice, soybeans, and corn. 3. Lots of modern labor-saving machinery. 4.

our time and pursue this matter diligently with the new leadership. Our visit to Corregidor Sunday reminded us that we were on hallowed ground held sacred by Philippine people as well as the American people. With this mutual bond and sacrifice, we surely can exercise patience that is needed to work out any of our problems in commerce.

A Stable Country

Now I want to give a very condensed report on Australia. This country is almost as big as the land area of the United States. It is potentially as economically stable. It has never known a revolution or a civil war. There are 11 million Australians. They speak English, with colorful variations. They are well housed. They eat almost twice as much beef as Americans do. They're well educated, and society is urban rather than rural. Sixty per cent of the population live in 10 cities. There are more motor vehicles than homes.

Australia produces enough wool, wheat, meat, butter to sell vast quantities to other countries. It is one of the 10 top trading nations. Its main trade partners are the United Kingdom, Japan, and the U.S.A. In the past five years, U.S. business has invested $658 million here.

Damaged By Drought

The big story in the agricultural area at the present time in this southern part of the world is the word DROUGHT, with capital letters. There is currently a high mortality in sheep and range cattle and the outlook for the pasture and row crops is disturbing. This, strangely enough, has brought our trade mission several inquiries for bids on soybeans, corn and dry skim milk powder. The ports of Sydney and Melbourne are far from Illinois, but don't write off the possibilities that some of our feed grains and soybeans may find their way down here during the emergency. To accomplish this, however, will require a relaxation of their tariff levies.

The drought may bring about a fascinating possibility that Illinois corn may find its way to the Fiji Islands. Some companies that are headquartered here have facilities on the Fijis. If we can agree on terms and arranging shipping, part of a cargo could be unloaded at Suva en route to Australia.

National Barrow Show Dates Set

September 12-15, 1966, are the dates for the 20th consecutive National Barrow Show, often called the "World Series of Swinedom," and an annual event in Austin, Minn., since its origin in 1946.

The dates for the 1966 National Barrow Show were set at a meeting of the National Association of Swine Records (NASR) in collaboration with Carroll Plager, show superintendent. The meeting occurred at the National Pork Industry Conference in Lafayette, Ind., last weekend.

The National Barrow Show has continually sought to promote the widespread production of the meat-type hog and, at the same time, serves as a meeting place for the best hogs and hog producers in the business.

Nineteen states, producing over 80 per cent of all hogs in the United States, were represented at last year's show. Some 3,000 animals, accompanied by 400 exhibitors, enter the "World Series of Swinedom" each year. The NASR, originator and a chief sponsor of the National Barrow Show, is composed of the executive secretaries of the major national swine recording associations.

Cass Herdsmen Elect Lauener

BEARDSTOWN — Donald Lauener has been elected president of the Cass County Pork Producers association. The election was held when 28 members met at the Rossi restaurant in Virginia Wednesday. Other officers are: Harold Jurgens, vice president; John Jokisch, secretary - treasurer, and Sid Campbell, state delegate.

Vernon Pilger, a member of the state legislature committee, reported on the efforts to control the dread disease TGE which can devastate pig litters.

All meetings will be in the Illinois Union Building. Stice says. The program will begin at 9:45 a.m. Tuesday and continue through a luncheon meeting Wednesday.

Major topics to be discussed include financing grain inventories; changing patterns of grain prices and grain flow in Illinois markets; opportunities and problems in exporting mid-west grains; elevator charges for conditioning and storage of grains; handling and conditioning field-shelled corn; developments in official grain inspection; and the grain price outlook.

BRIMFUL and running over

By Jim Brim

Each issue of the paper carries notice of closing out sales. These, many times, are sad affairs. As the number of them increases many other individuals question in their own minds if they should "get out of farming."

Many decide they need more cash income and take a job off the farm. They are able to do this because of mechanization. Some of these will eventually become full time farmers, many will continue as part time farmers and some will quit farming altogether.

I believe the reasons for leaving the farm have been emphasized by many people. Low income is usually the most mentioned reason for leaving.

I would like to say that money income is not the only thing to consider when determining whether to stay on a small farm or not. For some the relative freedom that comes from being self-employed in an activity that does not require full time effort the whole year is an important item that offsets some of the disadvantages of lower income.

Some gain satisfaction from working with the soil and growing things. Others value the relative isolation and the absence of crowding that usually comes with city living. Security from the hazard of periodic unemployment is one value which holds some people on small farms.

It all boils down to—"Money isn't everything."

Now you should....
...Buy Christmas presents.
...Recuperate from Thanksgiving.
...Top out hogs.
...Clean livestock beds.
...Hunt rabbits.
...Watch for the first snow flakes.

Take the kids to see Santa Claus.

When you put your machinery away for the winter be sure you clean it and grease or oil unpainted metal parts. Winter is the time to shape up machinery. When you store it for the winter take a tag or a piece of paper and list things you need to do to a given piece of machinery. Make a parts list and get the parts ordered so you will get all equipment ready for use next spring.

Get one or more of the new SMV (Slow Moving Vehicle) markers. They are quite an improvement.

Take care of your feet. Keeping them dry goes a long way toward keeping them warm. Be sure your shoes are large enough.

Parking space — Where you leave your car to have those little dents made in it.

Grain Elevator Men To Meet

Illinois country grain elevator operators and other grain dealers will meet for a two-day conference on the University of Illinois campus, Dec. 7-8, announces L. F. Stice, U. of I. extension grain marketing economist and chairman of the program committee.

Illinois grain markets and marketing practices are undergoing significant changes because of such developments as the field shelling of corn, changing transportation rates, expanding exports and shifts in farm programs, Stice says. The conference is planned to give the grain trade an opportunity to exchange views and get factual information on current problems and developments associated with basic trends in grain marketing.

Major topics to be discussed include financing grain inventories; changing patterns of grain prices and grain flow in Illinois markets; opportunities and problems in exporting mid-west grains; elevator charges for conditioning and storage of grains; handling and conditioning field-shelled corn; developments in official grain inspection; and the grain price outlook.

All meetings will be in the Illinois Union Building. Stice says. The program will begin at 9:45 a.m. Tuesday and continue through a luncheon meeting Wednesday.

LIGHT PLANE, HEAVY ARMS—The Air Force's search for an ideal counter-insurgency (COIN) aircraft for use in guerrilla warfare has taken a new direction—the arming of private planes. Photo above, which appeared in Aviation Week & Space Technology, shows a Cessna Super Skywagon that is currently being evaluated by the Tactical Air Command for light strike missions. It is a standard, off-the-shelf model, but with a slight difference: Outer rack on its wing carries an SUU/14A bomb-belt dispenser; inboard of that is a pod containing a 7.63-mm. Minigun.

Next for Astros—Dry-Land Touchdown

In the near future, returning U.S. spaceships may float to safe, dry-land recoveries instead of the familiar, perilous ocean "splashdown." New techniques for such landings have been successfully tested by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration at Ft. Hood, Tex., and at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. At Ft. Hood, NASA tested the "Parasail," a huge, dirigible parachute (left, below) while at Edwards, North American Aviation's unique "Paraglider" (right, below) demonstrated its capabilities. Photos show how the two devices brought manned Gemini replica safely to dry-land recovery.

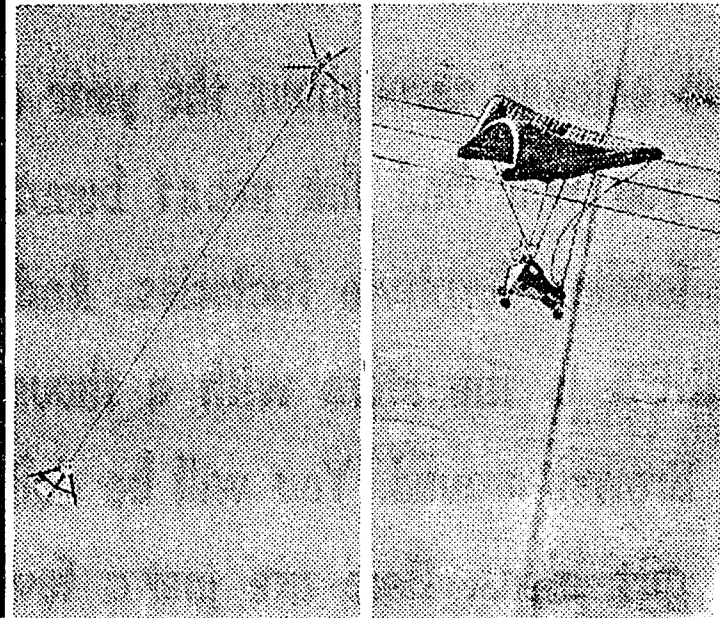

Dropped from an Air Force cargo plane from 12,000 feet, full-scale "boiler-plate" replica of Gemini spacecraft borne by Parasail, floats down at 27 feet per second.

Two braking rockets, which fire when the spacecraft is about 12 feet above ground, slow the falling 4,000-pound capsule to a "pillow-soft" landing of about 7 feet per second.

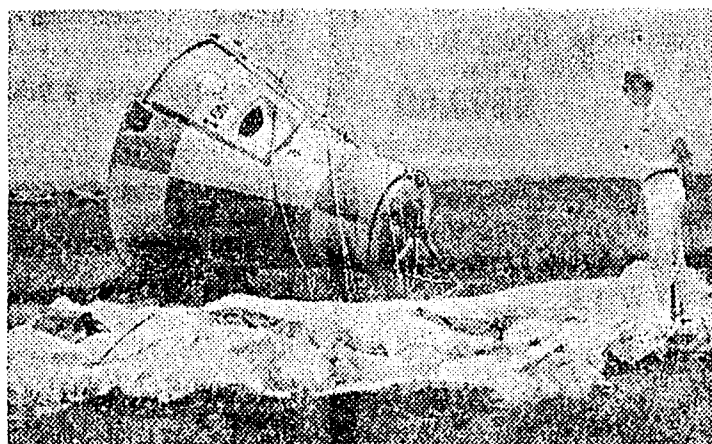

Flight crew watches as helicopter starts aloft to haul Paraglider up to 7,500 feet on 1,200-foot tow cable.

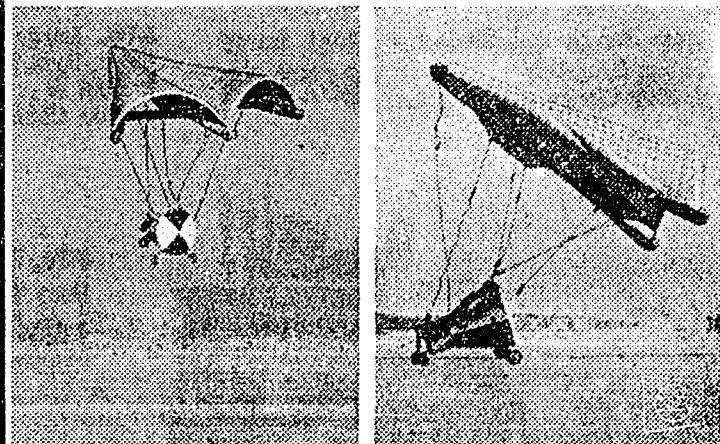

Paraglider in spread-wing gliding position. After tow cable is released, pilot of Gemini model guides the triangular recovery vehicle to a gentle touchdown.

Following release from towing helicopter, Paraglider starts descent. Curved wing structure serves as a parachute, reducing fall velocity of the capsule.

Gemini model lands upright on its tripod landing gear, exactly as planned. It hit within 40 feet of its target, a large "X" painted on the ground.

Triangular wing also functions as a glider, enabling Gemini pilot to reconnoiter over a landing area.

Paraglider drops the Gemini model to a soft landing, much more desirable than the water splashdowns.

At top are Mayor Byron Holkenbrink, William Freeman and Mrs. Freeman.

Other guests included William Fanning, president of the Village of South Jacksonville board; James Malone, chairman of the United Fund this year; Richard Armstrong, Boy Scout District Executive for the Honest Abe District, Abraham Lincoln Council and a delegation from the Land of Lincoln Girl Scout Council in Springfield.

Travelogue At I.S.D. Wednesday On America

Three screens and a special hi-fidelity music system will be set up in the I.S.D. auditorium this Wednesday evening, Dec. 1, at 8 p.m. for the second in the regular series of Kiwanis-sponsored travelogues.

Robert Brouwer's "Of Thee I Sing" will depict such American scenic spots as Yosemite, Crater Lake, Niagara Falls, the Grand Canyon, Vermont in autumn, Washington, Williamsburg, Gettysburg, Maine, Watkins Glen, Jamestown, Disneyland, Zion and Bryce, the Pacific Coast, Glacier's peaks, early American Sturbridge, and the Acadia National Park.

Brouwer incorporates the use of much original equipment including three screens, four projectors, stereophonic equipment, and his personal recordings of music and sound effects which have been recorded on the spot.

Season tickets, good for any six admissions, may be purchased at the door. All proceeds will be used for community youth, civic, and medical research projects sponsored by the Kiwanis Club.

Initiate 12 In Local Court Of C. D. Of A.

RESCUE OPERATION — Volunteer rescue workers at Mt. Baldy, Calif., reach for a litter carrying 70-year-old Clinton Hondley to safety across raging, rain-fed San Antonio creek. Heavy rains dumping 25 inches of water on southern California were responsible for several deaths and forced evacuation of some communities. (NEA Telephoto)

HOLIDAY GUESTS AT ROODHOUSE

ROODHOUSE—W. H. Battershell, Decatur, spent the Thanksgiving holidays with his mother, Mrs. Fred Battershell and his aunt, Mrs. Edna McIver. The three accompanied by Mrs. W. J. Rees, Sr. drove to Jacksonville Thanksgiving day where they met with other relatives at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Sullivan, Jr. for the Thanksgiving dinner.

Mrs. Jene Merritt, Portland, Ore., is visiting her aunts, Mrs. Arch Pennock and Mrs. Foster Dill.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Jameson and family and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jameson and family, Granite City; Mrs. Danny Ahern and son, White Hall; and Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Jameson, Winchester, attended a family dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Jameson of this city, Thanksgiving Day.

Home for Thanksgiving Day and attending a dinner at the home of Mrs. J. B. Tipps were her children and others as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Deterding and family, Minneapolis, Minn.; Mrs. Kathleen Gilmore and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Wilkinson and family, Decatur; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wilkinson and family, Girard; and Mrs. Clarence Akers, Roodhouse.

Mrs. Cora Aulgur spent Thanksgiving Day with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Reno, White Hall, and other guests in the same home.

Mrs. Earl Bacon, rural route, spent Thanksgiving with her aunt, Mrs. Maggie Russell, Bellevue, Mo. Also a visitor in the same home was Mrs. Bacon's daughter, Miss June Bacon, a student at SMS, Springfield, Mo.

C. E. Barker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Barker, is spending his holidays from the Western Military Academy, Alton, with his parents and with his brother, John Barker, wife, and family who were also guests in the home, Thanksgiving Day. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bartlett and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bartlett drove to Alton, Thanksgiving Day to spend the day in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bartlett, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Plahn, Humboldt, Tenn., arrived Friday for a visit with his mother and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bartlett, and other relatives.

WORLD WAR TWO CHAPLAIN SPEAKS AT CLUB MEETING

WHITE HALL — The couples club of United Presbyterian church met recently at the church with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Strang, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Griswold and Rev. and Mrs. C. La Vern Justis on the supper committee.

Rev. Ross Bracewell of Roodhouse was guest speaker, describing his experiences as a Navy chaplain during World War Two. He was introduced by Roby Strang also of Roodhouse. Forty-four were present for a turkey dinner. Miss Edith Hyatt presented devotions. Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Kinser were elected co-presidents of the club.

BLUFFS NOTES
BLUFFS — Mrs. Margaret Watson returned from Passavant hospital Saturday afternoon.

CATCHING UP WITH THE AIR AGE—At least in Cleveland, Ohio, it's not going to be possible in the future to say that it takes longer to get to the airport than to fly to a distant city. The Ohio metropolis is soon to mark a first in the nation with direct rapid transit connections between airport and city center. When a four-mile extension of the present system is completed in 1967, Cleveland Hopkins Airport will be only 20 minutes from the heart of downtown. Elsewhere in the world, only Tokyo and Brussels have similar service. Sketch shows airport terminal, only a few steps away from check-in and baggage counters.

CARELESSNESS CAN DAMAGE EYES

Air pollution plays havoc with eyes. If you get something in your eye, do not rub it. This could scratch the cornea and do permanent damage. Try to remove the object by lifting the upper lid over the lower lid. Let tears wash your eyes clean. Then apply a soothing eye lotion to further bathe the eye clean.

Smith has put together a Cabinet which obviously thinks as he does. The minister of internal affairs, William J. Harper, was, like Smith, an officer in the Royal Air Force.

Lord Graham, the Duke of Montrose and a wartime destroyer captain, gave up his dual prerogatives in Scotland to farm in Rhodesia and is now minister of agriculture. He is a violent opponent of African nationalism and, with his aristocratic lineage, takes a paternalistic attitude toward African problems.

Clifford Dupont, deputy prime minister, has been named acting administrator to take the place of Gov. Sir Humphrey Gibbs. He formerly was a London lawyer and once boasted: "We can and will halt the wind of change."

On African Continent

Most Hated White Man Probably Ian Smith

By LYNN HEINZERLING
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP)—Ian Smith has made himself perhaps the most hated white man on the African continent.

He is a 46-year-old cattle rancher and prime minister of Rhodesia. With one 20-minute speech Nov. 11, he tore this colony free of Britain, put the nation's economy in jeopardy and consigned Rhodesia's four million black people to a future of white domination.

To many of Rhodesia's 225,000 whites, he is a George Washington. To Africans caught up in the fever of black nationalism, he is a racist gone mad. Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson calls him "a frightened man."

Actually, he is none of these. Rhodesia's prime minister is an able and rugged individual who says he is doing what is best for the people of Rhodesia, black and white.

He is the product of a way of life which began developing in southern Africa when the first white man landed at Cape Town more than three centuries ago.

This white society's attitude toward the black man is a blend, in varying degrees of intensity, of paternalism, fear, pity and contempt.

In this society, the white man supplies brains, skills and money to build tidy cities, efficient railroads and large, flourishing farms. The black man supplies the cheap labor which made it possible.

In this part of the world few whites can be found with the honest conviction that a multiracial society of equals is possible.

Smith, the son of a cattle rancher and butcher, was shot down twice as a British fighter pilot in World War II.

Back in Rhodesia, he entered politics. He resigned from the United party in 1961 after a constitutional conference increased African strength in Parliament to 15 seats out of 65.

At the root of Rhodesia's conflict with Britain has been the African demand for more seats, more voice in government. Britain sees this as the African's right. To Rhodesia's whites this means eventual black domination.

Court costs of five dollars was added to each of the cases listed above.

If you like to grease baking pans with butter, clarify the butter and keep it tightly covered in the refrigerator to have on hand for this use. Through clarification, you gain a salt-free "oil" that tends to prevent baked products from sticking—and of course the clarified butter gives good flavor to the crusts of cookies, cakes and breads.

deadly combination. Carbon monoxide is odorless and invisible.

Last year 124 accidental deaths were reported in Illinois due to carbon monoxide; 86 of these occurred in the home. There are no records available concerning the number of persons non-fatally poisoned by carbon monoxide.

Several Sources

The deaths were caused by several sources of carbon monoxide gas. The burning of any fuel that contains carbon monoxide gas. This is true of solid fuels, such as coal, coke and wood; of liquid fuels, such as oil, gasoline or kerosene, and of gaseous fuels, such as manufactured and natural gas.

Any fuel-burning heating appliance may be a source of carbon monoxide gas unless the appliance is adjusted, operating and vented properly. Special caution is necessary in homes with attached or basement garages. Automobiles, or any other gasoline-powered motor, should never be run in a closed space.

Charcoal should not be burned in confined areas or in defective fireplaces.

Tracing gas leaks is a job for the utility company, not the homeowner. Dr. Yoder said, "If a gas odor is detected, notify the utility company at once and ventilate the house. Utility gas was involved in 12 of the accidental deaths in 1964."

Exhaust

Motor vehicle exhaust gas was involved in 89 accidental deaths during 1964. Of these, 57 occurred at home, six while parked on a roadway, 10 in unspecified places, two in other specified places, such as parking lots, and one death reported to have occurred while traveling on a highway. While only one was reported in the latter category, Dr. Yoder said it could only be estimated how many other highway deaths were due to carbon monoxide poisoning that had not been definitely established.

Symptoms

Symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning may include dizziness, sleepiness, headache, nausea, vomiting and a muscular weakness that renders the victim helpless.

Exhaust pipes of automobiles should be checked annually and replaced if not intact. If you back into a snow bank, you may plug up the tail pipe. Check it. Never drive long distances in a tightly closed car, or park with the engine running to keep the heater operating. These are the precautions that may avert tragedy. Dr. Yoder pointed out, "Last year 128 persons deliberately took their lives by the use of carbon monoxide," he said, "but considering the 124 who did not want or expect to die from this cause, the high toll shows a lack of awareness of the hazards."

State Health Head Warns Of Sneak Killer

"In spite of repeated warnings, carbon monoxide, the sneak killer, almost daily now claims victims from among the unwary," Dr. Franklin D. Yoder, director of the Illinois Department of Public Health, said this week.

Although the rate fluctuates with the season, more cases of accidental poisoning deaths from carbon monoxide are reported during the winter months. Closed windows, lack of proper ventilation and a faulty heating plant can be a

Pike Marine Victim Of Viet Sea Mishap

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department reported Friday that Marine Pfc. John D. Campbell of Pleasant Hill, Ill. died in Viet Nam.

The report said Campbell, who previously was listed as missing, did not die in action. It did not say what the cause of death was.

According to sources, Campbell's body was found in offshore waters near Da Nang.

Earlier in the week he was reported missing.

Campbell was a passenger in an amphibious vehicle, without power, which was being towed down the Cade river by another vehicle.

A tow line apparently broke and the crippled vehicle was swept out to sea and sank. Campbell's body was recovered near the site where the vehicle sank.

Campbell was born in East St. Louis, December 23, 1945, a son of Ernest and Irma Gutherie Campbell. His father preceded him in death eight years ago.

He attended school in Pleasant Hill, graduating in June, 1964. He was active in sports, especially football, and also was in the senior class play.

Following graduation, he enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps in August. He was last home on leave Christmas, 1964. Campbell was also a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints.

Surviving is his mother, Mrs. Irma G. Campbell of 206 Mount Street, Pleasant Hill, and a sister, Mrs. James Ball of Reynolds.

Funeral services, and burial are expected to take place sometime next week in Pleasant Hill.

Mrs. Fishback Dies Thursday At Carrollton

CARROLLTON — Mrs. Beulah Fishback, widow of Fred Fishback, died at 1:30 a.m. Thursday at the Boyd hospital here where she had been a patient a few weeks. Mrs. Fishback had been ill the past several months.

Born at Carrollton Nov. 11, 1879; she was the daughter of Baker and Elizabeth Rawlings Pegram. She and Mr. Fishback were married in 1903. He died in 1962.

Surviving are two sons, Baker Fishback of Carrollton and William Fishback of Springfield; a daughter, Mrs. Thomas Bennett of Phoenix, Ariz.; three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Fishback was a member of the Carrollton Methodist church, the Carrollton Rug club and the West End Reading Circle.

The body was taken to the Simpson Funeral Home.

Funeral services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Sunday at the funeral home. Reverend Roger Christianson will officiate and burial will be in Carrollton cemetery.

Ornan Cummings Of Wrights Dies Funeral Today

CARROLLTON — Ornan Cummings of Wrights died at 8:30 p.m. Thursday at Boyd Hospital.

Mr. Cummings was born in Woodville township Oct. 25, 1892, son of Christopher and Melinda Burch Cummings. He was married Oct. 24, 1910 to the former Clara Mae Walter, who survives.

Also surviving are ten children: Mrs. Jessie Spenser of Champaign, Howard Cummings of Delhi, Mrs. Geraldine Kraushaar of Eldred, Mrs. Bernita Varble of Carrollton, Mrs. Wilma Thornton of Wrights, Mrs. Viola McCormick of Mulberry Grove, Mrs. Mabel Retherford and Olin Cummings, both of Rock Falls; Mrs. Imogene Cook of Sterling and Donald Cummings of Granite City. Fifty grandchildren and 34 great-grandchildren also survive.

The body was taken to the Simpson Funeral Home where friends may call.

Funeral services will be held at the funeral home at 3:30 p.m. Sunday. Reverend Dean Cooper officiating. Burial will be in Berlin cemetery.

CORRECTION

In a report of an accident involving Mary E. Scanlan of 1627 South Clay and Wendell T. Sexton of Waverly Wednesday afternoon, the traffic citation was issued Mr. Sexton instead of Mrs. Scanlan.

The Battle of Chalons was fought in northeastern France in A.D. 451. In it, Attila the Hun was defeated by the Romans and Visigoths.

REPORT SERVICE

STATION BURGLARY

Sheriff Harold E. Wright and Deputy Dean Colwell investigated a burglary at the Harry Lee Waters service station located on Route 104 at Chapin early Friday morning.

A passerby notified Waters about 6 a.m. that the front door of his station was open and Waters telephoned county authorities.

Items missing included about 20 cartons of cigarettes, several boxes of cigars and a small quantity of chewing gum.

The burglars broke through the front door of the station. Sheriff's deputies also investigated a possible break-in at the Wendell Petefish home north of Jacksonville Thursday morning. Deputies said there was evidence of possible entry to the house but nothing was reported missing.

PASSENGERS ESCAPE INJURY IN CRASH

Passengers in two cars escaped injury Friday afternoon when the cars in which they were riding collided on the Old State road two miles east of Jacksonville.

According to state police a westbound auto, operated by Margaret Stevenson, 44, of route one, went out of control and slid sideways before coming to rest on the shoulder of the road.

A second westbound auto, driven by Dorothy Duncan, 18, of 1203 Allen avenue, slid into the Stevenson vehicle.

Police reported only minor damage.

Passengers in the Duncan car, Elizabeth McDaniels, 18, of 1203 Allen; Donna Beddingfield, 18, of 300 1/2 South Main and Sharon McDaniels, 16, of Springfield escaped unhurt.

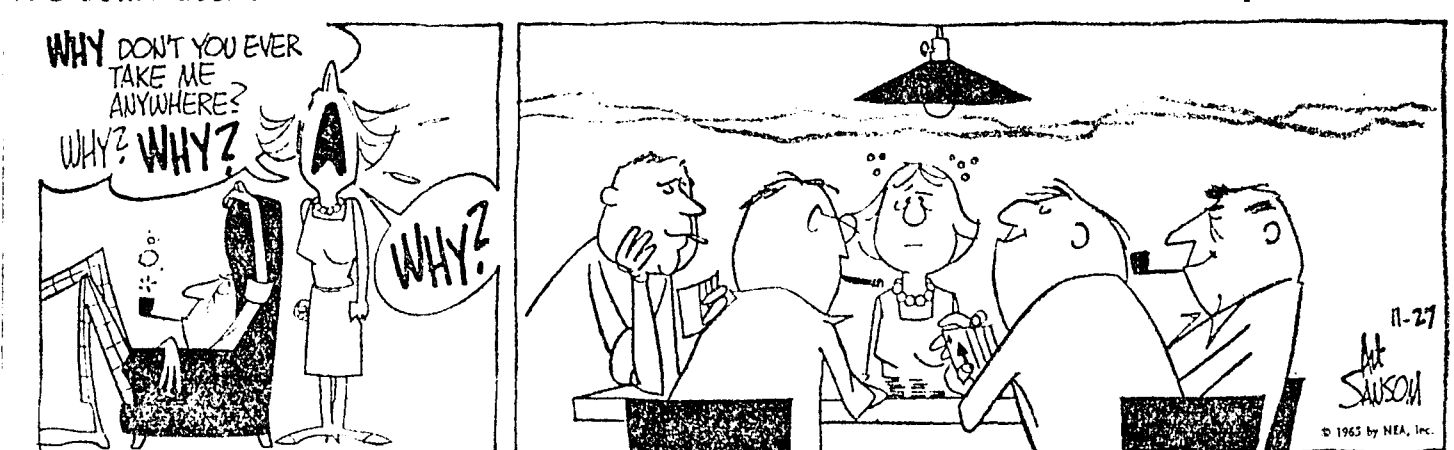

A passenger in the Stevenson car, Diane Stevenson, 11, was not injured.

State police listed the time of the accident at 4:30 p.m.

The undersigned Executor under the Will of Edwin R. Sooy, deceased, will sell at Public Auction to the highest and best bidder, at the South Door of the Court House, in Jacksonville, Illinois, on FRIDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1965

AT 11:30 O'CLOCK A.M.

the farm lands owned by the late Edwin R. Sooy and legally described as follows, to-wit:

The East Half of the South East Quarter of Section 14, and the West Half of the South West Quarter of Section 13, all in Township 13 North and Range 10 West of the Third Principal Meridian, in Morgan County, Illinois, and containing 160 acres, but subject, however, to existing public highway and public utility dedications and easements.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION: The above farm is located approximately five (5) miles East of Murrayville on the Murrayville-Nortonville Road, and is improved with a 2-story Dwelling House, electricity, garage and other outbuildings, 2 ponds and 2 wells. Approximately 44 acres are tillable.

TERMS OF SALE: 25% of the purchase price, cash in hand at time of sale, and balance after approval of title by the buyer upon tender of a good and sufficient Executor's Deed. A complete Abstract of Title will be furnished showing a good and indefeasible title in the estate of said decedent, and showing the right and authority of said Executor to sell and convey said farm.
The estate will pay the 1965 taxes, payable in 1966.
Full possession will be given to the purchaser on March 1, 1966.

For further information or inspection of the premises contact the auctioneers.

Poll Patterson For Possible Gas Customers

PATTERSON — Representatives of the Central Illinois Public Service Company were in Patterson Thursday, November 18th making a survey of home owners who might be interested in using natural gas, as there is a possibility of a gas line being extended here should enough people be interested.

The outcome of this survey is not known at this time.

Mr. Henry Rufus went to Salem, Ill. the latter part of the week, where he met his brother, Mr. C. W. Rufus, of Vincennes, Indiana, who came on here for a visit with his brother, and sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Coker. Sunday being his birthday a dinner was held for him in Mrs. Coker's home, and others present were Mr. and Mrs. George Coker of St. Louis, and Mrs. Naomi Coker and Mrs. Raymond Coker and daughter Jennifer Ann of Jacksonville.

Birthday Dinner
A dinner was held Sunday in the home of Mrs. Nona Odum, honoring her son Lyndell Odum of Washington, Ill. whose birthday was the following day, November 22nd. Others present besides Mr. Odum, his wife and four sons, Merle, Steve Tom and Ron, were Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Odum, children Mike, Michele, and Mark of Jacksonville, Bill Stewart of White Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hicks, children, Mary Jane, David, Sara and Neal.

Mr. and Mrs. John Richmond and family of Mapleton were weekend visitors with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Dawdy and son Mike.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil DeVore of Wrights City, Missouri, were recent callers in the home of Mrs. Kathleen Barrow and family.

New Custodian
Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Eschbach and family, who have been residing the past 1½ years near Eldred, moved during the weekend to their home in the south part of town, and he assumed the duties of custodian at the Patterson School the first of the week, made vacant by the resignation of Leonard Ferguson, who with his family has moved to Jerseyville.

Mrs. Minnie Steelman spent the weekend in the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sellars near Winchester and on Sunday attended the wedding of her granddaughter, Linda A. Sellars and Alan Hudson of Manchester held at the First Baptist Church in Winchester on the reception at the Holiday Inn in Jacksonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stewart, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hicks are parents of a baby boy, born, November 20th at the White Hall Hospital. A first child the infant has been named Jeffrey William. The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stewart of White Hall and great grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Norville Hicks, Mrs. Nona Odum and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Craddock.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Meek and son of Carrollton were Sunday evening visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ballard and family.

Mrs. Brenda Gregory of White Hall, Mrs. Kathleen Barrow and Mrs. Keith Leonard were in Springfield Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Hubbard accompanied by her nieces, Irah and Irma Lewis of Roodhouse had dinner Sunday at the Cardinal Inn in Pittsfield. They were joined in Pittsfield by Mrs. Nita Reynolds.

Friday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fariell Bigham were Lewis Bunting of Hillview and Cleo Bunting of East Alton. Max Barrow, Rickey Shafer, Ronnie and Gordon Holmes attended a skating party, Tuesday night at White Hall for Dennis Fisher, who was observing his birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Dawdy were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Billy McCarthy and sons, David and Steve in White Hall.

Mrs. Thelma Wilkinson of Roodhouse was substitute teacher at the school the latter part of the week, replacing Miss Ella Black of Carrollton, whose brother-in-law, Clayton McLain of St. Louis had passed away.

Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Hubbard visited Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. George Fischbeck in Roodhouse.

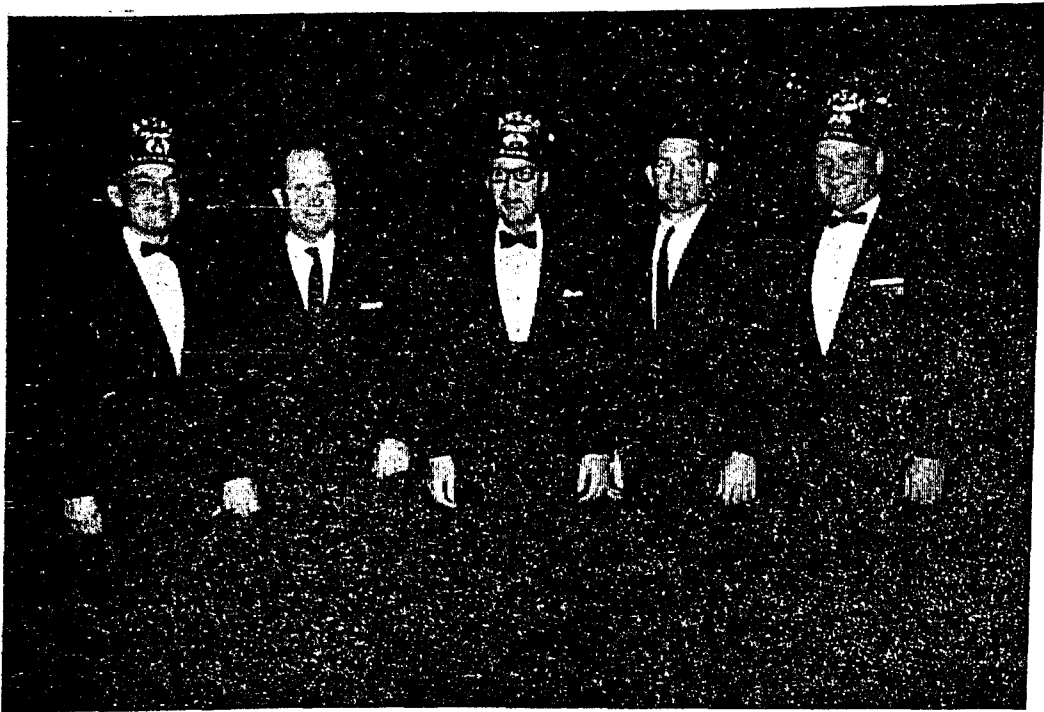

BBC DECIDES FILM TOO HORRIFYING FOR TV
LONDON (AP) — The British Broadcasting Corp. Friday decided a film it made about the effects of a nuclear war on Britain is too horrifying for TV viewers.

The film, "The War Game," includes shots of badly burned bodies, hysterical men and women, and police executing civilians after a food riot.

The BBC has been in difficulties about the film ever since it was finished in August.

The British government's Home Office advised against showing it.

her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tilman Ballard of Jacksonville, were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kyle Anderson of Athens.

After World War II, hundreds of workers toiled for years to put surviving material in the proper place for the reconstruction of the Benedictine Order's most revered monastery, the Abbey of Montecassino in Italy. It had been bombed. Italy made the abbey a national monument in 1866.

Fictional Detectives Part Of Changing Trend

MARBLEHEAD, Mass. (AP) — Like most things in real life, the fashion in fictional detectives is constantly changing.

Not long ago the standard was the aristocratic and eccentric Englishman who solved murders as an avocation. Then came the tough guy "shamus" of Dashiell Hammett, Raymond Chandler and Mickey Spillane. And then James Bond.

Now there is a rabbi-detective to take his place alongside G. K. Chesterton's crime-solving Catholic priest, Father Brown. Both also do much talking about religion.

Harry Kemelman, who last year created Rabbi David Small in "Friday the Rabbi Slept Late," enjoys comparisons between his rabbi and Chesterton's priest.

"I got more insight into Catholicism from reading Father Brown than I had done in quite a bit of reading in comparative religions," he says. He hopes Rabbi Small does the same for Judaism.

The writer lives with his family in Marblehead.

Kemelman's book has received much praise, including the Mystery Writers of America Edgar Award, as best first mystery novel of the year. But Kemelman doubts whether his rabbi will start a trend in detective-clerics, or bring back high-minded sleuthing.

So far as Kemelman knows, his is the first rabbi-detective. However, he didn't read Father Brown, then sit down to create a Jewish counterpart.

His original idea was to write a novel — not a mystery — about subjects which interested him:

What happens to Jews, when, after World War II, they move to suburbs and start mixing with crabbgrass, neighbors who aren't Jewish, and small town government in which everybody participates? Are there real differences between Jewish and Christian ways of thinking? And how has the function of the rabbi changed through the years?

Publishers told Kemelman that his novel was interesting but all that unlearned sociology and theology was, to put it kindly, "too low key."

So Kemelman keyed up his story, with a murder. The rewrite job was such a success that next spring "Saturday the Rabbi Went Hungry" will be published. In it Rabbi Small solves another crime and imparts more Jewish thought.

EAST SIDE CLUB HOLIDAY DINNER TO BE DEC. 17

The East Side Community club met Friday evening, Nov. 19, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Middendorf, East Morton Road.

Mrs. Adeline Rawlings presided at the business meeting which was opened with the pledge to the flag and the Lord's Prayer. Plans were made for a Christian turkey dinner and gift exchange party to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sayre, 1315 Goltra on Friday, Dec. 17, at 6 p.m.

A thank you note was read from Mrs. Erwin Middendorf. It was reported that Mrs. Floyd Stubblefield was a patient at Memorial hospital in Springfield. Mrs. Roy Robson was in charge of the program for the evening. Bunco was played and refreshments were served.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market lost a little ground for the third straight week as it continued last week to "consolidate" its latest advance to record highs.

Sentiment in Wall Street was cautiously optimistic, some analysts believing that the current setting-down process is laying the foundation for the traditional year-end rally.

Because of the closing of exchanges on Thanksgiving Day, the trading week was cut to four days from the usual five. This was reflected by volume of 26,385,240 shares compared with 39,703,380 in the full five-day week previous.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped 1.0 to 353.0, its third straight weekly decline.

The mildness of the decline was reflected by the fact that, of 1,541 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, gainers outnumbered losers by 747 to 629. The decline in the averages was due to softness in several of the blue chips including American Telephone, the most widely-held stock of all, which are important components of the averages.

These big stocks are so heavily capitalized that the decline in their value far overshadows the changes in value of lesser stocks.

It was a paradoxical performance on the Big Board because

Soviets Open New Attack On Red China

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union accused Red China Sunday of hurrying the cause of the Vietnamese Communists and helping the United States by refusing to form a united front with the Kremlin.

Pravda, Soviet Communist party newspaper, carried in its Sunday edition the hardest-hitting attack on the Red Chinese since the new Soviet leadership took over in October 1954.

"The developments of the last few months have shown convincingly that imperialism is trying to capitalize on the weakened unity of Communist ranks," Pravda said.

"Those who refuse to cooperate and turn down proposals for joint actions against the aggressors are hampering the struggle of the Vietnamese people and help the aggressor."

Earlier, Peking's New China News Agency gave prominent display to Albanian charges that the United States and the Soviet Union "are playing tricks behind the heroic Vietnamese people to strike dirty bargains" on Viet Nam.

Albania is regarded as Communist China's spokesman in the angry dialogue between the two Red camps.

The Peking report quoted a commentary in the Albanian newspaper Zeri i Popullit on the Moscow visit of U.S. Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic majority leader, and other senators, saying: "Their recent meetings there are ample testimony to the dirty tricks of the imperialists and the revisionists."

In Peking's view, the Soviet leaders are "revisionists" of Marxist-Leninist doctrine for espousing coexistence with the west.

The lengthy Pravda article was a full-scale defense of Soviet policies against the unrelenting Chinese criticism that began in the Khrushchev era.

The Pravda article seemed to mark a loss of patience by the new Soviet regime in the dispute with China. But it remained to be seen whether the insults would flow between the two capitals as during the rule of former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

His successors, Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, have quietly been trying to patch up the Communist quarrel in behind-the-scenes meetings.

Postmaster Has Suggestions For Holiday Season

Chinese forces killed 775 Viet Cong within the corps area in the seven-day period ended Nov. 25. He said this was the highest total for a comparable period within the recollection of the troops' American advisers.

Addition of the Enterprise and the Bainbridge to the U.S. fleet led Japan's Socialist party to warn that it would promote a campaign of protest if they ever entered Yokosuka, location of a U.S. Navy base, 30 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Port calls by U.S. nuclear-powered submarines, approved by Japan's pro-Western government, have led to bloody demonstrations at Yokosuka by Socialists, Communists and other leftist elements.

Subic Bay, however, is the 7th Fleet's main rest port and American sources in the Philippines said a voyage of the two nuclear-powered surface vessels to Japan seemed unlikely.

Quotes concerning the Vietnamese conflict came from two touring American leaders in Southeast Asian capitals:

In Rangoon, Burma, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield described his visits to capitals in Europe and Asia as "most interesting, most enlightening and most informative."

Mansfield heads a five-man Senate fact-finding mission on Viet Nam that soon will visit Saigon.

Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois, who flew out of Saigon Friday, told newsmen in Bangkok, Thailand, he was impressed by the high morale of U.S. and South Vietnamese troops.

PARIS (AP)—Frenchmen beamed with pride Saturday about their satellite, even though its voice has dwindled to almost nothing.

The simply made $2.5-pound satellite went into orbit Friday in a test of the three-stage Diamant missile and the French tracking network. Both are reported to have performed without a hitch.

"France is the Third Space Power," said headlines in the Paris dailies Figaro and Le Monde, with the latter adding inside, "ahead of Britain and Japan."

50 Mile An Hour Winds, Rain Hit City, Area Friday

A squall line with winds clocked at 50-miles-per hour moved through the Jacksonville area shortly after four o'clock Friday afternoon causing isolated power failures and inconvenience to motorists due to blocked streets.

Tree limbs fell in several sections of the city. Utility crews were kept busy repairing wires snapped by the falling branches.

City police reported no injuries resulting from the brief storm period although the same storm center caused at least four tornadoes in other sections of the state.

An unidentified man was trapped in the cab of his truck at the intersection of Dunlap and North East Streets when falling utility lines came to rest across the vehicle. He was quickly rescued from the potential danger spot by emergency line crews. Firemen stood by until the man was removed in case of fire.

A large Christmas tree at Lincoln Square shopping center

was blown over by the force of the wind. City linemen disconnected the wires and moved to other trouble spots. The tree was repaired after other service had been restored to normal.

A tree blocked one lane of traffic on U.S. 67, five miles north of Jacksonville. A crew from the State highway department was dispatched to the scene and cut the tree into sections. State police directed traffic at the scene and reported no accidents.

Property damage was at a minimum according to city police reports.

Forage — An Important U.S. Crop!

Here are a couple of quotations from a recent talk by Dr. Maurice Heath, Agronomy Department, Purdue University.

"Forage crops have occupied 'neglected acres' entirely too long on American farms. Fortunately today more and more people recognize bountiful food baskets."

Forages harvested as pasture, hay and silage represent the largest crop acreage in the United States. Forages provide about one half the feed for all the livestock in the U.S. Indirectly about one fourth of what you and I eat comes from forages, converted by animals to meat and milk.

The hospital phone rang, and a very excited male voice exclaimed to the nurse: "I'm rushing my wife in to have a baby!"

"What a miracle!" the nurse said. "I had some information that this her first baby?"

"No!" shouted the excited father. "This is her husband!"

Grabo Put Huge Dent In Record

CHICAGO (AP) — Fullback Jim Grabowski of Illinois smashed an all-time dent in the Big Ten football record book this season.

The 211-pound, knifing senior retained his rushing title and, according to final official conference statistics posted Saturday, rewrote three of the five season records listed under rushing.

Grabowski, piling up 996 yards—almost twice as much as runnerup Clint Jones of champion Michigan State—accounted for these marks:

Most rushes, with 201 in 7 games, topping the seven-game record of 178 set by Ohio State's Bob White in 1958.

Highest average rushes per game, with 28.7, surpassing the old mark of 26.25 by Michigan's Bob Westfall in four games in 1940.

Most net yards gained, with his 996, shattering the league's best of 919 by another Illini star, J. C. Caroline, in six games in 1953.

Grabowski, a standout since his sophomore year when he led Illinois to a Rose Bowl triumph, missed breaking only the highest rushing average per game and per rush league records.

But these marks are held by players who carried far fewer times. Michigan's Bill Daley, in the war-time season of 1943, averaged 167.3 yards per game in only three games. Bob Mitchell of Illinois has the top average per rush, 8.8, on 53 carries in 1955.

Averaged 142.3 Per Game — Grabowski had a seven-game average of 142.3 yards per game and 5.0 per rush on his record 201 carries.

Michigan State's Jones took the No. 2 spot with 538 yards on 119 carries, while Michigan's Carl Ward, carrying only 76 times, notched the best rushing average, 6.3 per thrust.

Purdue's junior quarterback, Bob Griese, captured both the passing and total offense titles. The Boilermaker bomber completed 96 of 178 passes for 1,097 yards and a .539 percentage.

Even though Griese wound up with minus four yards rushing, he still took the total offense crown with 1,093 yards.

Other departmental champions:

Scoring — Michigan State's Jones, 68 points on 11 touchdowns and a two-point conversion catch.

Pass receiving — End John Wright of Illinois, 38 catches for 561 yards.

Punting—Halfback Ron Recker, Northwestern 27 for 40.0 average. Most punts, Halfback Larry McDowell, Iowa, 50 for 39.1 average.

Kickoff returns — Halfback Trent Walters, Indiana, 14 for 25.4 average.

Punt returns — Halfback Drake Garrett, Michigan State, 14 for 11.6 average.

Interceptions—Halfback Tom Sakal, Minnesota, 4 for 108 yards.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Army and Navy grappled to a 7-7 tie Saturday—the sixth standoff of their colorful 75-year-old series—that nullified the iron man play of the Cadets' Sam Champi and the occasional passing brilliance of the Middies' sophomore John Cartwright.

The Cadets struck first after 4 minutes, 16 seconds of the game when Charley Stowers, a converted guard from Chesapeake, Ohio, rambled 25 yards to a touchdown after a fumble recovery by Champi.

The Midshipmen, a seven-point favorite, levelled the score in the second period, when Cartwright threw an eight-yard pass to Terry Murray in the Army end zone.

Each touchdown was followed by successful conversions. Andy Dull of Tallahassee, Fla., kicking for Army and Felix Bassi for Navy.

A crowd of 102,000, including Chief Justice Earl Warren, several Cabinet members and high Army and Navy officials, saw the two teams knock heads the rest of the time like a group of angry bulls.

Northern Beaten In Mineral Bowl By 37-20 Count

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo. (AP) — North Dakota University broke open a close game with two fourth quarter touchdowns and ran off with a 37-20 victory Saturday over Northern Illinois in the Mineral Water Bowl football game.

The North Dakota defense bottled up Ron Christian of Northern Illinois, who led his school to a 9-0 season with his passing arm. In addition five of his passes were intercepted and he completed only 8 of 20 for 130 yards.

Christian was taken out when he was shaken up badly in the first half and was replaced by Michael Griesman, who completed five of seven passes for the losers, including a 44-yard throw in the second quarter to end Jack Forst, setting up a touchdown.

North Dakota jumped to an early lead on a touchdown set up by Stan Wright's 64-yard return of the opening kickoff. Six plays later Corey Colehour went over for the TD.

Northern Illinois struck back on an 81-yard play. Christian pitched out to Arny Vessely who ran around right end and tossed to Gerry Sandberg who went over for the score. The kick for the extra point failed and North Dakota led 7-6.

North Dakota scored again on Ron Bergh's four-yard plunge, set up after a short punt by Northern Illinois and a 15-yard penalty.

Northern Illinois came back to score its last touchdown on a 63-yard pass play from Christian to Vessely.

Alabama Takes SEC Crown, 30-3

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Alabama knocked Auburn out of the Southeastern Conference championship and claimed the title for the second straight year Saturday with a 30-3 triumph ignited by the passing of Steve Sloan and daring defensive play.

Sloan tossed three touchdown passes for the Orange Bowl-bound Crimson Tide. Alabama intercepted seven Auburn passes and captured two Tiger fumbles.

The victory before 70,000 fans gave fifth-ranked Alabama a 6-1-1 league record.

Auburn, the Cinderella team of the conference which will play in the Liberty Bowl, finished second in the title chase with a 4-1 mark, but for the year had a 5-4-1 record, its worst since 1952.

Sloan hit on touchdown passes of 11 yards to Tommy Tolleson, 33 yards to Ray Perkins, and 29 yards to Don Shankles.

Browns May Clinch Title In East

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer
If the Pittsburgh Steelers don't change their recent style of play, the Cleveland Browns shouldn't have to resort to a last-minute touchdown pass or a last-quarter pass interception Sunday as they try to clinch at least a tie for the title in the National Football League's Eastern Conference.

The Browns, who have lost only two of 10 games, can gain their second straight conference crown if New York and St. Louis lose.

The last time the Browns and Steelers met, Pittsburgh led 19-17 until Frank Ryan hit Gary Collins with a 14-yard touchdown pass with only 44 seconds to play.

Then last week Cleveland stopped Dallas 24-17, but not before Vince Costello intercepted a Don Meredith pass in the end zone with about four minutes to play. The crucial catch came on a first-and-goal situation at the Browns' one-yard line.

Steelers Surprised
The Steelers were a pretty surprised team, too, a couple of weeks ago when they lost to Dallas after holding one-touchdown lead in the final period. The Cowboys won by intercepting five of the last nine passes the Steelers threw.

The last week, with regular quarterback Bill Nelsen injured, young Tommy Wade started against Washington and completed only one pass in the first half. Veteran Ed Brown took over in the second half, but the Steelers couldn't do anything to avoid a 31-3 trouncing.

Nelsen is out again this week.

In other NFL games Green Bay is at Los Angeles, Chicago at New York, Philadelphia at St. Louis, San Francisco at Minnesota and Dallas at Washington.

Baltimore and Detroit played to a 24-24 tie last Thursday and are idle until next Sunday.

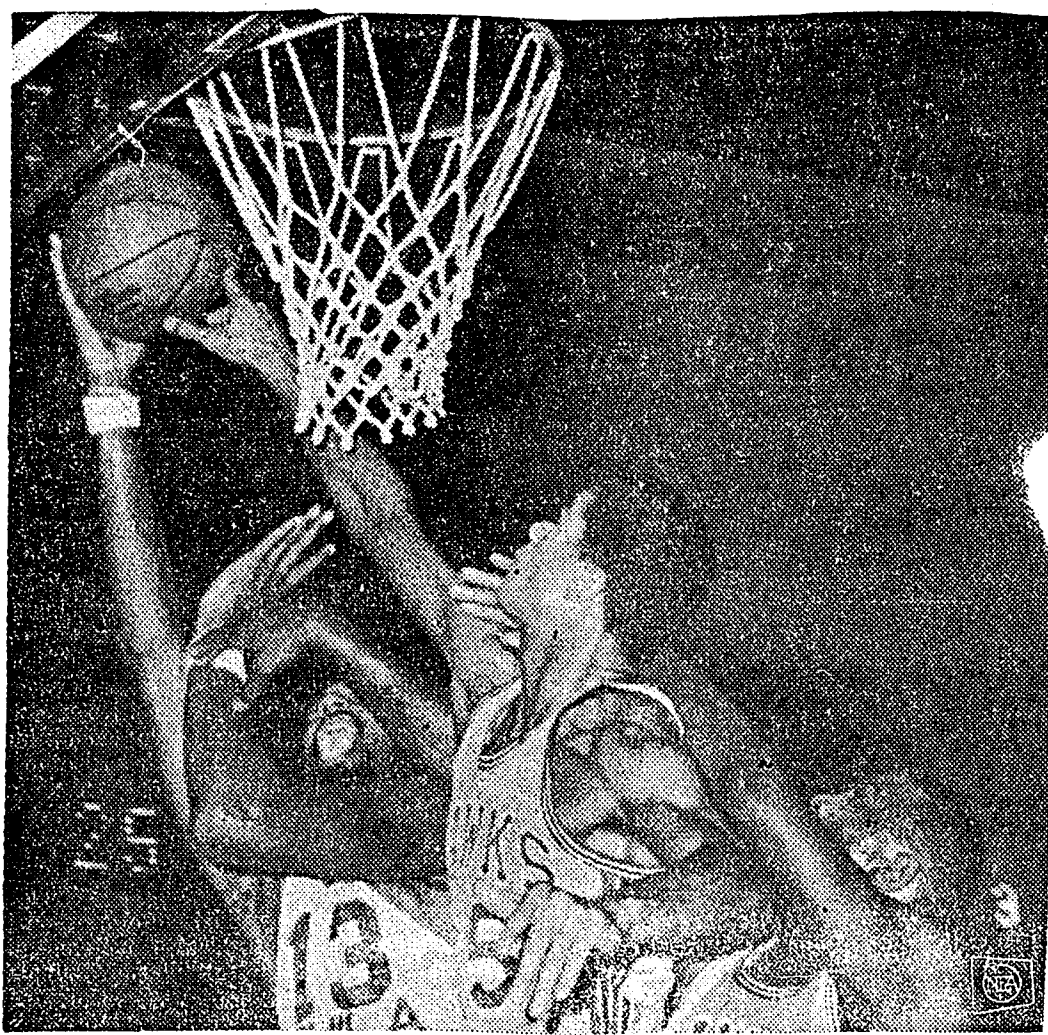

In the American League, Houston plays at Kansas City and Boston is at New York. Green Bay can move to within one-half game of Western Conference leader Baltimore by handing Los Angeles its 10th loss in 11 games. The Packers won their first meeting by only 6-3, but their offense finally started rolling again last week with a 38-point performance against Minnesota.

The victory gave ninth-ranked Tennessee a tie with Florida for third place in the Southeastern Conference race. This is the highest the Vols have finished since 1956, when they had a 10-0 record and won the championship.

The triumph also set the stage for a pre-bowl game next Saturday at Memphis between Rose Bowl-bound UCLA, No. 4 in the nation, and Tennessee, a Bluebonnet Bowl choice.

All the scoring was packed into the first half, with Tennessee getting one touchdown in the first quarter and two in the second. Toby Wilt kicked a 25-yard field goal for Vanderbilt in the second period.

Vanderbilt 0 3 0 0-3

When Big Wilt Moves A Muscle, Somebody Else Has To Twitch

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK — (NEA) — The cop guarding the door to the Philadelphia dressing room in Madison Square Garden spryly ducked aside when Wilt Chamberlain charged in at halftime.

"Whe! Don't ever want to get in that man's way," said the special policeman, who stood a foot shorter and weighed 80 pounds less than Chamberlain. "He may look tall and skinny, but let me tell you he's one big, strong man."

"Chamberlain reminds me of the story of the guy who mated a wild bull with a tiger," the cop went on. "The guy didn't know what to call it, but when it growled, he listened."

It's much the same in the National Basketball Association. When the goateed 76ers' superstar so much as moves a muscle, somebody else twitches.

"Wilt can make it as easy or as tough on you as he wants," said Ray Scott, the Detroit Pistons' bulky 6-9 center-forward. "Sure, he expects guys playing against him to play as hard as he does, and he respects you for it."

"But any guy who wants to play 'who's boss' with Wilt had better forget it," Scott laughed. "He's so strong, so tough and so basketball-wise that he can bruise you up under the boards and make it look easy."

Chamberlain, it must be noted, has never fouled out of an NBA game.

Scott recalled a time he outmaneuvered Chamberlain beneath the bucket to snatch a rebound. Or so he thought.

"I was holding that ball just as tightly as I could, and Wilt reached over me and grabbed it away with one hand — just like that!" Scott said.

Did Scott learn anything from that experience?

"Yeah, I learned not to be surprised if it happens again."

The New York Knicks' 6-11 center, Walt Bellamy, no weakling himself, says Chamberlain's physical strength is his greatest asset in basketball, not his height, which is 7-1, nor his reach, which is way up there.

"There are a few players who can jump with Wilt," Bellamy said. "There's no one, though, who can outmuscle him for the ball, or consistently out-position him under the boards, or impede his dunk shot, and his driving for the basket."

Bellamy claims that on "pure physical strength," Chamberlain is in a class by himself in the NBA.

"The gap between Wilt and the next strongest player is a big one."

Jimmy Brown, the great and powerful Cleveland Browns fullback, one of Chamberlain's close friends, calls Wilt "the strongest athlete in the world, bar none."

Massive Wayne Embury of the Cincinnati Royals has said of Wilt: "He has muscles he doesn't even know about."

And so on.

Granted Chamberlain is strong, but just how strong is he? Is it true he can clean and jerk 435 pounds; does he work out regularly with weights; does he agree with Brown that he's the strongest athlete in the world; has he ever met a man whose strength compares with his?

"Compare, compare," Chamberlain snapped back at the questions. "Man, why does somebody always want to compare me with something or someone?"

Wilt has said those questions come under what he calls the "goon bit" and made it quite clear once again he's tired of

Irish Held To 0-0 Tie By Miami

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A fierce Miami defense made two magnificent last-half stands Saturday night and the Hurricanes battled sixth-ranked Notre Dame to a scoreless deadlock before a roaring crowd of 68,077 in the Orange Bowl.

Miami stopped Notre Dame's big three running backs — Bill Conjar — in two desperate thrusts at the Hurricane goal, forcing Ken Ivan to go for field goals. He missed them both from short distance.

A scrapping defensive team Wolski, Nick Eddy and Larry led by Miami's fine end, Ed Weisacowsky, held the first Irish thrust at the six, and Ivan's field goal try from the 12 was wide.

In the last period, Bill Zloch took Notre Dame to the air in a final big effort. As he hit Eddy with passes of 18 and 13 yards, the Irish moved quickly into scoring position.

Then the runners took over and Notre Dame rammed to a first down at the three. But Conjar was held to one yard and an illegal procedure penalty pushed the Irish back five yards to the seven.

The drive was over when Eddy and Wolski were dumped for losses.

answering them.

"You see me on the court. You know I can play ball. Everybody knows what I can do," he said. "As far as my strength goes, let's just say I'm strong and let it go at that."

Fine, Wilt. Anything you say, fella.

Signs Point To Brisk Trading During Winter Baseball Meet

Associated Press Sports Writer
FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — All signs point to brisk business at the swap counter during the annual major-minor baseball convention starting Monday.

Having hurdled some of their more pressing problems — selection of a new commissioner, restoration of a game of the week television spectacular, establishment of a free agent and unrestricted draft, and the creation of a top level front office staff — the baseball moguls will have more time to discuss activity on the field and personnel changes.

Of concern to the club owners is the admitted deterioration of baseball's image in recent years. While steps already have been taken to regain public confidence — such as restoring some of the commissioner's former powers — the owners are convinced the game must be made more attractive.

A number of proposals are on the agenda designed to dress up the game. These proposals, recommended by the general managers, include the encouragement of cooperation by players and managers with the public, crackdown on stalling tactics and elimination of fraternization on the field.

New Cabinet Created

The owners already have created a commissioner's cabinet that includes an administrative assistant and directors for broadcasting, public information, amateur baseball and player affairs. At the time William D. Eckert, former Air Force general, was unanimously elected baseball commissioner, Lee MacPhail of the Baltimore Orioles was named as his administrative assistant.

Judge Robert Cannon of Milwaukee, counsel for the major league players, is virtually certain of being named director in charge of player affairs. Tom Gallery, formerly head of National Broadcasting Company's sports affairs, is expected to be named director of broadcasting.

Machinery also will be put in motion to centralize all top offices, including those of the two major league presidents and the minor league head, under one roof.

The public's prime interest, however, is the trading of players, which has been greatly stimulated in recent years by the introduction of a three-week inter-league trading period from Nov. 21 through Dec. 12.

Most Mentioned

The players most often mentioned in swap rumors include Dick Stuart and Wes Covington of the Philadelphia Phillies, Bob Allison and Rich Rollins of the Minnesota Twins, Rico Carty and Hank Fischer of the Milwaukee Braves, Joe Pepitone and Bill Bouton of the New York Yankees, Orlando Cepeda of the San Francisco Giants, Jimmie Gentile of the Houston Astros, Leon Wagner of the Cleveland Indians, Jim O'Toole and Joey Jay of the Cincinnati Reds, Curt Simmons and Bob Purkey of the St. Louis Cardinals, Ed Charles of the Kansas City Athletics and Bob Rodgers of the California Angels.

The hottest rumor is that the Yankees may trade Pepitone to the ards in exchange for southpaw Al Jackson, recently acquired by St. Louis in a swap that sent third baseman Ken Boyer to the New York Mets. Also a possibility is a Yankee-Giant deal involving Bouton and Cepeda.

It is also no secret that the Yankees will listen to offers for Roger Maris, their one-time home run king. Like Cepeda, he missed a good part of the 1965 season because of injuries.

Nicklaus Keeps Cajun Golf Lead

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus shot a one-under-par 71 Saturday and remained in the lead of the $32,000 Cajun Classic by one stroke.

Hot on the heels of the Masters champ, who had a 54-hole score of 207, were seven par-bunched at 208. There were four more at 209 and five at 210.

Pressing Nicklaus were Fred Haas, Bert Weaver, Claude King, Kermit Zarley, Rex Baxter Jr., Dave Huskey and Tom Nieporte.

Zarley and Dave Ragan, who had a 210 total, had the best rounds of the day — five under 67s on the par 72, 6,555-yard Oakbourne Country Club course. Baxter, who won the Cajun Classic in 1963, had a 70. Hiskey had 71, Nieporte and Haas 70 each and Weaver 71.

The group of 209 included rookie John Schlee, Dudley Wyszog, Harold Kneese, and Rocky Thompson. The 210 bunch included Ragan, rookie Al Kelley, Frank Reade, defending champion Miller Barber and Jack McGowan.

Frank Camp of Louisville and Odus Mitchell of North Texas are the coaching deans of Missouri Valley football. Each is in his 20th season as a head college coach — all at the same school.

Grabowski, Nobis Are First Drafts

Illini Star Picked By Miami Team

NEW YORK (AP) — The new Miami Dolphins tapped Illinois fullback Jim Grabowski as the No. 1 pick in the American Football League draft Saturday, but the biggest stir was created by the unprecedented length of time it took New York and Oakland to make their first-round selections.

It took 4 hours and 3 minutes for the AFL to make its first-round picks—compared with a little more than one hour last year—and it took the Jets almost six hours before they finally decided on their No. 1 pick, Michigan tackle Bill Yearby.

The Jets actually picked Yearby, whom they immediately signed, while the other clubs were working on second-round choices.

Oakland, meanwhile, had been called to the phone for the first time at 11:08 a.m. and passed. The Raiders also passed on the next three rounds, and after 6½ hours had elapsed, still had not taken their No. 1 pick.

Finally, at 9:14 p.m., the Raiders named Kentucky halfback Roger Bird as their No. 1 choice, although for some undetermined reason they released the names of their second, third, fifth and seventh selections prior to the announcement on Bird.

Oakland's selection of Bird officially closed the first round of the AFL draft after 12 hours and 56 minutes. When Oakland finally announced its No. 1 pick, the remainder of the league was selecting in the seventh round.

The Raiders immediately announced the signing of Bird. He joined Yearby and Minnesota end Aaron Brown, Kansas City's selection, as first-round players who had signed. Oakland also signed Bucknell end Tom Mitchell, their No. 3 pick.

Grabowski, who broke Red Grange's career and single game rushing records en route to a 10-game total of 1,258 yards this season, was the Dolphins' bonus pick as the AFL draft began at 8:18 a.m.

At the same time the Dolphins, who will field a team for the first time in 1966, named Kentucky quarterback Rick Norton their regular No. 1 choice under the liberalized drafting procedures worked out to help stock the new club.

The rest of the first round went this way: Purdue tackle Karl Singer was selected by Boston, Purdue tackle Jerry Shay by Denver and Texas linebacker Tommy Nobis by Houston before New York passed.

Then Kansas City took Brown, and Oakland passed. San Diego picked Los Angeles State tackle Don Davis and Buffalo selected Mississippi halfback Mike Dennis.

Nobis also was a first-round selection of Atlanta in the NFL. Shay eventually was signed by Minnesota of the NFL and Grabowski was selected by Green Bay on the NFL's first round.

The AFL's early picks coincided closely with a published report that the AFL had held six rounds of its draft earlier in the year. Of 21 players picked who appeared on the published list — 19 were picked by clubs assigned in the story. Two were incorrect.

New York and Oakland did not lose their rights to first draft choices. Under the rules they were allowed to name their No. 1 picks at any time but were exposing their hopefuls to teams further down the list who were continuing to draft.

Hired Babysitters
Another AFL official, Al Lo-Casale of the San Diego Chargers, said the NFL had hired 250 "babysitters" to spirit college players to retreats where they would be out of AFL reach.

"One college coach called me Friday," said the Chargers' player personnel director, "and said that he had to throw NFL representatives off his campus."

His team is in a bowl game and, with the babysitters around, he said his players couldn't concentrate.

Three Illinois players — halfback Sam Price, linebacker Don Hansen and defensive back Ron Ackis — walked into the AFL draft and said the rival National League had paid their way to New York.

The NFL said that was so and that the players had been brought here to watch the New York Giants play the Chicago Bears Sunday.

Carlinville at 63-47 Victory

PALMYRA — Carlinville, behind Ron Snidle's hot hand, piled up a big first-half lead then coasted to a 63-47 basketball victory over Northwestern, here Saturday night.

Snidle, who threw in 30 points for the night, collected 19 in the first half when the Cavaliers piled up a 38-23 advantage. Snidle hit seven buckets from 15 feet over the Northwestern zone defense in the first half.

For the losing Wildcats Gary Hunt was the big gun with 21 points for the evening.

The Detroit Lions didn't get a first-round pick because they previously traded it to Green Bay.

Besides Nobis and Shay, 10 other NFL first-round selections were named by the AFL. They are Grabowski, Peay, Hindman, Rice, McAdams, Morin, Leftridge, Ball, Johnson and Gogolak.

When the draft moved into the second round, Atlanta grabbed defensive back Nick Rassas of Notre Dame, and Los Angeles snared Heisman Trophy winner Mike Garrett, Southern California halfback.

Other second-round selections included tackles Walt Barnes of Nebraska by Washington, tackle Harold Lucas of Michigan State by St. Louis and halfback Nick Eddy of Notre Dame by Detroit as a future.

Each team was allotted one hour for the first round, 30 minutes for the second and third round, 15 minutes for the fourth and fifth and 10 minutes for the remaining 15 rounds.

Marathon Last Year
Last year the NFL waded, through 27 hours and 10 minutes of studying, calling, thinking and selecting.

As last year, the league conducted the draft in a New York hotel ballroom and in various NFL cities throughout the country. At the hotel, team representatives sat at small, individual tables, papers and telephones in front of them.

The selection of Gogolak in the first round was something of a rarity in that he is strictly a specialist and an Ivy Leagueer. No one could recall the last time a specialist had been selected in the opening round.

Grabowski is another record-breaker, having surpassed two of Red Grange's rushing records at Illinois.

New Atlanta Club Tabs Texas Ace

By BUFORD GREEN Sports Editor BETTER THAN A RECORD BOOK

You need not look up reams of old records, consult newspaper files or call sports editors. Should you desire any choice bit of info from the sports world, past or present, we suggest you consult one of our favorite "characters," if you can find him.

The trouble with "Ole J. W.," a part (a large part we suspect), of his stands border more on the emotional than factual side.

"Ole J. W." was right on schedule after last Monday's Clay-Patterson showing. Passing judgement at the local "press club," J. W. just flatly refused to believe "the great one" could have stayed more than a round or two with "the real champions" of the past.

You see, J. W. is one of those few who believe that the world's sports stars of today are "minor leaguers" as compared to the oldtimers; the particular sport doesn't matter.

"That loud-mouthed so-and-so should be ashamed to even think he would be allowed in the same ring with Louis or Marciano. Now there were some real fighters," charges J. W.

Moving down a stool to accommodate an interested newcomer, J. W. goes on, "I saw them all. They just don't make them the way they used to. Why, 'The Rock' would have had him (Clay) talking, but to himself."

"But it's all just as I've always said, the oldtimers had it all over these youngsters we have today. You take Cobb, Grange, Mikus, Owens and the like. They would be in a league all their own now." (It doesn't make any impression on J. W. when told times, records and performances of these oldtimers of yesteryear are no longer anywhere on the record books, or that today's athletes are bigger, faster and better-trained.)

J. W. also disagrees with today's doctors and physiologists who contend, with figures to back them up, that the human race has and will continue to improve physically, and therefore there is no end in sight to what tomorrow's athletes will do. Such things as 100-yard dashes in under nine seconds, 4:40 miles, etc., are foreseen, but this fellow can't see it.

"The oldtimers tried harder, had more determination and never quit. That's more important than being bigger or faster," contends our expert. "It's too bad you young whipper-snappers couldn't have seen Louis or Marciano. Rock would have taken him with no trouble at all." (Marciano's comment after Monday's fight, I would like to have fought Clay, we would have had a good fight.)

More about Ole J. W. later.

Here 'N' There: It now appears that the Illinois College-Culver-Stockett basketball game, originally scheduled for Tuesday night, will be played Thursday, although the date is not definite. The game was postponed the past week when long-time Culver coach W. A. (Bill) Herrington died Thursday. The game will be played in Canton, Mo.

The Harlem Globetrotters will appear in Jacksonville New Year's Eve, sponsored by the local Police Benevolent Association, Unit 25, composed of all local police officers.

Plans as of a few days ago called for the first unit of the Trotters, a 40-piece Yugoslavian dance group and ageless baseball personality Satchel Paige to appear in a two-hour show at the JHS Bowl.

According to Trotters advance men, this is one of the few, if not the first, times that the first team of the world-traveling basketball wizards has appeared in a town this size for years. They will be stopping off in Jacksonville between dates at St. Louis and Rock Island.

Local basketball gets underway in a big first week in Jacksonville this week. Six games are on tap for city fans, with all three prep and both college outfits playing home dates this week.

Two of the most recent college coaching changes point out the big part winning football games plays in college circles. The University of Iowa recently handed coach Jerry Burns the pink slip, before the last game of the season (a somewhat confusing move). The Hawkeyes were 0-7 in Big Ten play. Meanwhile, Duke coach Bill Murray announced right after his Blue Devils had wrapped up a winning but not overly successful year, that he had had enough. Winning at least gave him the right to call his shot.

The YMCA Basketball league, we're afraid, is going to fall below expected success soon if a couple of changes aren't made. Original plans were to have one registered official work the games with another official from one of the teams not playing. No registered officials have worked yet. We understand that league officials have contacted several registered referees in town, but none will agree to help. The pay is not what they receive for working high school and college games. The other beef from this corner is that a few, very few, of the players who act like "self-appointed comedians" at times. True, this is not high-pressure competition, but much of this clowning and interest is sure to fall off.

TRIPLE TIE—This is the first triple dead heat to win at Sportsman's Park. It is the second such triple tie in Illinois thoroughbred racing history. The horses finishing nose and nose in the 6-furlong sprint for 2-year-olds are Paddy O'Rock 1, Anthony Skoronski up, Miss Brandy, middle, ridden by Juan Dominguez, and McWillin, on the rail, with Robert Gaffione in the saddle.

Garrett Erases Rushing Record

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Halfback Mike Garrett closed out his football career at the University of Southern California Saturday — setting a national collegiate rushing record to go along with his Heisman Trophy — as the Trojans smothered Wyoming 56-6.

Garrett was given a standing ovation twice during the game by the crowd of 39,233 in Memorial Coliseum.

The first ovation came on the first play of the second quarter when Garrett slammed out a four-yard gain.

It gave him a three-year total rushing mark of 3,168 and broke the record of 3,166 set by Ollie Matson of the University of San Francisco in 1949-50-51.

He carried the ball 24 times and gained 112 yards for a record 3,221 yards.

The second ovation came when Coach John McKay withdrew his seniors in the closing minute. Garrett was the last one to leave.

Garrett scored three touchdowns on bursts of two or less yards and hauled a scoring strike 30 yards to Dave Moton.

Big Ten Basketball Teams Begin Action

CHICAGO (AP)—The Big Ten basketball season crashes onto the sports scene next week with conference teams embroiled in 19 games.

Round one is Wednesday night with Ohio State at Missouri, Butler at Illinois, St. Joseph's (Ind.) at Indiana, Tennessee at Michigan, North Dakota at Minnesota and Nebraska at Wisconsin.

On Thursday, Iowa opens by entertaining Pepperdine and Purdue makes its start at home against Virginia Poly.

Illinois and Ohio State point westward Friday, stopping at Brigham Young and UCLA, respectively.

Saturday's slate is loaded with intersectional traffic. Notre Dame is at Wisconsin, Bowling Green at Michigan, Western Michigan at Michigan State, Iowa State at Minnesota, Ohio U. at Northwestern, Detroit at Purdue, Illinois at UCLA, Indiana at Oklahoma and Iowa at Evansville.

In addition the area's big independents are busy with this schedule: Wednesday Illinois Wesleyan at DePaul, Lewis at Notre Dame, U. of Windsor at Loyola and Wisconsin-Milwaukee at Bradley, Saturday DePaul at Marquette, Northeast Missouri at Loyola and Northern Michigan at Bradley.

Three Contenders

Defending champion Michigan, Iowa and Minnesota generally are regarded the Big Ten leading contenders. The Wolverines lost Bill Buntin but Cazzie Russell returns with eight other lettermen, including 6-foot-10 Craig Dill and consistent scorer Oliver Darden.

Iowa bristles with four starters including Chris Pervall (507 points) and George Peeper (409) plus a pair of prize sophomores, Dick Agnew and Huston Breedlove.

Mel Northway is gone from Minnesota and Don Yates didn't make it academically. But Archie Clark and Lou Hudson return. Tom Kondla, 6-3, will replace Northway.

Four starters are back at Northwestern, a team that has great rebounding. Mike Waver, 6-5 rookie, could become a starter which also includes Jim Pitts, Walt Tiberti and Ron Kozicki.

Dave Schellhase leads Purdue, whose new coach is George King. Illinois and Indiana are rebuilding. Michigan State, Wisconsin and Ohio State expect improvement but not enough to take it all.

Franklin Takes 48-35 Hoop Edge

FRANKLIN — A 21 point effort by Bluffs guard Wendy Sapp proved to be not enough here Saturday night, as the Franklin Flashes downed the Bluejays by a 48-35 margin.

Sapp recorded 12 points in the second half of play, keeping the visitors in contention until midway through the fourth period when the Flashes ran their earlier five to seven point bulge into a 15 point advantage.

Darryl Smith paced the local scorers with 17 for the night.

The win moves Franklin to a 1-1 mark for the campaign, while Bluffs stands 0-1.

UCLA Rated Top College Outfit

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The UCLA Bruins, defending national champions, were picked Saturday as the No. 1 team in the pre-season Associated Press college basketball poll for the new campaign opening Wednesday.

The charges of Coach Johnny Wooden, who will be trying for an unprecedented third straight NCAA title, beat out the Michigan Wolverines in the annual poll by an AP panel of 30 sports writers and broadcasters.

A year ago Michigan edged UCLA for the No. 1 spot in the pre-season poll but lost to UCLA in the NCAA championship final last March.

The teams again dominated this year's poll with UCLA getting 22 of the 30 first place votes to Michigan's four. The Bruins collected a total of 387 points on the basis of 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 through 10 places to Michigan's 248.

Duke Picked Third

The Duke Blue Devils edged the St. Joseph Hawks of Philadelphia for third place with 154 points to 150. The Blue Devils and the Hawks each received two first place votes. Vanderbilt, the only other team to get more than 100 points, landed fifth place with 133.

Rounding out the pre-season Top Ten, in order, were Providence, Minnesota, Kansas, Bradley and Kansas State. Providence had 97 points, Minnesota 82, Kansas 80, Bradley 74 and Kansas State 46.

Eight of the pre-season Top Ten open the season Wednesday. Tennessee is at Michigan, Milwaukee-Wisconsin at Bradley, North Dakota at Minnesota, Wittenberg at Vanderbilt, Hofstra at St. Joseph's, Kansas State at Creighton, Arkansas at Kansas and Virginia Tech meeting Duke at Greensboro, N.C.

UCLA opens at home Friday against Ohio State and on Saturday entertains Illinois.

Between You'n' Me

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (NEA) — One of the unpublicized facts of Cassius (Ali Babble) Clay's stay in Las Vegas was his visit to a school for retarded children. And one little guy wanted to know "Mr. Clay, is it all right for little boys to beat up little girls?"

The heavyweight champion, unflustered, answered, "No, because the only way to do right is to be nice to people."

It's advice, oddly, that he himself can't apply because of the arrogant face he projects to the public. As he admitted in a postfight confession, "I have ways of humiliating people." And don't kid yourself, the boogie that greets his every appearance in a ring is beginning to get to him. His plaint to the press:

"It looks like you should love a man like me," a minute after he sputtered, "I don't expect to get no justice in my greatness."

When the career of Ali Babble is chronicled, they'll have to tell how Angelo Dundee, his manager, saved it when he refused to cut Clay's gloves in Miami and physically, by the seat of the pants, shoved him back into the center of the ring when Ali wanted to quit.

Angelo walks a tightrope in his relations with the champion because of the ticklish Black Muslim connections. Most rabid Muslim in the Clay camp is his brother, Rudolph Valentino Clay. One day he came whooping into Angelo and blurted breathlessly: "I got wonderful news." "Yeah," shrugged Angelo, who had some training camp problems. "Great thing happened to me today," continued Rudy. "I'm now Rahman Ali." "Yeah," nodded Dundee, "wonderful."

Dundee, incidentally, once had five champs in different divisions under his wing at one time: Clay, Willie Pastrano (light heavy), Luis Rodriguez (welterweight), Ralph Dupas (junior welter) and Sugar Ramos (featherweight).

Fight tableau: Lou Nova, the old yogi man, cornered Harry Markson, the Garden match.

Not because he was being sent to play for the worst team in baseball, or because he was ending 17 years in the St. Louis Cardinal organization, or because he had to hear of the trade from a newspaperman and not the Cardinal front office.

He's concerned about five other people.

"My family was my first consideration," said Boyer softly, remembering the October day he learned he was being sent to the New York Mets, of all teams, for third baseman Charlie Smith and pitcher Al Jackson.

"I have a wife and four kids—five lives I'm responsible for," the third baseman explained. "You can't help being a little upset when you know this trade affects them as much as it does you."

"Ballplayers all know they face the possibility of being traded someday," Ken said. "Everybody knows that, because every time any player is traded you can read that line in a paper somewhere. But how can you prepare for something like that? You can't, especially with a family, so when it comes you just have to make do."

For Ken Boyer "making do" wasn't so simple.

When word of the trade came, Boyer was home in suburban St. Louis with his daughter Suzie, 13. "Not thinking, I just blurted out to her, 'You're going to be a Met, and then she blurted out—crying."

"There was my first problem," he said. "I heard of the trade."

When the season opens in April, Ken will move into an apartment with his brother, Clete, the third baseman for that other New York team. "I think they're called the Yankees," he deadpanned.

After school's out in St. Louis, Boyer's family will move into an apartment in New York, which Ken says causes problems bigger than just finding a suitable place to live.

"There'll be the devil to pay if I can't find a place for the boys to play ball. Then I have to make sure there's a smooth transition from Cardinal fans to Met fans, which probably sounds silly to anybody who doesn't have four kids."

"Worst of all," Ken said grinning, "now that I'm in New York I've got to put up with Clete's trying to convert my boys into Yankee fans. Clete never lets up."

As for the trade itself, Boyer said that, yes, he felt both teams benefited; yes, he felt that at 34 he had several good years left; no, he wouldn't retire after next season as rumored; yes, he expected a salary cut after his worst major league season in which the Cardinals slipped to seventh from first in 1964, and, yes, he looked at playing for the Mets "at my teams. His youngest daughter, Janie, 6, was "confused, and still is."

His wife, Kathleen, was numb. "Then there was the house to consider. New accommodations for the family in New York next summer, whether or not to take the kids to spring training. School.

"Well, slowly but surely we're working things out," Ken said. "I suppose it will be awhile before any of us gets used to it—the change in environment and all that will come."

A tinge of strangeness indeed. The transition may be tougher for Mets fans.

Say Huddle In Pro Ball On Way Out

By MIKE RATHIET
Associated Press Sports Writer

When the Houston Oilers go back in their huddle Sunday don't be surprised if time is called and the water boy rushes out with 11 cups and a pot of coffee.

For like the flying wedge and the drop kick, the huddle is becoming obsolete — at least in professional football.

That's the thought of Houston Coach Hugh (Bones) Taylor, who frankly admits:

"Our huddle serves mostly like a coffee break. It gives the quarterback time to collect his thoughts."

Taylor's contention that the huddle, as it stems, is on the way out stems from the growing use of pro football's latest offensive technique—the so-called automatic, audible or check-off call.

All three terms are applied to the maneuver in which the quarterback comes to the line of scrimmage and then changes the play originally called in the huddle in order to combat the defensive alignment.

Taylor, who recalls the days when audibles were called by using colors as the key words—his favorites were lavender blue and chartreuse—put the simplified audible system together when he took over the club this season.

Jet Coach Agrees

New York Jets coach Weeb Ewbank, whose Jets meet Boston in the only other game on Sunday's American Football League program, agreed that the quarterback can't turn his back on the defense any more.

"I send in plays occasionally," Ewbank explained. "But I can't get mad if my quarterback doesn't use them. There are too many defenses today."

"You send in a play to face a certain formation and it changes as soon as your team finishes huddling. So the quarterback has to check off and call his own play anyway."

Ewbank's check-off caller is Joe Namath, who passed for four touchdowns against the Oilers last week and led the Jets to their fourth straight victory and into second place in the Eastern Division. The Jets will be out to even their record at 5-1 against the Patriots.

The Patriots tied Kansas City last week when veteran quarterback Babe Parilli engineered an 80-yard drive in the last quarter. Boston still is bogged down, however, because of the lack of a consistent running attack to complement Parilli's passing.

Ken Boyer Leads Five Lives From St. Louis to New York

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Ken-ton Lloyd Boyer was upset about the trade.

Mac Takes Third In Mat Tourney

HIRAM, Ohio — MacMurray's highly-touted wrestling squad made their 1965-66 mat debut, finishing third in the nine-team Hiram Invitational Tournament.

Pacing the high finish was heavyweight Bob Kellogg's first, and seconds by Paul Nelson at 152 and Gary Henning at 160. The Clans also garnered three thirds and two fourths.

Clarion State College of Pennsylvania won the meet with a total of 98 points, followed by host Hiram College with 78 and MacMurray with 60.

Clarion won two first, at 117 and 191, Hiram two, at 130 and 160. Miami of Ohio took three firsts, Ohio University, Edinboro State of Penn. and MacMurray each earned one first.

Behind Kellogg's first and the seconds by Nelson and Henning, Clansmen taking thirds were John Crumland at 117, John Smith at 123 and Roger Furgusson at 145.

Ron Otto, at 137, and Rich Johnson, at 130, garnered fourths for the young Highlanders.

The order of finish with scores: Clarion State College of Pennsylvania 98, Hiram, Ohio 78, MacMurray 60, Miami of Ohio 54, Edinboro State College of Pennsylvania and Rochester Institute of New York 22 (tie), Ohio University 21, West Virginia University 10, Slippery Rock State College of Pennsylvania 4.

Balyki Opens Year With 55-46 Win Over Havana

HAVANA — Balyki won a 55-46 basketball game from Havana, here Saturday evening, with their accuracy from the 15-foot mark. The winners connected on 19 of 23 charity throws to offset a field goal deficit.

Havana's 11-9 first-quarter lead vanished at half and the eventual winners sewed the game up with a 17-10 margin in the final eight minutes.

Havana managed only half of their 19 free throws, and connected on only 29 percent of their shots from the field. Balyki hit a respectable 35 percent of their attempts.

Havana is now 0-2, while Balyki is 1-0.

CANDY FOR ALL was the order of the day Friday when Santa arrived at Lincoln Square shopping center. He came into the shopping center at 11 a.m. aboard a pony cart. After debarking from the cart, Santa's helpers provided free rides for the next three hours. Santa was mobbed by anxious tots of all ages and quickly took up residence in his mobile house at the southwest corner of the business center. Santa will broadcast over WLDS Radio at 3:45 p.m. daily until Christmas eve. He will be in residence from 2 to 5 p.m. daily and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

DOWNTOWN, Santa Claus greeted the children from atop Jacksonville's biggest fire truck. Once around the public square with a friendly wave and a bountiful tossing of candy to waiting hands, then into Central Park to take up residence in his new candy cane house, Santa started his pre-Christmas vigil. He will be in residence from 2 to 4 and 7 to 8 p.m. daily, except Sundays, until Christmas eve. A large crowd was on hand Friday at 2 p.m. for his arrival downtown. Daily radio broadcasts will be featured at 3:45 p.m.

Youth Who Fled Accident Scene Gets Jail Term

BEARDSTOWN — A 19-year-old Beardstown youth has been sentenced to seven days in jail and assessed heavy fines.

John S. Newman, told Judge Fred W. Reither in Circuit court here Friday that he left the scene of an accident at 4th and Lafayette streets because he wanted to protect a companion who was on parole.

The judge sentenced Newman to seven days in the county jail on a charge of driving without a valid driver's license, fined him $100 and costs for leaving the scene of an accident and $50 for illegal transportation of liquor.

Other Court Action

Judge Reither fined Dale Sherrill $25 and $25 costs on charges of fishing in Treadway Lake using untaged and baited nets.

Bonds of $50 each were ordered forfeited for two others who failed to appear in connection with charges brought by game wardens.

A number of small claims also were handled in the session in Lincoln courtroom.

RURAL MORGAN MAN INJURED SATURDAY

A rural Franklin man was reported in satisfactory condition by a Passavant hospital spokesman late Saturday night after he sustained injuries in a one-car accident earlier.

Charles R. Wilson, 46, of route one, Franklin sustained head and back injuries when he was thrown from his car about two miles west of Ill. 104 on the Woodson-Franklin road.

State police revealed that Wilson, westbound at the time of the incident, lost control of his auto. The vehicle went off the northside of the road, struck an embankment and spun around, throwing Wilson out of the car.

Police listed the time of the accident at 6:40 p.m.

Holkenbrink Lists Landfill, Finances On Council Agenda

Mayor Byron Holkenbrink has called a special session of the Jacksonville City Council Monday night starting at 7:30 p.m. for the purpose of handling two important matters of business.

Primarily, the council will be required to transfer funds into the general corporate fund so that payroll and other payments due December 1 can be met.

Secondary in nature is the awarding of the city landfill contract which has been under consideration for several weeks.

Members of the city council are paid to meet four times each month. The council does not generally meet on the fifth Monday in regular session unless summoned for specific items of business by the mayor. Chief of Police Charles P. Runkel is responsible for notification of all aldermen concerning the special session.

Funds earmarked for transfer are expected to come from the city's parking revenue account, an annual business transaction accomplished during November or December.

Landfill Problem

The landfill contract at the present location expired September 1. A delay caused by adverse locations for the new landfill site resulted in all bids being thrown out.

New bids were received September 20 and again thrown out.

More bids were received November 8 and included in the specifications a provision for access to the landfill site from a state highway. Three bids were received: Nienhiser and Stocker, $23,000 a site five miles west of the city on State Route 104 near Mauvaisterre Creek; Ivan and Wendell Petefish, $18,990 a site about six miles north on U.S. 67; Walter Brown & Son, $15,000 a site six and one-half miles north on U.S. 67.

Committee Recommends

Members of the municipal services committee visited all three prospective sites and recommended acceptance, Nov. 22, of the Petefish bid. Chairman Bill Gross said the recommendation was made because of the adequacy of the site and access, from a safety point of view, to the highway. The committee recommendation was not unanimous.

Others Object

Several aldermen objected to accepting the Petefish contract because it was not the lowest bid and gathered enough support to delay the award an additional period of time for "personal inspection." Another objection raised was that the forthcoming action was not actually on the printed agenda and should not be acted upon in a hasty manner.

The old contract expired almost three months ago but has been continued by William P.

NORAD Report For Lions Club On Wednesday

An informative presentation "Seconds for Survival" will be the program for the regular meeting of the Jacksonville Lions Club next Wednesday.

Jack H. Phares, director of public relations for General Telephone Company of Illinois, will present the program.

His presentation deals with communications in national defense and the story of North American Air Defense Command. NORAD has the responsibility of defending the North American continent against aerospace attack.

"Seconds for Survival" begins with a movie that shows our country's air defense forces in action during a simulated attack. The film vividly illustrates the importance of instantaneous communications with defense facilities throughout the free world.

Following the film, a telephone call will be placed to NORAD headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colorado, where a briefing officer will answer questions from the audience about the command.

Using a special amplifier and a microphone, both ends of the telephone conversation will be amplified so all may participate in the "Briefing."

Representatives of General Telephone have appeared before various organizations around the state with the presentation.

"GRUBBING" AN OSAGE ORANGE — Everett Lewis of Woodson "puts the blade" to one of the 21 giant Osage Orange trees on the Carroll Rexroat farm six miles north of Jacksonville. The trees, dating back 125 years, are the "largest I've ever seen," Everett noted.

Old Osage Hedge Row 'Dozed Out

Twenty-one granddaddy Osage Orange trees, intertwined with handmade barbed wire, stubbornly gave way to a bulldozer blade Friday.

Estimated to be at least 120 years old, the hedge row was located six miles north of Jacksonville, west of U.S. 67.

The Osage Orange tree was developed as a hedge row in the United States by Jonathan Baldwin Turner in the mid-1800s.

Turner, who arrived in Jacksonville in 1833 to teach at Illinois college, sold farmers on the Osage Orange tree as a useful means of containing livestock.

No pig in his right hide would attempt to negotiate an Osage hedge row and its needle-sharp thorns.

When the tree was planted, and appeared healthy, farmers took the top of the tree, bent it over and planted the top, forming an arch.

Later the arch was cut, producing a new tree. Eventually a hedge row developed.

After "Bet-a-Million" Gates fenced in the west with his new tangled barbed wire, the Osage Orange tree only grew with nature's help.

Had To Be Trimmed

The unruly hedge rows soon to be considered a nuisance, and were grubbed out, often with the use of a stout chain and team of horses.

Those that survived were a constant problem to farmers, driving a team along a path next to the hedge row. The long branches had to be trimmed to keep the wagon path open.

The 21 trees, spread in an east-west line, were located on 190 acres owned by Carroll Rexroat of Jacksonville.

Everett Mason of near Woodson, and his bulldozer, started work on the trees and their 60-foot roots about 9:30 Friday morning.

By mid-afternoon, Mason had three to go.

He said these were the largest Osage Orange trees he had ever come across in his years of removing them.

Rexroat said that by removing the trees it would enable a farmer to plow a half-mile furrow, instead of being "bothered with a turn every quarter mile."

New Berlin Man Injured In Crash

NEW BERLIN — Fritz Knepler of New Berlin was reported in serious condition at St. John's hospital, Springfield, late Saturday with injuries sustained in an accident on the New Berlin-Pleasant Plains road.

Knepler was found lying near his truck shortly before 11 p.m. Saturday. State police were reportedly searching for the occupants of a second truck, apparently abandoned at the scene of the crash, two miles north of New Berlin.

The accident was reported by Mr. and Mrs. John Ridder. Knepler was taken to the hospital by McCullough ambulance.

MINOR INJURIES IN TWO-CAR ACCIDENT

One person complained of possible injuries following a two-car accident at the South Main and Morton intersection about two o'clock Saturday afternoon. City police reports indicated Judy Fuchs of route one, Franklin sustained an abrasion to her elbow in the accident.

She was a passenger in a car operated by Mary M. Boatman of Franklin, which was southbound on Main, turning east onto Morton.

The second vehicle was operated by Linda K. Fairfield of 627 Henry Street, and was turning from East Morton to South Main.

Holy Cross Gift Tea To Be Next Thursday

Last minute preparations are underway by the many committees working toward this year's Christmas Gift Tea, being sponsored next Thursday, Dec. 2nd, by the Auxiliary of Holy Cross Hospital. The social event will be held at the J. D. Klump Home, 3 Duncan Place, from one-thirty to four o'clock in the afternoon. All members and friends of the Auxiliary are welcome.

Above are two members of the Auxiliary, Mrs. Therron Scobie, left and Mrs. Willard (Bill) Ranson. Mrs. Scobie holds a hand made sweater which will be among items at the bazaar and Mrs. Ranson is admiring attractive aprons. The clever snack or cocktail tables were made by Mrs. Paul Hartley and with other gift items, will be available at the gift tea.

Below the hostess for the Tea, Mrs. J. D. Klump, at right, receives some gift items from the Auxiliary president, Mrs. Verne Bergschneider, center and Mrs. Cloyd Schumm, bringing some early donations.

A highlight of the afternoon will be the presenting of the handsome 21 inch color television console. Donations at 35 cents each, or three for one dollar are still being received at the Coffee Shop.

Members are reminded to have their books and money turned in to the Coffee Shop before Thursday or bring very early to the Tea on Dec. 2nd.

There will be home-made pastries and holiday foods also offered for sale at the tea. Members are providing the delicacies for the food booth.

Soroptimists To Sell Fruit Cakes

The Soroptimist Club held its November business meeting at the home of Mrs. Alta Henry, Edgemoor Road, with Miss Bernadine Bush serving as co-hostess.

The president, Mrs. Ruth Howard, presided. The club voted to send a donation to Pathway School. Miss Hazel Graves was appointed to edit two club bulletins. A report was given by Mrs. Alta Henry on the Jacksonville cleanup meeting.

Mrs. Willella Phillips, international goodwill and understanding chairman, reported that the club has a sister club in Costa Rica. Plans were made for Christmas contact.

Chairman of the ways and means committee, Mrs. Dorothy Hess, reported on the fruit cakes. The annual Christmas party will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. Ruth Howard. A gift exchange will be held.

The members selected a Christmas project to be given to a student at the Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School.

Routt High School in 1964 and is employed in the accounting department at General Telephone Company. The groom graduated from Volkswagen Apprenticeship Training Center, Import Motors, Inc., Chicago and is employed by Reeve Volkswagen, Inc.

Other guests attended from the state of Wisconsin, Warsaw, East Moline, Decatur, Taylorville, Springfield, Alton, Wood River, Peoria, Waverly, Murrayville and Winchester.

Delta Theta Tau Chapter Reviews Season

Delta Nu Chapter of Delta Theta Tau Sorority International, under the direction of Mrs. R. J. Little, president has been a busy group.

A rummage sale was held in October which reaped a tidy sum to go into the Philanthropic Fund. In charge of the sale was the "ways and means committee," headed by Mrs. William Hoffmann. On Saturday, Nov. 5th a Country Store was held with homemade candy, spaghetti sauces, salad dressings, etc., sold. The funds received from these projects all go into the Philanthropic Fund and at a later date it will be spent where it is needed the most.

On Monday, Nov. 8th the chapter met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Daniel. After the meeting Mr. and Mrs. Daniel showed movies of their recent trip to Japan.

Plans are now being made for the annual Christmas party, December 6th. It will be at the home of Mrs. Arthur Garry at 6:30 p.m. Plans are also being made for a combination meeting and card party in January.

On Tuesday, November 16th, a dessert card party was held at the Holiday Inn and members brought guests.

A Christmas project was discussed at the meeting, Monday, November 22nd. It was voted not to do anything at Christmas time, but to wait and do something for the aged in nursing homes on Valentines Day and Easter. It was also voted a contribution be given Halfway School.

Delta Nu chapter sent Mrs. Frances Clancy as delegate to Epilson Province Convention in Decatur. This convention was held at the Holiday Inn, Nov. 5-6-7. Mrs. Edward Jackson also attended.

The local chapter is one of 340 active chapters and Alumnae Associations in the International Philanthropic organization, which is one of the oldest and largest of its kind.

Each year on October 16th, Founders Day is observed by all members, honoring the five high school girls who organized the first chapter in Muncie, Indiana in 1903. The local observance was held at the home of Mrs. Wilford Queen with a potluck supper.

Editorial Comment

Cabinet Problems

Being a member of the Cabinet can be frustrating as well as rewarding. Consider the situations in which two members find themselves.

Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz cannot record official progress gains in Negro employment through United States Employment Services. Racial identification on applications has been forbidden since 1962. The idea of a return to keeping racial records meets objection from civil rights leaders, who feel it would be a step backward.

Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor faces a sticky problem. He must decide where 332 million dollars shall be spent to help depressed areas attract new business. Although Congress has set up regulations for distribution, the final interpretation and decisions rest on the secretary of commerce. Connor must tread lightly, decide wisely, and spend economically. It is a situation that is sure to bring both criticism and praise, no matter what decisions he makes.

To be a member of a Cabinet is a great honor and a great responsibility. But it often must seem to the members that no matter how hard a secretary tries, he simply can't win.

Just Level With Us

The past few days have witnessed the government of the United States twice forced to explain away revelations that this country had been twice approached by the North Vietnamese on the question of peace talks in Viet Nam.

The first occurred as long ago as the fall of 1964. The second was in May of this year, following the five-day moratorium on bombing raids and President Johnson's announcement he was ready to talk to anybody anytime without prior conditions.

The one offer was rejected, we are told, because its sincerity was doubted. It was, in the gobbledygook answer given to U.N. Secretary General U Thant, "procedural, not substantive."

The other offer was ignored because, far from being unconditional, it merely reiterated previous unacceptable demands.

It is not difficult to accept these explanations. Only the most naive can believe that the Communists would give up at the bargaining table what they have high hopes of winning on the battlefield.

What has disturbed so many people is not that these may have been lost chances for ending the killing in Viet Nam. We have to trust the men who run the government.

But what is of grave concern is that these men, from the President on down, seem unwilling to trust the people.

What reason not to apprise the country of a Communist peace feeler in 1964? What reason for the President to declare "in all candor" last July that he had never received any peace tender of any kind.

It is bad enough when the truth is suppressed, later to be exposed to the embarrassment of the nation.

Far worse is that absolute lies about the situation in Viet Nam have been consistently fed to the American public ever since we became embroiled there a decade ago.

Too many American sons are being called upon to die like men in the rice paddies and jungles for American people to be treated like children any longer.

All How You Look At It

Dear Ann:

Seeks Punishment To Fit "Wrong-doing"

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: I'm a father who has a serious problem and I need your help. First I want to thank the police officer who stopped my son. He is an alert and devoted public servant and I want him to know I am grateful.

The officer spotted Bud driving a very expensive car. He stopped the boy and asked for identification. After a few phone calls the officer was satisfied that the car was not stolen.

In my opinion the car WAS stolen. It belonged to the parents of another teenager (my son's friend). The boy's parents were out of town for the weekend and their young son said it was O.K. for Bud to take the car for the evening.

I say Bud should be punished by having his driving privileges taken away for one year. My wife says no harm was done, so we should forget it. I need your help.

—STEPPED ON FATHER

Dear Father: The boy did wrong and no amount of twisting and turning can change the facts, but it's doubtful that he would be found guilty in a court of law.

Your wife's notion that "no harm was done so forget it" is outrageous.

Bud should be punished — but I feel that the penalty you recommend is too severe.

I suggest that Bud be denied automobile privileges for three months. This would be reasonable and just.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 24, married, have a two-year-old child and another on the way. The problem is my mother.

From the day our child was born mother has sent gifts until my husband is ready to blow his stack. She is making him feel like a charity case. My husband earns a modest salary but we get along just fine.

Last night mother announced that she plans to buy everything from nursery furniture to a complete layette for the new baby. My husband left the room. We don't need anything new, Ann. The baby can use many of the things the first child has had.

—NOT FOR SALE

How can we let mother know we want her love and not a barrage of gifts? —NOT FOR SALE

Dear Not: A gift can be many things. It can be an expression of thoughtfulness and love and it can also be a payoff, an eraser of guilt, a club—and a device to create indebtedness.

Tell your mother she is creating a problem with her excessive generosity and that you can accept only birthday and Christmas gifts from now on. And make it stick. The first time she sends an "extra"—send it back.

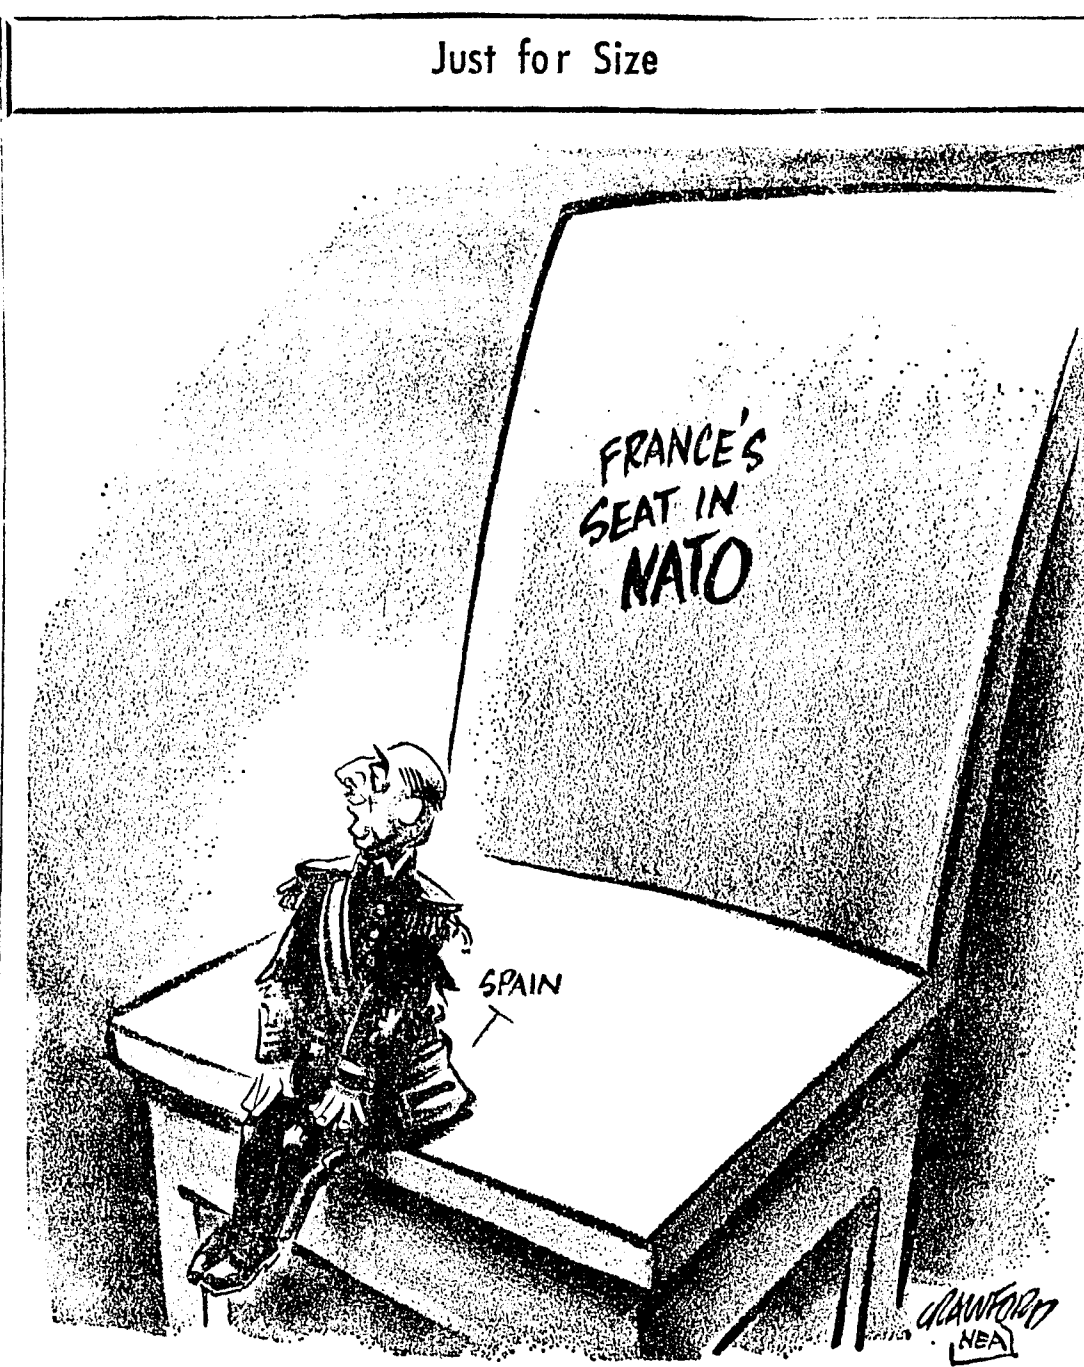

Confidential To How Did It Look To Others: I don't know. I wasn't there. But YOU were. No person can make you look like a fool without your full cooperation.

Confidential To Black and Blue and Embarrassed: Tell him to practice his judo holds on his male friends. I don't blame your father for being burned up. (This is a way to spend an evening?)

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

We, the Women

Are You 'Nice Little Girl'?

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
As a child she had a best friend who cared nothing about other people's opinions about what Nice Little Girls should do. Once, the friend, in a fit of temper, threw a dish at a visiting aunt. And once, as she and the friend were walking home from school, a boy threw a snowball at them. The friend dropped her books and, taking firmer hold of her metal lunchbox, chased the boy into a field where she beat him with it. Watching, the Nice Little Girl who always did what Nice Little Girls should do, felt a sudden passion of wistful envy of the friend's immediately available ability to avenge herself on anyone who offended her.

Years later, she married a man who cared nothing about other people's opinions of what Nice Responsible Men should do. If his employers or business colleagues offended him in any way, he lost his temper with them—and got himself fired. He came home when he pleased, paid bills when he pleased and made love to other women when that pleased him.

Thus, he began to disappoint her opinions of what Nice Responsible Men should do, as well as other people's. She grew to hate him. But she could do nothing about the outrages he inflicted on her because her old, secret, envious admiration of people who do as they please made it impossible to know how she hated him. She endured her wretched life to its end in the delusion that she was the faithful heroine of one of the world's great love affairs.

I tell her story for a young woman reader who writes:

"Though I'm madly in love with the man I'm going with, I can't understand why he hurts me by treating me the way he does. He can't stand to be asked why he's broken a date with me. If I say anything, he accuses me of trying to 'possess' him and dominate him. He is also very critical of my clothes and is never satisfied with the things I've said at a party. Am I wrong to object to this treatment? I love him so much..."

Did you by chance have a childhood girl friend who did as she pleased? I bet you did. I also bet you felt intense envy of her ability to do as she pleased.

I think you've always been a Nice Little Girl who always does what Nice Little Girls should do. Otherwise, you wouldn't be asking me if it's "wrong" to object to insult. You wouldn't care if your objections to insult were "wrong" or "right." You'd beat your young man over the head with a lunchbox and be done with him. But you can't, can you? You've just got to envy his ability to do as he pleases in the delusion that your envy is love. It isn't. It's hangover from a Nice Little Girl childhood.

FINDING THE WAY

Time for Self-Control

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.

Protest has always been a significant part of the American scene. Our nation came into being as a "revolution," our political life has been geared to the freedom of controversy and there is a deep strain of respect for the right to speak up and to speak out. Americans know how to talk back.

This time the crisis demands self-control, in speech as well as in action. There is a quality of courage displayed by men at home as well as on the battlefield, born of selflessness and dedicated to responsible action. That person will dare to protest, stand up and be counted; he will also know when and how to be silent.

We want to be known as a people who know the difference between internationalism and interventionism, between strong defenses and saber-rattling, between freedom and license, between youthful vigor and immaturity. All of this requires self-control. Our nation requires sible political leaders were not seeing his protest. His chief benefit was simply that he was getting something off his own chest. It was probably good therapy for him to release his pent-up frustrations instead of encouraging ulcers but there ought to be a better reason for such actions.

Richard Hofstadter, in his study of anti-intellectualism, states: "Dissenting intellectuals often seem to feel that they are morally on trial for being intellectuals, and their moral responsibility is then interpreted as a responsibility primarily to reputation and destruction, so that the measure of intellectual merit is felt to lie not in imagination or precision, but in the greatest degree of negativism." That's the danger all of us confront. We are liable to be against something without really doing anything about it or shedding any light upon the problem.

South wins the first heart and plays ace and jack of diamonds. West plays the queen on the jack. You can make an extra trick if East holds the ten of diamonds and you play the king from dummy but if West holds the ten-spot, your play of the king tosses your contract into the ash can.

Their advice, to which we subscribe heartily, is to play safe. Make sure of your contract. Some team may not be in game. Others may be in five or six diamonds. By making sure of ten tricks at no trump you beat all part scores and all diamond contracts, and if diamonds do divide 3-1 you will have tied for top.

Now for a little speculation with this hand. Suppose that both opponents follow to the first diamond and that West plays the ten-spot on the second diamond lead.

Can you rise with dummy's king and feel perfectly safe about dropping the queen from East?

The answer is yes unless West happens to be a great player who is gifted with both nerve and imagination.

Such a West player might well play the ten from queen-ten. He would have reasoned as soon as he saw dummy that you as South would play safe in diamonds if he played the queen and would have risked his sure diamond trick in an effort to lull you into going up with dummy's king. So, against such a player you should still make the safety play of ducking.

'Save 2-Party System'—GOP

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON (NEA) — In a little-noticed talk awhile back, Rhode Island's Republican Gov. John Chafee said this:

"There is little future in the Republican party basing its plea for support upon cries of 'preserve the two-party system.'"

"Unless a party has something better to offer than that, it does not deserve to be supported. It can only receive support if it presents a better alternative to the party in office."

Chafee's observation runs directly counter to that currently being offered by a good many national and state GOP leaders, including Richard M. Nixon and National Chairman Ray Bliss.

Coast to coast, Nixon pleads with audiences to elect Republicans in 1966 to "save the two-party system." A Christian Science Monitor survey of GOP state chairmen found most agreeing with John Shott, West Virginia chairman, that the alleged danger to the system is "our big issue in 1966."

As yet there is nothing from the professional polltakers to support this judgment. Certainly the historical record does little to warm the Republican's chilled bones.

They like to hark back to 1938 for evidence that the American electorate will redress the party balance when it is virtually destroyed in a previous election. After a devastating Franklin D. Roosevelt sweep in 1938, the GOP rebounded with a pickup of 75 house seats plus many U.S. Senate seats and governorships.

But in 1938, voters were rebuking the Democrats for a severe recession which destroyed some businesses that had weathered the Great Depression and left the country with more than 10 million unemployed five years after Roosevelt's coming to power.

Furthermore, that year the Republicans fielded a particularly attractive crop of candidates. Into the national eye for the first time came Sen. Robert A. Taft and, as new governors, Harold Stassen of Minnesota, John Bricker of Ohio, Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Raymond Baldwin, Connecticut progressive, Thomas E. Dewey narrowly missed in his first try for the New York governorship.

Still another factor warrants mention. In 1938, voting Democratic at the national level was not the ingrained, deepening habit it appears to have become in 1965. After a long string of Republican victories, the Democrats had begun winning only in 1932. And even the 1938 result left them with almost a 100-seat House margin.

Today, say some analysts, 200 or more of the 218 House seats required for a majority are "safely Democratic." Even if these judgments are overstated, the election record suggests that any big Democratic push—as in 1964—quickly produces a monumental disproportion for that party.

It has to be proved that great numbers of voters are really worried by such disproportions. Ten times since 1932, voters have given the Democrats U.S. House margins of 75 or more seats—including six times when the spread was more than 100.

Today it is 154.

Nor is there any comforting evidence that Americans use the two-party system in a kind of seesaw alternation that gives each party frequent control of the White House. In the first 75 years after the Civil War, Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson were the only Democrats to break in on Republican rule.

Since 1932, Dwight Eisenhower has been the sole Republican to reach the presidency.

U.S. voters have shown no sign of abandoning the two-party system. But much of the time they seem to use it in a way that provides little cheer for the party on the outside looking in.

New Book Appeals to All

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Q—Please tell me about a new book for homemakers published by the Department of Agriculture. Is it free?

A—"Consumers All," just released by the Department of Agriculture, is attractively bound and easy to read. It is crammed with useful information for anyone who buys and uses food, clothing and household furnishings, manages the family's money, and anyone who has a lawn, a garden, a house. It's also about improving the communities, using leisure time, staying healthy, and about all the aspects of USDA work affecting consumers.

You can get "Consumers All" free from your congressman or senator, as long as his supply lasts. You can buy a copy for $2.75 from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Q—Please tell me, does monosodium glutamate have any food value? It is used in lots of recipes and lots of canned foods. Why?

A—According to the Agricultural Year Book, "Food," monosodium glutamate is used only for flavoring. The amounts consumed are too small to make a worthwhile contribution to the ordinary diet. If you or anyone in your family is on a low-salt diet, monosodium glutamate is not permitted because it is one of the more concentrated sources of sodium.

Win: A National Trend; Lose, And It's Local Issues

By WASHINGTON STAFF
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Slumped down in an easy chair in the offices of the Democratic National Committee, party chairman John Bailey smiled wearily at election-night returns which brought both good and bad news.

He summed up the veteran professional's standard public response when confronted with such conflicts:

"Where you win, it's a national trend. Where you lose, it's local issues."

Mayor-elect John V. Lindsay drew a lot of cynical grumbling from reporters when, midway in his last campaign week, he told a news conference he would keep the lights on at City Hall 24 hours a day if he won.

"If the City Hall telephone rings at three in the morning," asked a reporter, "will you be there, Mr. Lindsay?"

Probably not, said the candidate, but there would be someone on hand to take calls about anything the citizens had on their minds.

The answer left the news-men skeptical. One growled aloud:

"I think I'll call up sometime around 3:30 a.m. and announce that I'm coming down right away to pay my taxes."

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary John Gardner and Commissioner of Education Francis Keppel have been close friends for a number of years. It was natural, therefore, for Gardner to rib Keppel as he swore him in recently as assistant secretary for education.

Keppel, who produced the magazine, adding:

"Instead they used another troublemaker." On the cover was a portrait of Fidel Castro.

When four members of the House of Representatives' Public Works Committee left recently to spend a month in Europe inspecting rivers, dams, harbors and flood control projects, several observers were reminded of "Brogan's Law," a favorite Capitol Hill aphorism. States the law:

"There is no subject of legislative concern to the United States Congress which does not require a visit to Paris."

Just before Congress adjourned, several legislators were telling this story:

"I just got out of prison this morning," said a train passenger to his seat companion. "It's sure going to be tough facing all my old friends."

"I know exactly how you feel," answered the other. "I'm just getting home from Congress."

Monsters And Marketers—

Four-row picker, a popular aid to the farmer, lumbers through the cornfields near Macon, Ill.

Soybean combine at work near Decatur, often called the "soybean capital of the world."

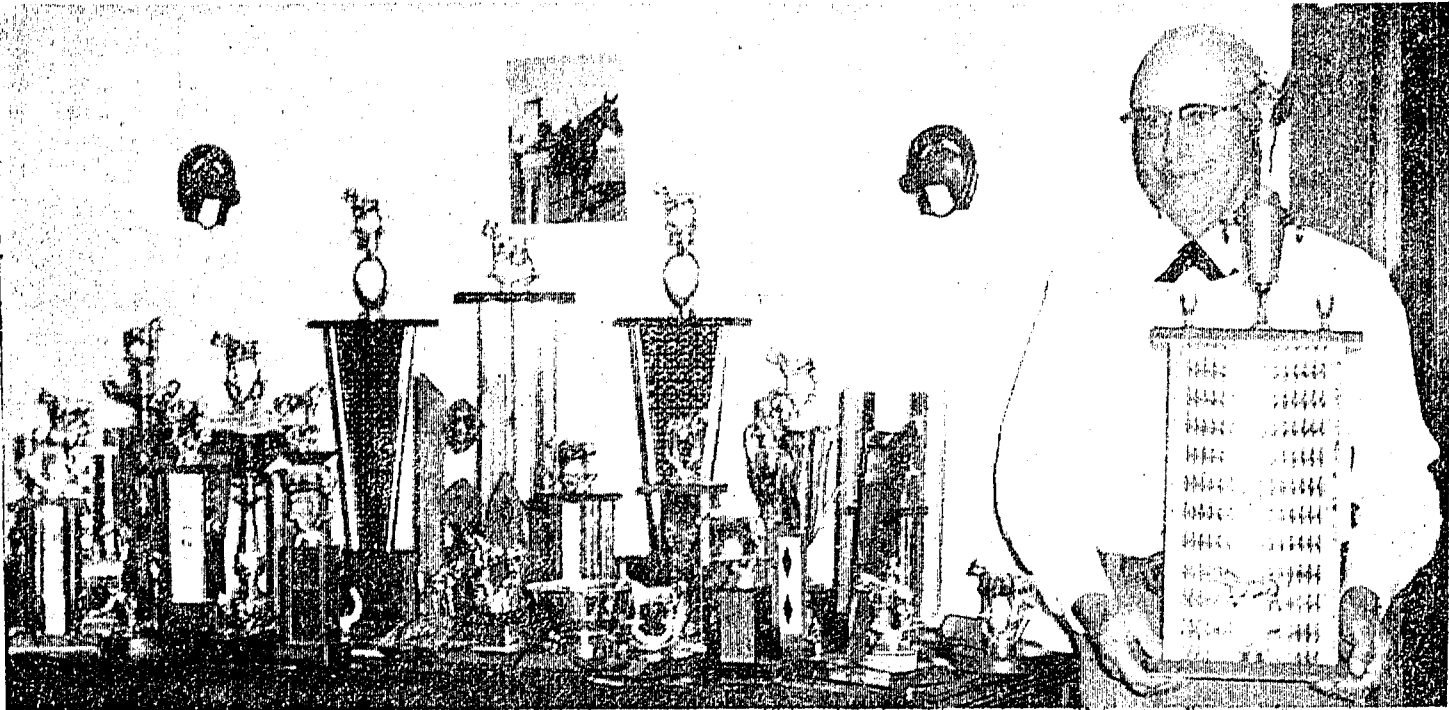

Reminiscent of a classical painting, traders in the soybean "pit" of the Chicago Board of Trade deal swiftly and expertly with the complex job of marketing the commodity.

Farm experts are predicting the largest soybean and corn crops in the history of the nation this year. Illinois is expected to harvest more of both than any state has ever grown before. These dramatic pictures tell the story. As the monsters roam the fields gathering the crops, man pits his efforts on making the best use of the bountiful harvest. "Food should be recognized as an important weapon in our arsenal," says Bernard P. Carey, the chairman of the Chicago Board of Trade. "The efficiency of American agriculture is one of our foremost security assets."

Devil's Miss Didn't Miss Much In '65

Everett Mason of the Strawn's Crossing neighborhood and his splendid chestnut quarter horse, Devil's Miss, won the men's pleasure division of the Illinois State Stock Horse association this year by amassing a total of 357 points in 31 shows during the season. They brought home 19 first place trophies and Mason is shown holding the association's "Big One."

She And Ev Win The 'Big One'

By Cecil Tendick
Everett Mason of route 3, Jacksonville, loves good saddle horses and he's been showing them since 1933.
This show season he worked hard with his splendid Quarter Horse, "Devil's Miss." They showed somewhere nearly every weekend and holiday — from Rock Island to the north, Rees Station to the south; east to Morton and west to the Mississippi river.

And they won the applause of thousands of spectators and the men's pleasure division trophy of the Illinois State Stock Horse association.

That's the highest you can go. Mason placed first in 19 of 31 shows during the 1965 season and accumulated a total of 357 points — to far outdistance any other association member.
Competition this year was the keenest ever, since more and more people are acquiring and showing saddle horses. In the smallest class this season there were 14 entries, and in many of them there were as many as 25 horses doing their very best for the benefit of the crowd and the judge, and particularly the judge.

A Splendid Horse
Mason says Devil's Miss is the finest horse he ever owned, and he's been offered a pretty penny for her. She's a chestnut, with a white star centering her forehead. She's six years old now, stand 14.3 hands and weighs 1150 pounds.

"She likes to go places," Mason says. "She climbs into the trailer without urging, never gets travel sick, and is always ready to go again."
Mason began with American Saddle horses and ponies in 1933. The whole family liked to ride. Mrs. Mason and the three daughters, Eleanor, Phyllis and Mildred. In 1961 Mrs. Mason won the ladies state grand championship, but a slipped disc makes sitting in the grandstand more pleasurable now than bouncing on a spirited horse. The daughters don't ride much these days; they're married and busy raising their children.

In 1949 Mason switched to the Tennessee Walking Horse and when Quarter Horses began zooming into popularity he bought a grade in 1955. In 1961 he switched to registered horses.

Twice A Reserve
Devil's Miss was a three year old when Mason bought her from the Circle S ranch south of St. Louis. He finished her training and did very well right from the start, winning the reserve championship in both 1963 and 1964. In the latter year he missed by only three points.

"Coming so close to the 'Big One' for two years in a row aggravated me," Mason says, "and I was determined to enter every show I possibly could. And I did."

"Next year I'm going to take it pretty easy, maybe just enter a few shows."

It seems Mrs. Mason had heard this story before.

She smiled and said, "He says that every year."

BIG CROPS CONFIRMED

The USDA crop report for November 1 confirmed earlier official forecasts of big crops of corn and soybeans. Because of early freezes in northern parts of the Midwest, the new figures are slightly lower than those for October 1.

The November figures should be fairly accurate, since most of the reporting farmers had harvested at least part of their corn and soybeans.

U.S. Corn Production. The November crop report lists U.S. corn production for this year at 4,128 million bushels. This amount is down 1 percent from the October forecast, but it is still up 16 percent from last year and 1 percent more than the previous record crop produced two years ago.

The national average yield of corn per acre is listed at 72.1 bushels. This yield is almost one bushel less than the October forecast, but it is 10 bushels more than the 1964 yield and 4 1/2 bushels more than the previous record set in 1963.

Illinois is First In Corn. Illinois ranks first in corn production this year. We usually rank second to Iowa. The estimate of the Illinois crop was the same in November as in October—891 million bushels. This amount is 25 percent more than last year and 18 percent more than the previous record set two years ago.

The average yield per acre for Illinois is 94 bushels, 16 bushels more than in 1964 and 9 bushels more than the old record set in 1963. Though Illinois usually ranks first in yield per acre among the corn states, Indiana takes first this year with 96 bushels.

Large acreages of corn were flattened by storms during late summer, but farmers have been able to save most of the grain. Best results have been obtained by using combine equipment and driving slowly.

U.S. Soybean Production. The official estimate of the nation's soybean crop for November 1 was about 1 percent lower than estimates for earlier months. But the latest figure of 853 million bushels is 22 percent larger than the previous record set in 1963 and equaled in 1964.

The national average yield of soybeans is listed at 24.6 bushels per acre. This is about 2 bushels more than last year, but about 1/2 bushel less than the previous record set four years ago.

Illinois Continues First In Soybeans. Illinois continues to hold a big lead over other states in soybean production. The official estimate for November 1 placed the Illinois crop at 175 million bushels. This latest figure is about 2 percent more than that for October. Our 1965 crop is 21 percent larger than our 1964 crop and 6 percent larger than our previous record crop produced in 1963. Iowa ranks second in soybean production, as usual, with a crop of 126 million bushels this year.

The Illinois average soybean yield per acre is now estimated at 29 bushels, 1 1/2 bushel more than in October. This 1965 yield is 4 bushels higher than the 1964 yield, but 1/2 bushel short of the record set in 1963.

Illinois and Iowa are tied for highest 10-year average yields of soybeans, with 27.7 bushels per acre. This year, however, Indiana is tied with Illinois for highest yield among the soybean states.

Foreign Buyers Most Interested In U.S. Corn And Soybeans

By WALTER B. PETERSON
Secretary of Marketing
Illinois Agricultural Association
Peterson was a member of the Illinois Far East Trade Mission which returned to Illinois last week after investigating trade possibilities in Japan, Taiwan, the Philippines and Australia.

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA, Nov. 22—Potential customers in the Far East appear to be more interested in American soybeans and corn than any other agricultural products. That fact became apparent in our talks with government officials and business representatives in Japan, Taiwan, the Philippines and Australia.

This report will be a brief focus on the Philippines and Australia—two of the best friends that the U.S.A. has in this part of the world.

The U.S. imports to the Philippines an average of $300 million a year, and the Philippines exports to the United States about $350 million. Competition for the Philippines foreign trade is becoming sharper. In 1961, 47 per cent of goods imported to the Philippines came from the U.S.A. By 1964, the U.S.A. share dropped to 39.5 per cent. During the same period, Japan's percentage rose from 17.7 per cent to 20.2 per cent. Therefore, the stiffest competition that we have comes from Japan in both prices and credit.

Our trade mission found itself in the middle of a changing political climate as a result of the presidential election in the Philippines. This change will undoubtedly have an effect on our U.S. market opportunities. We found a general good humor among key government and business people, but they were hesitant when it comes to making statements for publications or any commitments or even forecasts.

Stiff Import Duties
Following our joint session with the Philippine Chamber of Commerce, two elder statesmen who have had a long-time connection with agriculture put it to us this way:
"If the Philippines expects to feed its growing population and increase its national agricultural production, they need a substantial increase in four things: 1. Technical know-how. 2. Chemical fertilizers for rice, soybeans, and corn. 3. Lots of modern labor-saving machinery. 4.

our time and pursue this matter diligently with the new leadership. Our visit to Corregidor Sunday reminded us that we were on hallowed ground held sacred by Philippine people as well as the American people. With this mutual bond and sacrifice, we surely can exercise patience that is needed to work out any of our problems in commerce.

A Stable Country
Now I want to give a very condensed report on Australia. This country is almost as big as the land area of the United States. It is potentially an economically stable. It has never known a revolution or a civil war. There are 11 million Australians. They speak English, with colorful variations. They are well housed. They eat almost twice as much beef as Americans do. They're well educated, and society is urban rather than rural. Sixty per cent of the population live in 10 cities. There are more motor vehicles than homes.

Australia produces enough wool, wheat, meat, butter to sell vast quantities to other countries. It is one of the 10 top trading nations. Its main trade partners are the United Kingdom, Japan, and the U.S.A. In the past five years, U.S. business has invested $658 million here.

Damaged By Drought
The big story in the agricultural area at the present time in this southern part of the country is the word DROUGHT, with capital letters. There is currently a high mortality in sheep and range cattle and the outlook for the pasture and row crops is disturbing. This, strangely enough, has brought our trade mission several inquiries for bids on soybeans, corn and dry skim milk powder.

The ports of Sydney and Melbourne are far from Illinois, but don't write off the possibilities that some of our feed grains and soybeans may find their way down here during the emergency. To accomplish this, however, will require a relaxation of their tariff levies.

The drought may bring about a fascinating possibility that Illinois corn may find its way to the Fiji Islands. Some companies that are headquartered here have facilities on the Fijis. If we can agree on terms and arranging shipping, part of a cargo could be unloaded at Suva en route to Australia.

National Barrow Show Dates Set

September 12-15, 1966, are the dates for the 20th consecutive National Barrow Show, often called the "World Series of Swinedom," and an annual event in Austin, Minn., since its origin in 1946.

The dates for the 1966 National Barrow Show were set at a meeting of the National Association of Swine Records (NASR) in collaboration with Carroll Plager, show superintendent. The meeting occurred at the National Pork Industry Conference in Lafayette, Ind., last weekend.

The National Barrow Show has continually sought to promote the widespread production of the meat-type hog and, at the same time, serves as a meeting place for the best hogs and hog producers in the business.

Nineteen states, producing over 60 per cent of all hogs in the United States, were represented at last year's show. Some 3,000 animals, accompanied by 400 exhibitors, enter the "World Series of Swinedom" each year. The NASR, originator and a chief sponsor of the National Barrow Show, is composed of the executive secretaries of the major national swine recording associations.

Cass Herdsmen Elect Launer

BEARDSTOWN — Donald Launer has been elected president of the Cass County Pork Producers association.

The election was held when 28 members met at the Rossi restaurant in Virginia Wednesday. Other officers are: Harold Jurgens, vice president; John Jokisch, secretary - treasurer; and Sid Campbell, state delegate.

Vernon Pilger, a member of the state legislature committee, reported on the efforts to control the dread disease TGE which can devastate pig litters.

A SINGLE SOURCE OF CREDIT IS THE FARMERS BEST FRIEND

Production Credit Associations, true credit cooperatives, have long believed that farmers do better with a centralized source of borrowing. In this way, you get a low, known interest rate, funds adequate in amount and at a lower total cost. For details and proof, contact:

BRIMFUL and running over

By Jim Brim

Each issue of the paper carries notice of closing out sales. These, many times, are sad affairs. As the number of them increases many other individuals question in their own minds if they should "get out of farming."

Many decide they need more cash income and take a job off the farm. They are able to do this because of mechanization. Some of these will eventually become full time farmers, many will continue as part time farmers and some will quit farming altogether.

I believe the reasons for leaving the farm have been emphasized by many people. Low income is usually the most mentioned reason for leaving.

I would like to say that money income is not the only thing to consider when determining whether to stay on a small farm or not. For some the relative freedom that comes from being self-employed in an activity that does not require full time effort the whole year is an important item that offsets some of the disadvantages of lower income.

Some gain satisfaction from working with the soil and growing things. Others value the relative isolation and the absence of crowding that usually comes with city living. Security from the hazard of periodic unemployment is one value which holds some people on small farms.

It all boils down to—"Money isn't everything."

Now you should...

Buy Christmas presents.
Recuperate from Thanksgiving.
Top out hogs.
Clean livestock beds.
Hunt rabbits.
Watch for the first snow flakes.

Take the kids to see Santa Claus.

When you put your machinery away for the winter be sure you clean it and grease or oil unpainted metal parts. Winter is the time to shape up machinery. When you store it for the winter take a tag or a piece of paper and list things you need to do to a given piece of machinery. Make a parts list and get the parts ordered so you will get all equipment ready for use next spring.

Get one or more of the new SMV (Slow Moving Vehicle) markers. They are quite an improvement.
Take care of your feet. Keeping them dry goes a long way toward keeping them warm. Be sure your shoes are large enough.

Parking space — Where you leave your car to have those little dents made in it.

Grain Elevator Men To Meet

Illinois country grain elevator operators and other grain dealers will meet for a two-day conference on the University of Illinois campus, Dec. 7-8, announces L. F. Stice, U. of I. extension grain marketing economist and chairman of the program committee.

Illinois grain markets and marketing practices are undergoing significant changes because of such developments as the field shelling of corn, changing transportation rates, expanding exports and shifts in farm programs, Stice says. The conference is planned to give the grain trade an opportunity to exchange views and get factual information on current problems and developments associated with basic trends in grain marketing.

Major topics to be discussed include financing grain inventories; changing patterns of grain prices and grain flow in Illinois markets; opportunities and problems in exporting mid-west grains; elevator charges for conditioning and storage of grain; handling and conditioning field-shelled corn; developments in official grain inspection; and the grain price outlook.

All meetings will be in the Illini Union Building, Stice says. The program will begin at 9:45 a.m. Tuesday and continue through a luncheon meeting Wednesday.

"CHIP" EVANS, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Evans, 430 Sherman, was one year old Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 25.

Prayer Poem

The Comforter

By Mary Pence Claywell

We sometimes, grope for comfort,
When we are bowed with grief.

Yet Jesus said a "Comforter" Would come to bring relief In every trial or sorrow,
When His Disciples feared That they would be so lonely.
As Jesus disappeared Into the clouds of Heaven,
The CONQUEROR OF DEATH

The VICTOR over TOMB and CROSS,
When this old world, He LEFT:
And He, Who "Asked The Father,"
A Comforter, to send . . .
Is Able still, to soothe our hearts,
And will . . . unto the end:
The Holy Spirit Hovers,
Unseen . . . and yet, so near,
To soften every sorrow,
And wipe away . . . each tear!
Thou Merciful, All-Loving God,
Sometimes, we're slow to see,
But this, we know . . .
When all else FAILS . . .
We still can . . . TURN TO THEE!

RENEE LYNN CHILDERS will be eight years old Dec. 2. She is in Mrs. Sandra Gussner's class at S. Jacksonville. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ervin C. Childers, 1400 Lakelawn, and her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Bert C. Brannan, Eldred, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Childers, Winchester.

Background For Gemini

By Walter B. Hendrickson, Jr.

but also many of the rocket experts. Milton W. Rosen, Viking Project director became director of the Vanguard Project.

Like Thin Titan

The finless Vanguard looked much like a thin baby Titan. Its first stage motor was completely exposed to give it as much freedom as possible to pivot as it guided the rocket along its path into space. After its fuels were used up steering jets were to keep the rocket on course.

When the Martin-Marietta Co. of Baltimore, Maryland was picked to modify the Titan II missile to carry the Gemini spacecraft they were able to draw on almost twenty years experience in rocketry dating back to near the end of World War II.

The first really large rocket developed by Martin was the Viking rocket. Although the Viking was rather small by today's standards, standing only 48 feet tall, it was one of the largest of its day. It was designed to carry 200 pounds of high altitude instruments to a height of over a hundred miles for the Naval Research Laboratory (NRL).

Unlike the Titan II which uses hypergolic fuels that ignite when they mix the Viking used a liquid oxygen and alcohol combination. These fuels have to be lighted by a pinwheel-like starter.

Never the less the Viking did include many innovations which are retained by the Titan II and many other modern rockets. Among these are a gimble mounted motor that can swivel in any direction, under control of the rocket's guidance system to keep it on course.

Also weight was saved by building the fuel tanks right into the rocket.

Trouble Pays Off

Viking's advanced design, however, resulted in a program plagued by difficulties. But these very problems are one of the reasons the Titan II is so reliable for they put the spotlight on areas which needed improvement.

In spite of its troubles all but five of the fourteen Vikings climbed above 100 miles. Only one was a complete failure — Viking VIII that tore loose during a static test when it was carrying no upper air instruments.

The rockets for Project Vanguard, America's first satellite launching vehicle was Martin's next program. It took over not only the experience gained through the Viking program, and other high altitude rockets, Vanguard's first stage used fuels like those of the Viking and the second stage used the same fuels as the Aerobee high altitude rocket (similar to those now used by the Titan II). These two stages were to carry the satellite into space where a solid fueled third stage would give it the final kick into orbit.

On Nationwide TV

Rosen soon found he was dealing with another refined and temperamental rocket. The public also learned this when the first satellite carrying Vanguard exploded on the pad — in front of nationwide Television! The rocket engineers were prepared to be patient with a new and advanced rocket but Gemini program.

However, the experience gained from the Vanguard project was almost more important than the satellites it put up. From this experience came the Titan II which is so reliable that it has not yet caused a single launch postponement in the new and advanced rocket but Gemini program.

Mr. Chim And Mr. Dart

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Troubled Dart fluttered along the kitchen roof to perch beside his warm friend the chimney who asked, "Were you caught in last night's storm?"

"Yes," the sparrow sputtered, "Our nest was blown out of the elm. Do you see it there on the grass?"

The chimney looked down on the soggy tangled wreck: "I saw it at earliest daylight," Dart huddled closer to the sturdy bricks, "If you could fly with me," he begged, "We might find a better place."

"I don't have to fly," Chim reminded the homeless bird, "I can see north, east, south and west without moving. There are blue jays in the oak, wrens in the lilac, squirrels in the maple and brown thrashers in the syringa. You would not want to live with any of them, would you?"

High View

Dart shuddered, "Fly up to the chimney top," Mrs. Dart interrupted, "You can see farther there."

Chim felt Dart alight on the metal arch that topped the bricks. His scratchy claws clung tightly then crept cautiously underneath the covered top. Silent Mrs. Dart flew in beside him. "Does that arch keep out the rain," Dart inquired.

"It is made for that," patient Chim explained.

"Chim! Chim!" Dart called presently, "I say Chim, we like it right here—a roof overhead and with good nest material we can bridge that deep center hole!"

Dangerous Plan

The chimney grew stern, "That will never do, when my house folks build a fire hot smoke will surely burn your home."

"O no—not our nest," the birds insisted and hurriedly disappeared.

The next morning nest materials were stuffed into the surprised chimney. Extra wisps of dried grass hung outward from the arch openings but when Mrs. Dart tried to weave the center her hammock sank down out of sight; tirelessly she brought replacements but they sagged with her weight and drifted far into the dark chimney.

"How much do we have to carry?" Dart fretted, "We've brought enough for three nests now!"

The chimney worried too, "What can that bird have dropped down my throat?" scratchy stems, leaves and feathers muffled his voice until the birds did not hear his words nor could he hear the sparrows working. Discouraged, they had flown off to nest elsewhere. Then something new sounded, the house folks were lighting a fire. (To Be Continued)

Our Hill

By Henry C. Taylor

In our pasture my brothers and I have a hill we call "Our Hill." It is a hill overlooking the road and the green fields beyond.

I like to lie on "Our Hill" and pass time when I have nothing to do. Occasionally a small airplane flies over, its owner out having fun. Sometimes it dips and turns and flies about and then leaves. Then all will be silent.

Then I sit up and watch a red tractor discing a field about a mile in the distance. All I can see now is dust, for a breeze has aroused.

Fooling Teacher

By John Rankin

Most all the kids in the little, one room country school had always declared that their teacher, Miss Amy Benton could see through the back of her head.

Fred Morris, eighth student was one of the few that boasted he could get away with just about any prank if he could catch "Miss Amy" looking the other way. The opportunity to make good his boast came one afternoon when the elderly little teacher was busy at her desk with her back to the school room.

Fred glanced quickly about the room. Now is the time, he thought, "Miss Amy" busy at her desk . . . she won't see me. That figure eight on the black board would be a good target. Got to be careful no girls see me. Girls tell everything.

His eyes surveyed the room again. Some of the boys watch him but all the girls busy.

He eased the slingshot from his desk drawer and placed a pebble in the sling. Taking careful aim at the figure eight he pulled back hard on the sling and let go.

Like Rifle Shot

Bang! The impact of pebble against blackboard was like a rifle shot.

In a flash the little teacher was on her feet and looking straight at Fred. "Bring your slingshot and come up her, Fred Morris!" she commanded.

Like a condemned man before a judge Fred trembled while Miss Amy pronounced sentence. "Use some of your ambition," she said tersely, "to go down to the creek and cut a long willow and bring it to me. I'll give you the trashing of your life, young man!" In those days it was not unusual for teachers to whip pupils.

Weak Willow

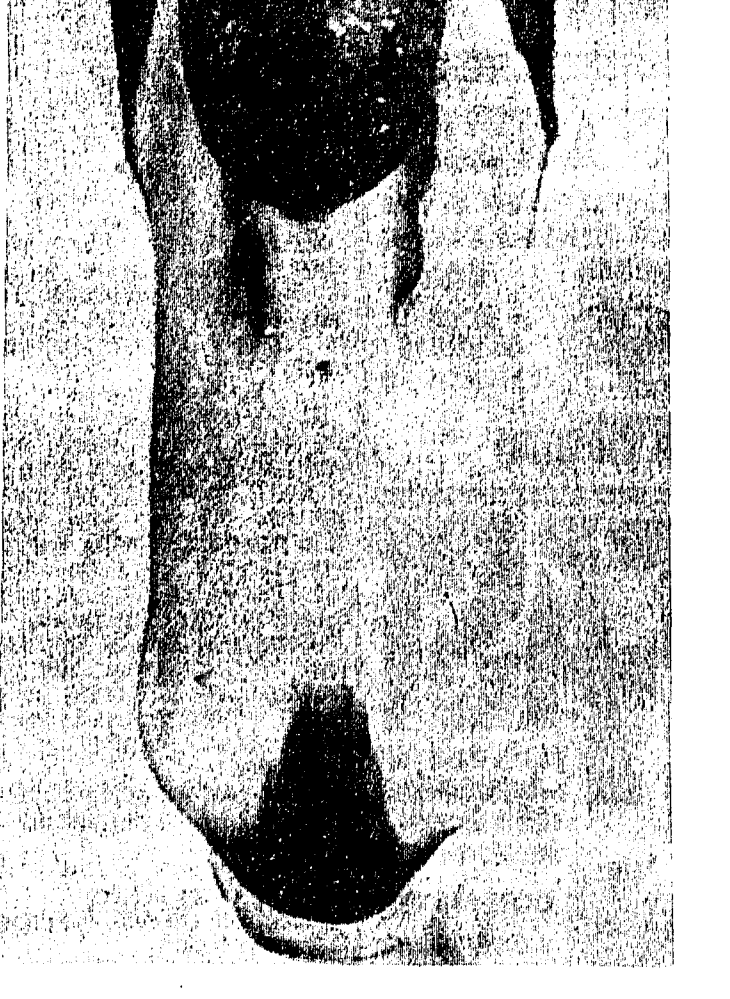

Fred returned with the willow and stood before Miss Amy to receive his punishment. The whipping was brief, however, for after two or three light lashes the willow broke into pieces and fell to the floor.

Miss Amy remained in the school room after the kids had left for home. From a drawer she extracted a few pieces of the broken willow. She examined them carefully.

The dark eyes sparkled and a smile spread across the furrowed features. Ah, I thought so, she mused.

You're a sly one Fred Morris. But so was your father. When I taught him he also cut rings around the willows so they would break easily. Ah . . . yes indeed. And even now he thinks he "fooled Miss Amy."

Yes . . . he too was a sly one. But I knew all the time.

Robert Armstrong and Bill Irlam, Jacksonville, and Steve Oakes, Bluffs, made the three highest corn yields in this FFA section of the state with yields of 263.6, 219.9 and 201.9 bushels per acre.

Armstrong's yield was the best in the 25 FFA sections in Illinois. His plot was on bluegrass sod ground northeast of Jacksonville. He is shown with William A. Fortschneider, Jacksonville high school vocational agriculture instructor.

These yield checks were made under the supervision of their vocational agriculture teacher. The corn was weighed, shelled corn samples were also taken and a moisture test was made and the yield figured on the basis of No. 2 corn with 15% moisture.

Robert made his highest yield of 263.6 bushels per acre with Pioneer 3304; Bill made his highest yield of 219.9 bushels per acre with Pioneer 3304; and Steve made his highest yield of 201.9 bushels per acre with Pioneer 321.

This FFA section, No. 15, includes the counties of Morgan, Scott, Calhoun, Jersey and Macoupin. There were 10 high schools and 130 boys entered in the corn growing contest this year in this section.

All vocational agriculture students are eligible to enter this corn growing contest and free seed corn is supplied to all students who enter. Cash awards of $25, $15 and $5 are given to the three students obtaining the highest yield in each FFA section of the state. In the state there were 3,049 boys entered in the contest this year from 297 high schools. Armstrong received a fine wrist watch in addition to the $25 cash award for highest yield in the section and a beautiful golden ear trophy was awarded to the Jacksonville agriculture department for having the state FFA corn growing champion for 1965.

The boys obtaining the highest corn yields in this FFA section for 1965 were:

Name	School	Yield
1. Robert Armstrong,	Jacksonville	263.6
2. Bill Irlam, Jackson-	ville	219.9
3. Steve Oakes, Bluffs		201.9
4. Daryl Bangert, Bluffs		195.2
5. Charles Clayton, Jack-	sonville	190.0
6. Bill and Leonard Mc-	Dade, Bluffs	189.8
7. David McNeely, Jack-	sonville	189.2
8. James Fox, Jackson-	ville	186.4
9. Mark Albers, Bluffs		182.7
10. John Cox, Jacksonville		181.7

How They Did It
Here are the boys' own stories of how they produced their exceptionally high corn yields:

Robert: On May 1, 1965 I planted five acres of Pioneer 3304 single cross corn. My planting rate was around 28,000 kernels per acre.

The soil was plowed in March to the depth of about nine inches. Before planting, the ground was disked twice.

The land was formerly a permanent bluegrass pasture which had never been used for any type of row or cultivated crops.

I applied four tons of limestone per acre as the soil test called for Anhydrous ammonia was applied at the rate of 200 pounds per acre before planting. Before plowing the land I applied 100 pounds of 0-46-60 fertilizer per acre. At the time of planting I applied 7-31-12 with trace minerals as a special starter fertilizer. Manure was applied to the soil before plowing in the Spring. I also applied the insecticide Aldrin at the rate of five pounds per acre.

The corn was cultivated once on May 21. I had very little trouble with weeds. The soil is a yellow silt loam. A yield check was taken by my vocational agriculture instructor, Wm. A. Fortschneider, assisted by my fellow classmates in agriculture. The yield was 263.6 bushels per acre.

Bill: The land on which my corn was grown had corn on it in 1964, soybeans in 1963 and corn three previous years.

The stalks from 1964 were shedded and disked once in the fall and plowed in the spring. The ground was then disked once, field cultivated and harrowed before planting.

I spread 175 lbs. of actual nitrogen per acre, 250 lbs. of 7-28-14 per acre, and the land was covered with manure in the fall and again in the spring. I planted the corn on May 3 at the rate of 24,000 plants per acre in 38" rows. I cultivated the corn once on May 30. I applied 5 1/2 lbs. of Heptachlor per acre and 10 lbs. of Radox T per acre at the time of planting.

A yield check was taken on October 6, 1965 by my vocational agriculture teacher, Wm. A. Fortschneider, assisted by my fellow classmates in agriculture.

Steve: My Pioneer corn plot was planted on April 17 at a rate of 22,000 plant population in 38 inch rows. In 1962 the field was in wheat, 1963 legumes, and 1964 government acreage.

The land was plowed this spring, disked once, and then the corn was planted. A herbicide and an insecticide was used at planting time. The corn was hoed once and cultivated twice. The corn was side-dressed with 100 lbs. of actual N. after the second cultivation.

We made the yield check Oct. 22.

CHICAGO (AP) — A shiny, thousand-pound Angus senior calf shown by Marian Hullinger, 15, of Harris, Mo., won the grand champion steer honor of the junior feeding contest Friday at the International Live Stock Exposition.

The steer named Target was selected for the top award from about 318 entries in the contest, restricted to stock raised by the nation's young farmers.

The reserve junior grand champion was a 950-pound shorthorn summer yearling exhibited by Cheryl Kramer, 19, of Magnolia, Minn.

Miss Hullinger, a tiny auburn-haired girl, was speechless when newsmen converged about her and her prize winner.

Her sister, Janice, won the grand championship of the International in 1954 after showing her steer as the junior grand champion.

The girls' mother, Vera, stood by in the judging ring as the judge, Prof. Herman Purdy of Pennsylvania State University, slapped Target on the rump, noting it was his choice for the top award. Their father, V. D. Hullinger, was killed in a tractor accident in January 1965.

The family formerly lived and farmed near Manley, Iowa.

Miss Kramer's shorthorn, named Supreme, also won the breed championship of shorthorns. The girl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Kramer.

The grand champion barrow of the junior show was exhibited by Cling Kennedy, 16, of Zachary, La. It is a 210-pound Hampshire.

The lean, meaty animal was adjudged the most nearly perfect barrow of 82 entered in the junior show. The junior show is restricted to stock entered by the nation's young farmers.

Second place in this category — reserve grand champion — went to an entry by Dale Kopy, also 16, of Dayton, Iowa. Young Kopy took the runner-up award with a Hampshire-Yorkshire crossbred that scaled 215 pounds.

Kennedy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Kennedy. His father is a cattle auctioneer. The family lives on a 10-acre plot near Zachary but does not engage in farming.

This was young Kennedy's first appearance in competition at the International.

Last year's winner of the junior grand champion barrow contest was Gail Carr of McNabb, Ill.

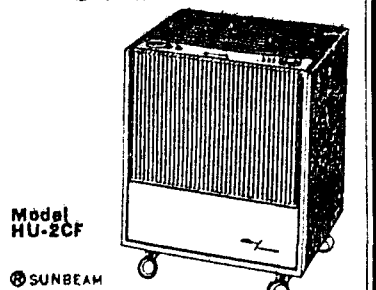

The grand champion wether lamb of the entire show, a 85-pound Southdown, was shown by Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind. The reserve grand champion wether, also a Southdown, was shown by Michigan State University, Lansing.

The animal, classified as a heavy-weight scaled 100 pounds. The grand champion pen of three wether lambs was the entry of Willobe Farms, Libertyville, Ill. They were lightweight Hampshires. The runner-up pen were heavyweight Southdowns shown by Iowa State University, Ames.

Reduce Soil Losses; Disking Second Best

Shredded cornstalks can help to control winter erosion in cornfields. Recent tests show that Illinois farmers control erosion best when they shred their stalks but don't disk them into the soil.

University of Illinois soils specialist T. D. Hinesly says that the secret is ground cover. Shredded cornstalks make a cushion, protecting the soil from the impact of raindrops. It's this impact that first detaches the soil particles, freeing them to be carried away, says Hinesly.

In the midwest, heavy rains usually come during the early spring and fall, so it's best not to plow sloping land in the fall. Raindrops work hardest on bare soil and can soon start it moving downhill.

Recent Indiana studies showed the advantage of shredding cornstalks to provide soil cover. On land that had a 4 percent slope, USDA researchers compared shredded cornstalks, cornstalks left by the picker and cornstalks shredded and disked in. They simulated rainfall at 2.4 inches per hour for one hour on each plot.

Disking Second Best

The greatest soil losses occurred where stalks were neither shredded nor disked. Here the loss measured 1.25 tons of topsoil per acre for this hour period. Where stalks were shredded and disked, losses were about one ton of soil per acre. The researchers got the best soil protection when they shredded cornstalks but did not disk them. Here they reduced erosion to only one-half ton of soil per acre.

How much is it worth to save an inch of topsoil? "That depends on how deep your soil is and what your subsoil is like. If your soil is deep, you won't miss an inch, as much as the fellow who has only a few inches of topsoil over clay," says Hinesly. "But even on the best soils it's the most fertile portion that washes off."

"It costs money to replace the nitrogen lost in the organic material that washes away. So it costs more to grow corn after the soil has eroded."

Can It Be Rebuilt?

In shallow soils, where the subsoil is clay, topsoil losses come even more serious. With less surface soil, crop roots won't be able to go as deep as before. This condition may also restrict moisture movement and water penetration.

"You may never rebuild such soil, regardless of how much fertilizer you put on. Your best bet is to hold on to all the soil that's there," Hinesly explains.

Growing good crops helps to reduce erosion. The higher the corn yields, the more plant material farmers have to return to the land. A good stand of vigorous corn plants provides a vine canopy to fend off raindrops during the summer, and lots of material for shredding in the fall. A 100-bushel corn crop produces nearly three tons of dry stalks per acre. Properly shredded and spread, these stalks can almost completely protect the soil from the impact of raindrops.

Illinois Farm Taxes Hit All-Time Peak

Property taxes on farm real estate in Illinois reached a new high in 1964, bringing in $142 million as compared with $134 million in 1963 and $89 million 10 years ago. Since 1940 Illinois farm land taxes have increased 378 percent.

In discussing these figures based on a recent USDA report, University of Illinois professor of agricultural law N. G. P. Krausz said that the 1964 total property taxes for Illinois were almost as much as for Ohio, Indiana and Missouri combined.

The average per-acre tax of $4.69 on Illinois farm land is exceeded only by California when counting all states with substantial agricultural production. In addition, Illinois was first among all agricultural states in farm income taken for real estate taxes—16 percent of net farm income and six percent of gross income. But because the price of Illinois land rose as fast as did taxes, the tax per $100 of land value rose only slightly from that of 1963.

Krausz points out that while this fact may not be encouraging to the farmer who keeps his land as a means of livelihood while paying higher taxes, increased land values have reflected increased production and greater tax paying ability.

The property tax is the primary source of support for local government in Illinois, furnishing about 65 percent of the total revenue, Krausz notes. The increased need for revenue stems primarily from increased school enrollment. Higher operating costs of township, county and municipal governments, higher salaries and more welfare payments also contribute.

Krausz believes that higher revenue needs are cause for an appraisal of the tax system to consider whether it is reasonably fair to taxpayers and what improvements or alternative kinds of taxes would make it more equitable.

The proposed constitutional changes in the revenue article to be voted on in 1966 will offer some choices, Krausz says.

The Agfa/Siemens traffic camera, used in Frankfurt, Germany, is connected to a mechanical switch which trips the shutter whenever a car enters the intersection when the traffic light is red. One camera in Frankfurt produced 25,000 pictures of traffic offenders, identified by their licenses, in its first year of operation.

The northeastern section of Morgan county really had a corn crop this year. In the Illinois FFA five-acre corn growing contest Robert Armstrong, Jacksonville high school sophomore, won the state title with a yield of 263.6 bushels per acre. Armstrong also won the Section 15 trophy and $25. Section 15 is made up of Morgan, Scott, Greene, Macoupin, Jersey and Calhoun counties.

Over in the Berea community Tom Johnson, Ashland high school senior, won the Section 14 title with a yield of 219.8 bushels. This section is composed of Cass, Menard, Sangamon and Logan counties. This year there were 18 high schools and 104 boys in the Section 14 contest.

Johnson is president of the Morgan County 4-H Federation. In reporting how he raised the crop he wrote:

"The soil type was Class 1, Ipava silt loam. The ground was fall plowed and in April 350 pounds of 6-18-6 and 100 pounds of anhydrous ammonia per acre was applied and disked in. On May 11 I planted Pioneer 3304 single cross at a population of 22,000 kernels per acre. The field was rotary hoed and cultivated twice and sprayed for weeds once. In June 100 pounds of anhydrous ammonia was applied as a side-dressing. Good rains and lots of sunshine also contributed to a high yielding plot. Previous crops were corn for the past three years, with alfalfa four years ago."

Other high scorers in Section 14 were Kenneth Werth, Lincoln, 202.3 bushels; Ted Megginson, Auburn, 192, and Ferris Stonemeyer, New Berlin, 191.1.

Kuhfuss To Address AFBF Convention

William J. Kuhfuss, president of the Illinois Agricultural Association Farm Bureau Federation, will address the annual AFBF convention opening Dec. 12 in Chicago.

Mr. Kuhfuss will address the special interest session on livestock marketing. He will speak on expanding exports.

More than 4,000 farmers and ranchers from 49 states and Puerto Rico are expected to attend the 47th annual meeting of the AFBF in the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

The Federation, an independent organization of more than 1,600,000 member families, is the largest general farm organization in the nation. (Alaska is the only state that does not have a Farm Bureau.)

Among key issues expected to be discussed and acted upon by the voting delegates of the member state Farm Bureaus at the convention are federal budget and fiscal policies, international trade and farm program legislation.

Speakers at the general sessions will include Senator Everett M. Dirksen (R.) of Illinois and C. D. DeLoach, assistant director, crime records, Federal Bureau of Investigation.

A traditional vesper service will be held Sunday afternoon, Dec. 12, in the International Ballroom of the Hilton Hotel with Dr. William Silder of Christ Methodist Church, Louisville, Ky., giving the invocation address.

Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, will give his annual address at the opening general session, Monday morning, Dec. 13.

Wednesday morning's session, Dec. 15, will open with election of officers and board members of the Federation, followed by consideration of policy resolutions by voting delegates which will continue through Wednesday afternoon. Final action on policy resolutions and other business will be concluded Thursday morning Dec. 16.

VIRGINIA CLUB TO HAVE FLOWER SHOW

VIRGINIA—The Virginia Woman's Club will have a Christmas flower show at 2:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 2nd at the local Methodist church. Mrs. John McGuire of Beardstown will judge entries and give comments. Wayne Walter will provide music. There will be no meeting of the board prior to the Dec. 2nd meeting.

Weddings and CLUBS

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Nebergall

ROODHOUSE—Open house will be celebrated next Sunday afternoon, December fifth, observing the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Nebergall of Roodhouse. Friends and relatives are cordially invited to call from two to five o'clock at the residence, 814 South Roodhouse avenue.

Arthur Nebergall and Barbara Locher were married December 2nd, 1915, in the Kumlir Methodist church in Springfield by the Reverend J. D. Kruwell. They are parents of three children, Perry A. Nebergall, Long Beach, California; Mrs. George B. Reynolds of Roodhouse and Mrs. C. T. Wilkinson, Decatur. They have six grandchildren.

Mr. Nebergall is a retired engineer of the G. M. and O. Railroad. The Nebergalls have resided in Roodhouse the past forty years.

Hudson-Sellers

WINCHESTER—Miss Linda Jane Sellers of Winchester and Alan Wayne Hudson of Manchester exchanged vows in a ceremony performed Sunday afternoon, November twenty-first at the local First Baptist church.

White glads and mums, with fern, decorated the candlelighted altar where the Reverend Hayes Wiltshire performed the ceremony. Mrs. Wiltshire sang and Miss Janet Frost accompanied at the organ.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sellers, Winchester route two and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hudson of Manchester.

Miss Kathy Coultas, student at Illinois College, was maid of honor; Miss Jeannie Berry, student at Western Illinois University, was bridesmaid. Callie Ann Sellers was the flowergirl and Steven Mueller the ring bearer. Bob Watt, student at Grinnell College in Iowa, attended the groom as best man and Jim McLaughlin, who also attends Western, was groomsman. Guests were seated by Bob Pittenger and Phil Snowdon.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown with Chantilly lace applique, with a long lace bordered train. A peau de sole rose headdress, encrusted with pearls, held her veil of illusion. She carried a cascade of California lilies.

The bride's attendants wore floor length gowns of emerald green velvet with satin trim. Their headpieces matched their gowns. Each carried a cascade of white daisy mums. The little flower girl wore green velvet.

The mother of the bride wore a beige wool suit with brown accessories. Her flowers were yellow roses. The groom's mother was in coral wool with black accessories and her flowers were caryanthemums.

A reception was held at the Holiday Inn at Jacksonville where Beverly Robinson, Mary Steelman, Sherry Frost and Jeannie Kay Evans assisted.

The newlyweds will make their home at Carbondale where both are students at Southern Illinois University.

FACIAL CARE
Put new and old techniques to work cleansing the complexion of small blackheads or whiteheads. Apply slightly moistened oatmeal to the face. Let it dry. Then wash the face with a soap with hexachlorophene or antibacterial liquid cleanser. Remember not to pick at or rub the face. This encourages those bumps.

TREAT SKIN WITH GENTLENESS
Do you have hyper-sensitive skin? Use "baby-gentle" soft cosmetic puffs when washing, applying or removing cosmetics. They are absorbent and soft and lint-free.

Illinois Prairie Girl Scout Council News

Junior Girl Scout Troop #29 of Franklin, Ill., was reorganized on October 21. Leaders are Mrs. Robert Jones and Mrs. William Kuehl. The girls were divided into patrols and leaders were selected. Members of the Sun Patrol are Shelley Craig, patrol leader, Brenda Eldridge, assistant, Barbara Jones, Colleen Cody, and Janis McKean, scribe. Daisy Patrol members are Beverly Cody, patrol leader, Debbie Johnson, assistant, Patti Allen, Jennifer Beck, Jenny Watret, and Vicki McKean. The girls took two hikes recently to finish requirements for their Gypsy Badge. Each girl is busy finishing up requirements for badges to be presented at their Mother-Daughter Christmas Tea next month.

On November 17, the troop held its Investiture and Rededication ceremony. Colleen Cody flew up from Brownie Troop #70 and crossed over the bridge into Junior Scouting. Jenny Watret and Debbie Johnson were invested as Juniors. Ten yellow candles were lit by the girls as they repeated the Laws. Three tall green candles were lit to signify the Girl Scout Promise. Scout Promise as a Rededication.

All the girls joined in the Girl Scout ceremony.

Following the ceremony, refreshments of green punch and yellow iced cupcakes were served. The cupcakes were decorated with the girls' names and a miniature Junior Scout head.

A reward of twenty-five dollars is offered to the finder, if left at this office, or at the post office.

FOUND — The pocketbook lost by Mr. Wm. Strong, was found by a boy near the Catholic Church, rifled of the money, but papers and memorandum book undisturbed. The pocketbook had evidently been in the hands of a thief.

BURGLARY — The residence of Mrs. Stout, on West State street, was entered on the night of the 22d inst., and robbed of eight blankets and two sheets. The goods were found next morning, by a Portuguese, who works at the City Mills, near that building, and returned by the Police to the owner.

From the Jacksonville Sentinel: PERSONAL — We are under obligations to our old friend, Albin Shepherd, for a jug of splendid sorghum syrup. The article is certainly hard to beat, and friend Shepherd has for sale a large quantity of the same.

The Springfield papers state that Paul Shelby, former editor of the JOURNAL of this city, and more recently sub-editor of the State JOURNAL, at Springfield, has located in New Orleans. Mr. Selby is a talented writer and a confirmed radical.

AN EDITOR IN TROUBLE — We learn that the editor of the JOURNAL has managed to get himself into another imbroglio. An editorial article appeared in the last week's issue of the JOURNAL, reflecting upon Mr. Kelsey, proprietor of the Dunlap House. This excited the belligerent feelings of Mr. Kelsey, and the parties meeting on Friday, a not very amicable altercation ensued, resulting, however, in no personal damage to either party, though at one time the clouds of war were lowered darkly. We learn that Mr. Kelsey has since caused the editor to be arrested on the criminal charge of libel, and that the examination is fixed to come off to-day.

We notice that handsome flag stones are being laid on the side walk in front of the National bank.

A troupe of genuine negro minstrels — pure — blooded Americans of African descent — exhibited at Union Hall on Tuesday night.

From the Carrollton Gazette: A CARD — Capt. Charles W. Deer, a burly Dutchman, has left my bed and board without cause or provocation. I entertain fears for the safety of about seventy dollars, the amount of his board bill. Any information in regard to his welfare will be thankfully received, but no reward paid. J. Headrick, proprietor, Carrollton House.

We are pleased to notice the spirit of repair and improvement has taken hold of property owners on the public square.

Parties who avail themselves of the convenience of the railroad to go away from home to make their retail purchases, certainly have a poor conception of business, especially when they are dependent upon local trade or employ for their own support.

DOMESTIC

An extraordinary billiard match has just been completed between two well known citizens at Denver. They agreed to play for $100 a game of one hundred points, and to continue the games without sleeping, eating, or cessation until the party most exhausted should agree to forfeit $500 to the other. It lasted for twenty-two hours, and $12,000 was lost by the superior player, who gave odds of forty points to his antagonist. During the latter portion of the contest, the stakes were $800 per game.

The only provident Indian on record is the Chippewa chief Hole-in-the-Day, who has, in Minnesota, a fine, splendid farm one mile square, a comfortable dwelling, a large stock of cattle and horses, and an income of $3,000 a year, free of income tax.

An exchange, in describing a recent celebration, says: "The procession was very fine, and about two miles in length as was also the prayer of Dr. Perry, the chaplain."

A Salt Lake letter states that the Mormon leaders proclaim that they will sustain polygamy by force of arms.

Contributions are advertised for in Baltimore to make up the sum of $20,000 to complete the equestrian statue to Stonewall Jackson, which is in the hands of an English artist, and is to be set up in Richmond.

In the Alexandria Military Cemetery the following inscription can be seen over a soldier's grave: "Unknown" Is all thy epitaph can tell. If Jesus knew thee, all is well.

The overcoat which Jeff Davis recently ordered in Washington was sent to him on Tuesday. It cost $150.

William Johnson, who died on the 14th ult., was the only brother of the President. He was 65 years of age, and was a house builder by trade.

A countryman, named Marden, having partaken too freely of Pittsburgh rum, while on a visit to that city, on Friday last, seated himself upon a curbstone to sleep off his potations, when his head falling to one side, he was soon strangled to death by the tight-buttoned neckband on his shirt.

A codfish caught off Flamborough Head, England, on being opened, was found to contain in its stomach, a pair of spectacles with brass frames.

—Frank Leslie's Newspaper

A meeting to denounce Sunday trains was lately held in Edinburgh, presided over by a baronet who regularly every Sunday drives into town from his seat, some five or six miles off, in a carriage and pair, with coachman and footman, to attend church.

—HARPER'S WEEKLY

HUMORS of the day

A schoolmaster struck "ile" the other day. A juvenile. "She isn't all that my fancy painted her," bitterly exclaimed a rejected lover; "and worse than that, she isn't all that she paints herself."

A person meeting an old man with silver hair and a very black, bushy beard, asked him how it happened that his beard was not so gray as his beard. "Because," said the old gentleman, "it is twenty years younger."

ASHLAND YOUTH COMPETE IN BIBLE CONTEST

ASHLAND—A group of young people from the local Church of Christ met Nov. 20 at the Christian Church in Concord where they competed in a Bible Bowl contest. The contest, in competition with a team from Pleasant Plains, ended in a draw. The local group brought home the attendance banner. Competing in the contest from here were Virginia Fry, Sharon Way, Beverly Isenhower and Calvin Forman.

Ashland Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Suttiger of Calumet City, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Suttiger of Knox, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Suttiger of Highland, Ind., spent the weekend here at the home of Mrs. Hazel Lewis. Elmer, Harry and Charles Suttiger are brothers of Mrs. Lewis.

Mrs. Henry Awalt entertained the Martha Circle of the Methodist church at her home recently.

Mrs. Granville Smith was in charge of the afternoon's program. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Lloyd Edwards and Mrs. Chrissie Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Moss of Atlanta, Kansas, and Mr. and Mrs. Roland Willard of Cambridge, Kansas, who have been visiting the past week at the home of Mrs. Frank Bailey and daughter, Mrs. Harry Daniels, have returned to their respective homes.

Fred Hexter, Jr., has returned to his home after a few days' visit with friends in Wichita, Kansas.

John Reiser, Jr., who has been a patient in St. John's hospital, Springfield, for a few days, has returned to his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dambacher of Virginia have purchased and moved into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Aggett in this city. The Aggett's have moved into their new home in the east part of this city.

Walter Otkens, and other relatives.

The intermediate group of the local Church of Christ enjoyed a pizza party in the church basement last Friday night.

Plans Wedding

Bertha Nicholson

CHANDLERVILLE—The engagement of Miss Bertha Nicholson to Edward Wilson Davies was announced Nov. 18th. The couple plans a possible June wedding. Miss Nicholson is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Nicholson of Hannibal, Mo., and has made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Johnson of here. Mr. Davies is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Davies, also of Chandlerville.

He graduated from Chandlerville High School in 1963 and she will graduate this year. He left Nov. 23rd for military service and prior to that had been employed by Allis Chalmers at Springfield.

deadly combination. Carbon monoxide is odorless and invisible. Last year 124 accidental deaths were reported in Illinois due to carbon monoxide; 86 of these occurred in the home. There are no records available concerning the number of persons non-fatally poisoned by carbon monoxide.

Several Sources
The deaths were caused by several sources of carbon monoxide gas. The burning of any fuel that contains carbon may produce the gas. This is true of solid fuels, such as coal, coke and wood; of liquid fuels, such as oil, gasoline or kerosene, and of gaseous fuels, such as manufactured and natural gas. Any fuel-burning heating appliance may be a source of carbon monoxide gas unless the appliance is adjusted, operating and vented properly. Special caution is necessary in homes with attached or basement garages. Automobiles, or any other gasoline-powered motor, should never be run in a closed space.

Charcoal should not be burned in confined areas or in defective fireplaces. Tracing gas leaks is a job for the utility company, not the homeowner. Dr. Yoder pointed out, "Last year 128 persons died of a gas odor is detected, no doubt they took their lives by the use of carbon monoxide," he said, "but considering the 124 Jacksonville shopper Friday. State Health Head Warns Of Sneak Killer

"In spite of repeated warnings, carbon monoxide, the sneak killer, almost daily now claims victims from among the unwarmed," Dr. Franklin D. Yoder, director of the Illinois Department of Public Health, said this week. Although the rate fluctuates with the season, more cases of accidental poisoning deaths from carbon monoxide are reported during the winter months. Closed windows, lack of proper ventilation and a faulty heating plant can be a

Don't be a dishwasher...BUY ONE!

In any home, you can always tell who does the dishes. She's the one with the rough, red hands. (And it's a pretty good bet she answers to "Mother.") An electric dishwasher not only lets Mother keep her hands pretty, but gives her the precious gift of extra time to spend with the family. And how practical! An electric dishwasher gets dishes antiseptically clean at temperatures human hands could never stand. And you've never seen dishes and crystal sparkle as they do when they come out of an electric dishwasher. No need to remodel your entire kitchen to enjoy automatic dishwashing. Portable dishwashers fit in snugly, roll anywhere. And need no special plumbing or installation. Economically priced, too. So why be a dishwasher? Buy one. See your appliance dealer now.

Mac Opens Year Here Wednesday

Basketball season at MacMurray College opens Wednesday, December 1 with Blackburn College playing on MacMurray's home floor.

The Highlanders have been working out since October 15 under the direction of William L. Wall, now in his ninth year as head basketball coach.

With the graduation of all five starters of the 1964-65 season, Wall is faced with a rebuilding year. The nucleus of the team is returnees Fred Lewis, Chuck Hundley, Dave Berst and Bob Gay, all lettermen.

Hundley, the Highlander captain and a junior two-letter winner from Elgin, will be a forward. From Diverson comes Fred Lewis, a junior, who'll be a guard on this year's squad. Berst, a sophomore from Carbondale who lettered as a freshman, is being counted on to fill the center spot.

Probable starters will be Hundley, Berst, Lewis, Steve Proesel, sophomore from Dundee, and Tom Cochran, a sophomore from Springfield.

The team should be a very balanced scoring machine offering an exciting fast-break brand of ball. Although there are no exceptionally tall men, all are fast and fit well into this style of play.

The bench strength rests with the freshmen, in coach Wall's opinion. In the style of play anticipated, such strength is necessary. Two very promising frosh are Al Killoran and Bob Alexander.

Killoran, from Fox Lake, was an all-conference performer for Grant Community High School. He is being counted on to help out in the front court.

Also being billed as a front court asset is Bob Alexander from Washington. He appears strong enough to help with the rebounding chores and has a very good shot to complement it.

This young squad is facing one of the toughest schedules in Mac's history. There are 27 varsity contests and 15 junior varsity matches on tap. Included is a home date with the University of Alberta, a Canadian school and a two game trip through Florida at Christmas.

LA's Lefebvre Rookie Of Year

PLAYA DEL REY, Calif. (AP) — Second baseman Jimmy Lefebvre of the Los Angeles Dodgers was accepting congratulations Friday after being named National League Rookie of the Year.

"It's fantastic," said the one-time Dodger bat boy. "It makes me feel real good." The 22-year-old infielder, who lives here, received 13 votes from a 20-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America to win the award.

The Houston Astros' second baseman, Joe Morgan, got four votes and Frank Linzy, San Francisco relief pitcher, three. It was the same committee that named Willie Mays of San Francisco as the league's Most Valuable Player.

Lefebvre, the Cinderella Kid of the Dodgers, was a key factor in the club's drive to the National League pennant and its win over the Minnesota Twins in the World Series.

Lefebvre was so little known in spring training that few could spell or pronounce his name. It's pronounced La-fer-vee. Captain-shortstop Maury Wills and player-coach Jim Gilliam drilled him in the skills of playing the position.

He went on to play in 157 games and star in the Series. Although he batted only .250,

Rathet Believes Cleveland Will Clinch Title

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — The Cleveland Browns can clinch the Eastern Conference title in the National Football League by beating Pittsburgh Sunday while both New York and St. Louis lose.

The triple play will happen, it says here.

Your peerless prognosticator predicts all games Sunday:

National League

Cleveland 42, Pittsburgh 17 — The Jimmy Browns, who had trouble with the Steelers in their first meeting, will have considerably less trouble this time. With Bill Nelson injured, either veteran Ed Brown or little-used Tommy Wade will have to do the quarterbacking for Pittsburgh.

Green Bay 28, Los Angeles 7 — The Packers' slumbering offense showed signs of picking up against Minnesota last week while their defense shows signs of being able to control a game almost by itself. With Bill Munsinger injured, Roman Gabriel will do the passing for the Rams.

Chicago 35, New York 21 — Gale Sayers will score his 13th touchdown for the Bears. He needs it to tie the rookie record held by Bill Howton of Green Bay. The Giants just don't seem to have enough offense to handle Chicago.

Philadelphia 27, St. Louis 20 — The Cardinals, likewise, don't seem to be able to get their offense rolling despite the fact that Buddy Humphrey was an able substitute at quarterback for Charley Johnson last week. The Eagles should be able to get by a slipping club.

Minnesota 35, San Francisco 31 — The last time they met the Vikings won 42-41 and this one figures to be the same kind of struggle. Here's a vote for Norm Van Brocklin, who may need a victory to save his stomach.

Dallas 28, Washington 17 — With the exception of that fatal m u c h - d i s c u s s e d interception, Don Meredith moved the Cowboys sharply last week, and Bob Hayes has been a constant plus. The Redskins still need more offensive punch.

American League

New York 35, Boston 17 — Joe Namath passed for four touchdowns last week, and the rookie Jet quarterback figures to have a comparable day against the Patriots. Babe Parilli will have one advantage — the Boston boo birds can't reach him.

Kansas City 21, Houston 20 — The Chiefs, an up and down team, have not been consistent offensively. However, their defense should be strong enough to give them the edge over the Oilers.

CLAN'S MUELLER IS NAIA PICK

CHARLESTON — Interstate Conference champion Dennis Boehler of Western Illinois University heads a seven-man cross country all-star squad chosen by District 20 (Illinois) of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Four schools are represented on the squad, with one athlete from MacMurray College and two each from Western Illinois, Eastern Illinois and Greenville College.

In addition to Boehler, the squad includes Kevin Keogh of Western Illinois, Roger Quinlan and John Schneider of Eastern Illinois, Jerry Arvin and Bill Jenkins of Greenville, and Dennis Mueller of MacMurray.

The all-star team was chosen by the cross country advisory committee of District 20.

Lefebvre scored 57 runs and batted in 69. Among his 136 hits were 12 home runs, 4 triples and 21 doubles.

UCLA Favored Again In West By Big Margin

NEW YORK (AP) — There's no question what team is regarded as the best in the Far West for the college basketball season opening next Wednesday. It's the UCLA Bruins, the national collegiate champions.

Coach Johnny Wooden's team, which opens at home against Ohio State next Friday night, is favored to win its fifth straight Pacific Athletic Conference, or AAWU crown, and go on to the national title for the third straight year in the NCAA playoffs.

The Bruins have lost All-America Gail Goodrich and Keith Erickson, but Wooden will have five veterans, Edgar Lacey, Doug McIntosh, Mike Lynn, Kenny Washington and Freddie Goss.

"I think we'll have a fine team," Wooden said. "I'm certain it will be another very exciting and most entertaining team."

Texas Tech, led by Dub Malaise and Bob Glover, a 6-foot-9 sophomore star, is a slight favorite over Southern Methodist to win the Southwest Conference championship. SMU has six lettermen back, including big Carroll Hooser and Charles Beasley. Texas A&M is the dark horse because of the addition of Randy Matson, the world record shot putter who was a star rebounder in high school.

New Mexico should edge Brigham Young for the title in the Western Athletic Conference in the opinion of the coaches who voted 4-3 for the Lobos. New Mexico was picked because it has 6-9 Mel Daniels, 6-7 Bill Morgan and 6-3 Ben Monroe.

San Francisco is expected to win the West Coast Athletic Conference crown again despite the loss of Ollie Johnson. And the coaches in the Big Sky Conference picked Weber to repeat.

The Houston Cougars, with seven lettermen back, are rated one of the top independents along with Texas Western.

In the Rocky Mountain area Colorado State University is considered the top independent while Seattle looms as tops among the Pacific Coast independents.

SETS PREP T.D. RECORD

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joe Ermi of suburban Ridley Township High School tossed five touchdowns passes Thursday for a season total of 24, reportedly a national scholastic record.

The old record is listed at 30, by Doyle Traylor of Temple, Tex., in 1953.

ORGANIZE SCOUTS

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — Racine County Judge John C. Ahlgrimm announced Friday formation of an organization of major league baseball scouts.

Ahlgrimm, a part time scout for many years, said he was acting as spokesman for the group, which will be known as the Major League Baseball Scouts Association. He said it has 39 members employed by 18 of the 20 major league teams.

Jack Mitchell, Kansas football coach, is in his eighth season at Kansas.

GRANDSTAND PLAY—Rain forces the New York Jets to work out in the deserted corridors under the stands at Shea Stadium. Unbothered by the unfamiliar surroundings, quarterback Joe Namath (in warmup jacket) hurled a pass to a receiver in a darkened passage as other players go through their training routines.

OFF THE BLOCK—Catcher Bob Uecker keeps in shape during the off-season in the back yard of his Wisconsin home. Uecker went to the Philadelphia Phillies from the St. Louis Cardinals in a six-man trade.

Pike Marine Victim Of Viet Sea Mishap

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department reported Friday that Marine Pfc. John D. Campbell of Pleasant Hill, Ill. died in Viet Nam.

The report said Campbell, who previously was listed as missing, did not die in action. It did not say what the cause of death was.

According to sources, Campbell's body was found in offshore waters near Da Nang.

Earlier in the week he was reported missing.

Campbell was a passenger in an amphibious vehicle, without power, which was being towed down the Cade river by another vehicle.

A tow line apparently broke and the crippled vehicle was swept out to sea and sank.

Campbell's body was recovered near the site where the vehicle sank.

Campbell was born in East St. Louis, December 23, 1945, a son of Ernest and Irma Gutherie Campbell. His father preceded him in death eight years ago.

He attended school in Pleasant Hill, graduating in June, 1964. He was active in sports, especially football, and also was in the senior class play.

Following graduation, he enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps in August. He was last home on leave Christmas, 1964. Campbell was also a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints.

Surviving is his mother, Mrs. Irma G. Campbell of 206 Mound Street, Pleasant Hill, and a sister, Mrs. James Ball of Reynolds.

Funeral services, and burial are expected to take place sometime next week in Pleasant Hill.

Mrs. Fishback Dies Thursday At Carrollton

CARROLLTON — Mrs. Beulah Fishback, widow of Fred Fishback, died at 1:30 a.m. Thursday at the Boyd hospital here where she had been a patient a few weeks.

Mrs. Fishback had been ill the past several months. Born at Carrollton Nov. 11, 1879; she was the daughter of Baker and Elizabeth Rawlings Peggam. She and Mr. Fishback were married in 1903. He died in 1962.

Surviving are two sons, Baker Fishback of Carrollton and William Fishback of Springfield; a daughter, Mrs. Thomas Bennett of Phoenix, Ariz.; three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Fishback was a member of the Carrollton Methodist church, the Carrollton Rug club and the West End Reading Circle.

The body was taken to the Simpson Funeral Home. Funeral services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Sunday at the funeral home. Reverend Roger Christianson will officiate and burial will be in Carrollton cemetery.

Ornan Cummings Of Wrights Dies Funeral Today

CARROLLTON — Ornan Cummings of Wrights died at 8:30 p.m. Thursday at Boyd Hospital.

Mr. Cummings was born in Woodville township Oct. 25, 1892; son of Christopher and Melinda Burch Cummings. He was married Oct. 24, 1910 to the former Clara Mae Walter, who survives.

Also surviving are ten children: Mrs. Jessie Sponsler of Champaign, Howard Cummings of Delhi, Mrs. Geraldine Kraushaar of Eldred, Mrs. Bernita Varble of Carrollton, Mrs. Wilma Thornton of Wrights, Mrs. Viola McCormick of Mulberry Grove, Mrs. Mabel Retherford and Olin Cummings, both of Rock Falls; Mrs. Imogene Cook of Sterling and Donald Cummings of Granite City. Fifty grandchildren and 34 great-grandchildren also survive.

The body was taken to the Simpson Funeral Home where friends may call.

Funeral services will be held at the funeral home at 3:30 p.m. Sunday. Reverend Dean Cooper officiating. Burial will be in Berlin cemetery.

CORRECTION
 In a report of an accident involving Mary E. Scanlan of 1627 South Clay and Wendell T. Sexton of Waverly Wednesday afternoon, the traffic citation was issued Mrs. Sexton instead of Mrs. Scanlan.

The Battle of Chalons was fought in northeastern France in A.D. 451. In it, Attila the Hun was defeated by the Romans and Visigoths.

REPORT SERVICE STATION BURGLARY

Sheriff Harold E. Wright and Deputy Dean Colwell investigated a burglary at the Harry Lee Waters service station located on Route 104 at Chapin early Friday morning.

A passerby notified Waters about 6 a.m. that the front door of his station was open and Waters telephoned county authorities.

Items missing included about 20 cartons of cigarettes, several boxes of cigars and a small quantity of chewing gum.

The burglars broke through the front door of the station. Sheriff's deputies also investigated a possible break-in at the Wendell Pefetish home north of Jacksonville Thursday morning. Deputies said there was evidence of possible entry to the house but nothing was reported missing.

PASSENGERS ESCAPE INJURY IN CRASH

Passengers in two cars escaped injury Friday afternoon when the cars in which they were riding collided on the Old State road two miles east of Jacksonville.

According to state police a westbound auto, operated by Margaret Stevenson, 44, of route one, went out of control and slid sideways before coming to rest on the shoulder of the road.

A second westbound auto, driven by Dorothy Duncan, 18, of 1203 Allen avenue, slid into the Stevenson vehicle.

Police reported only minor damage.

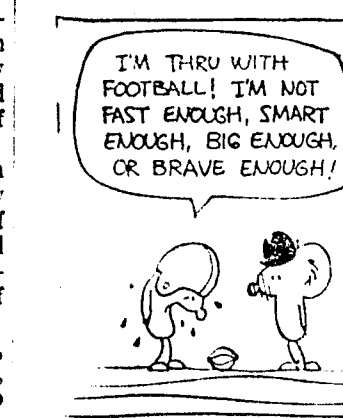

Passengers in the Duncan car, Elizabeth McDaniels, 18, of 1203 Allen; Donna Beddingfield, 18, of 300 1/2 South Main and Sharon McDaniels, 16, of Springfield escaped unhurt.

A passenger in the Stevenson car, Diane Stevenson, 11, was not injured.

State police listed the time of the accident at 4:30 p.m.
